Bound to Beat It.

The WHIG, some days ago, announced that the latest Easter novelty was a dumbbell shaped egg with a white substance at one end and a yoke at the other. There was no shell about the curio, only a hard skin. It was laid by a hen owned by George Tisdale, Barriefield. In reply to this the Smith's Falls News says: "We notified our farmer friends a week or two since that we are ready to pass our opinion upon eggs, either on account of their extraordinary size, their pecularities of form, or their usefulness as fcod, and would be glad if the farmer whose hen laid the two eggs which resembled boxing gloves on Easter Sunday morning, would bring them in, with the affidavit of the hen, in order that we may beat this dumbbell business out of the market.

BROADBRIM'S LETTER.

THE TOUGHEST WARD IN THE GREAT METROPOLIS.

Dry Dollar Sullivan One of its Chiefest Products-He Was Outraged When It Was Proposed to Arrest Thieves Without Warrants-The Ginries of Easter Day-Have a Little Confidence. (Special Correspondence.)

New York, April 26 .- As I remarked last week everything has to give way to the coming centennial celebration. The air is full of it, the stores are full of it. Everybody is full of it. It is a delicate subject, I know, but the question is forced upon us, whether we will or no, and that is, was George W. as correct a man as posterity supposes him to be? When we promised to provide for his descendants and give them a free blow-out, we counted all there was in sight, and came to the conclusion that we could carry them all in a hackney coach with a one-horse buggy contingent, but counted without our host, for from present appearances there will be enough of Washingtons and Washington's collateral issue to till the opera house and cram the surrounding streets. Now, mind you, these are no sham relations, or as they say in the classic vernacular of Chatham street, no "snides," but the real Simon Pure article, and no mistake, and every one of them comes with a carefully prepared pedigree, straight as a string, from himself to George Washington.

In my last I spoke of the immense influx of thieves and of the measures taken by the police to prevent their depredations on our visitors. A bill was introduced at Albany intending to give the police enlarged powers in arresting well known professional pickpockets and thieves, and its passage caused rather acrimonious debate which brought Dry Dollar Sullivan to the front. Who is Dry Dollar Sullivan, you ask? He may not be known on the outside, but in New York we know him very well. The Sixth ward, which Mr. Sullivan represents in the legislature of the State, is the great centre of thieves, murderers, harlots, gamblers, and all sorts of disreputable characters with which this city is cursed. There are very many very bad places in New York ; places where your life would not be safe if you were known to have a dollar in your pocket, but among them all there is nothing quite so bad as the Sixth Ward. It is not a large ward. It can be crossed in any direction in ten minutes, but within its borders sin enough blooms and blossoms for a city of ten millions. On Centre street the Tombs rears its solemn front, and within its sorrowful walls many eminent citizens of the Sixth Ward have ended their days, the expenses of their taking off being defrayed by the country. The Five Points stands nearly in the centre of the ward, and the wretched space from which the points radiate is, in the very irony of fate, called Paradise Park, though its associates for a hundred and fifty years have been those of the place which is supposed to be the very opposite of Paradise. In old coloniel days it was a plague spot, then far on the outskirts of the city. Part of its domain was occupied by a klock or pond, in the centre of which was an island on which all the executions took place. It has sustained its evil reputation from that day to this. The most respectable business there is saloon keeping, though thieves and gamblers are held in high repute. Its most preminent politians have graduated from the rum shops and gambling hells, and one of its choicest products is Dry Dollar Sullivan who now represents the ward. That Mr. Sullivan is deficient in the three R's is not to his discredit, for his opportunities were few and his constituents did not require it. His compatriots, Fatty a hard battle in disputing the supremacy of the ward. without warrant, and which was specia intended to protect visitors during our centennial celebration, was up before the legislature Dry Dollar Sullivan jumped to his feet, for it threatened a, large portion of his constituents with not only the loss of their liberty but also it deprived them of one of the most profitable opportunities of the century. The gold wat hes they have missed, the pocket books they would have raked in, the purses they would have snatch ed. No wonder that Dry Dollar felt out raged, and besides this much of the money looted in these successful raids would have found a resting place in the till of Dry Dol lar's saloon. Inspector Byrnes says that it's a thieves' den, and that robbers are the companions of the individual who represents the Sixth ward in the legislature of New York. We knew long before he found a home in states prison that Boodle Alderman Jachne was a receiver of stolen goods. It is flattering to our amour propre to know that these are the men that represent us in our state and municipal councils; without their aid politics could not be successfully run in this

"Tis true, tis pity; and pity 'tis, 'tis true. The bill I trust will pass, for it is our intention to make this city so safe during the celebration that, while we will not be quite prepared to ask our country friends to hang their wallets on the telegraph poles and lamp posts, still as far as human care and foresight can do it Superintendent Byrnes will make travelling and sight seeing in this city so secure that the average countryman, with ordinary care, can see everything. have a good time, and get back home with out the loss of a dollar.

