VERY CONSERVATIVE. As an instance of the working of the present English law with regard to marriage with a deceased wife's sister it is stated that a well-known artist is going to Norway to be married to a sister of his late wife at Christiana. Opinion on the question is unduly conservative in England. For many years the agitation has been in progress looking to the amendment of the law, and it has made very little impression on those who are burdened with the responsibility of legislation. The effort has been made in the house of lords repeatedly to give effect to popular demand on the marriage question, and though in these efforts the heir to the throne has joined they have been unsuc cessful It is true that each vote shows an appreciable decrease in the number who adhere to the old doctrine, but the change is being so slow of action that years must pass before the parliamentarians, especially of the upper chamber, become reconciled to the inevitable. Practically the law as it stands is a law for the rich, who go outside the kingdom, enter matrimony and live comfortably under the protection of the power that forbade them coming together in their own land. It's an expensive providing and expense is a luxury in which only the few can include with impunity, just as divorce is given to the few in Canada who can afford to have their grievances discussed in the senate. Money and marriage are a close

SUNDAY TRAFFIC. The Montreal Gazette observes :

connection, and in no respect more so than in

"Mr. Joseph Hickson, general manager of the Grand Trunk railway, has issued orders that, for the future, on no part of the line shall any freight trains be run on Sunday. The only exception made is in favour of live stock and perisnable goods. This is no new departure, but simply the revival of an old standing rule, the general manager being much averse to any unnecessary work on Sunday. ¿ Its enforcement will not in any way interfere with traffic between Canada and the United States, as most of the American lines are