Easter Sunday came to us as one of the most glorious days in the year. For the first time this season the south wind came genial and warm, and nature, responding to the challenge, seemed to leap into sudden and glorious life. Everybody was out of doors, the parks were full, and our German population, who take their greatest pleasure in the open air, fairly revelled in the warm and inviting sunshine. Our German friends do not resemble their English or American cousins. Instead of putting twenty dollars in his pocket and starting off alone to have a good time, Hans takes his wife and all the children. What! Leave the baby at home? No, not by a long shot; bring him along too. And so the whole family start off, and the Germans will have a better time with all his family on two dollars and a half than an Englishman or an American can have alone on twenty.

Glorious was the Easter music at all the churches. Grand anthems of praise and thanksgiving rolled up to Heaven, rejoicing that Christ has risen, not less to-day than nineteen hundred years ago. Like Christmas it is a season of blessed and open-handed charity, bringing joy and gladness to the homes of the poor. Next to the splendid music came the flowers which every year grow more magnificent-floral decorations this year surpassing everything ever before ratepayers.

seen in New York. Brooklyn, too, covered herself with glory in her Easter celebrations,. Dr. Talmage's tabernacle, as usual, confing well to the fore. The reverend doctor is a great lover of music and flowers. He knows how to make them appeal to the popular heart. A simple pansy or a crimson azalia will farnish him staple material for a sermon that will reach around the world. So Easter, Christmas, New Year's, and Thanksgloteg are always the greatest days at the taber-

A strange case occurred in Brooklyn this week which has set the town a talking. - A very respectable young woman had a young man arrested for assault, and he was safely lodged behind prison bars. The lady was handsome, well dressed and refined, and the man was the most brutal, dirty, besotted kind of a tramp. Then the tramp claimed the woman as his wife, and the woman repudiated the claim. When brought into court face to face the woman dropped on the floor like a shot, and it was some time before the trial could go on. When it did pro ceed the most extraordinary state of affairs was shown ever heard in a police court. It appears the parties met several years ago and the girl ran away from home with this young man, who then occupied a very good position, and lived with him as his wife. After a time she returned to her father's house and introduced him as her husband, and the couple lived with her parents over a year, the young man doing nothing to support his wife. Suddenly when compelled to leave or work he informed her parents that he had never married their daughter and left. Then he sought to compel her to live with him, assaulting her in the streets, and wherever she got employment to support herself and child he denounced her to her employers as an improper person, and told the story of her shame. Finally, maddened by his cowardly persecutions, she had him arrested, and notwithstanding his offer to marry her she landed him in the peniten-

As the owner of fine trotting stock Robert Bonner, the modest owner of the New York Ledger and Maud S. has no equal in the United States, if in the world. I saw him at the Tracy sale last week, an interested spectator, when one hundred head were sold belonging to the secretary of the navy for $114,000; the highest price being six thousand dollars for a prize stallion, which was purchased by Schultz, the baker. Several times during the sale I thought Bonner was going to take a flyer, but if he did he managed it so well that nobody saw him bid. Ten minutes after Schultz, the baker, secured his prize for six thousand dollars, he was offered nine thousand for his bargain, but declared that twelve thousand would not buy him, whereat the secretary of the navy looked decidedly blue.

Husbands, do not watch your wives too closely; have a little confidence. Don't think that you are all right and that they are all wrong, or if you do you may pay for it as John Zehner did the other day in Brooklyn. John has a young and a very pretty wife, and John's wife had never been to a theatre in her life, and looking at the great big posters on the fence was seized with an uncontrollable desire to go, but like a good wife she asked her husband's consent and fifty cents; like the savage that he was John said no. He started off to to work and Maria put on her bonnet and made a bee line for the Novelty theatre, but before she reached it her heart failed her, and like the good, obedient wife that she was she went back home. John run down the street suspecting that she would not obey his orders and hid under a stoop near the theatre so as to see her go in. A policeman caught sight of him and dragged him out, arrested him for a sneak thief and John spent all night in the cells and was discharged the next morning a very repentant man. John says he was a fool, and Maria perfectly coincided in that opinion. He says she can go to ballyhack now, but he will never watch her again. Right you are, John; stick to that. What's the mat When the bill to arrest known thieves | ter with Maria? She's all right! Who's all right? Maria !- Yours truly,

Fair Firebugs Sentenced.

NEW YORK, April 26. - Henrietta and Emma Day, the youthful firebugs of Summit, N.J., were arraigned for the second time yesterday. They chatted and smiled unconcernedly as they took their seats. Henrietta, the younger sister, who is fourteen, retracted her former plea of not guilty. Judge McCormick sentenced her to the State industrial school for girls until she becomes of age. Emma, who pleaded guilty, was committed to the county gaol for six months less one day. Both the girls retired with smiling faces and waved a parting salute to the spectators.

AND THE CASTAWAYS WHO ARE LIV ING ON THEM.

A Solltary Human Being Discovered On One of the Southern Pacific, Islands by a Passing Ship-Some Long Journeys in Pacific Waters.

NEW YORK, April 27. - On some of the numbreds of uninhabited Pacific Islands there are cast away Robinsonn Crusões, waiting for a sail. One of these castaways, a sailor named Jorgenson, was found 15 months ago on a little speck known as Midway island, where had been abandoned by his shipmates, who looked upon him as a desperate and dangerous person. There he was living without human companionship, 1,300 miles northwest of Honolulu, on the eastern edge of that vast expanse known as Anson Archipelago, not one of whose little islands is known to be inhabited. The sailors who found Jorgenson there were cast aways themselves from the wrecked bark Wandering Minstrel. On this little rock they lived for 14 months, faring poorly on sea birds and fish, until finally a boat they sent out in October last took the news of their distress to Honolulu, and early last month a schooner released them from their island prison.

Some wonderful boat journeys are made over the Pacific's waste of waters, journeys that would usually be impossible on the more tumultuous Atlantic. Two men and a Chinese boy manned the little boat that took the news of the Wandering Minstrel's mishap 1,300 miles to Honolulu. William Marston, who is at the head of the little colony of Palmerston island, journeyed alone over 1,700 miles from Tahiti in a small sailboat. When his isolation grew irksome he stopped in the Hervey group, took a native wife and went gayly on his way to the island that has since been his home. News of the wreck of the Henry James on a coral reef was carried by five men last year in a row boat, 1,400 miles to Samoa. Some years two Englishmen named Baker and Reed married Samoan girls and took them, in a little sailboat, 1,500 miles to Sunday island, where for years they were the only inhabitants. Two foolhardy men left Samoa in an open boat some years ago to go to New Zealand, about 2,000 miles away. They fared very well until they got out of water, and putting into Masoleum island for a fresh supply, one of them was drowned in the surf and the other was held a prisoner by the natives until his release was purchased by a passing schooner. The voyagers had traveled 500 miles.

Many white men are voluntary exiles among the natives of the little islands, where they dry corpa, to be shipped about once a year on schooners which replenish their stores. We hear now and then also of sailors who have abandoned civilization, married a large assortment of native women and become very important persons in a limited area. While every year brings its wonderful records of the rescue ot shipwrecked sailors, other castaways on islands that were perhaps never seen before by civilized men are living on eager but unable to escape.

Their Boasted Champion Slugger is Knocked Quite Groggy.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 27 .- In the tenth round of the fight between Peter Jackson and Patsy Cardiff the latter was groggy when he clinched and Jackson gave him a right and left on the ribs. Cardiff tried hrrd to gather himself, and put up his hands feebly. Jackson got him in his corner against the ropos and standing over him struck him blow after blow which Cardiff took merely throwing his head to the right. It was evident he was finished and the spectators urged Jackson to knock him out. Cardiff staggered to his chair and Jackson told him to give it up. The Minneapolis men nodded a feeble assent and about three seconds before the gong sounded Jackson walked to his corner the winner.

It was evident that Cardiff, though a clever boxer and hard hitter, had no show against the Australian, whose length of reach and coolness undoubtedly won the fight. The hardest blows must also be placed to his credit and Cardiff's efforts in the main were confined to guard and cross-
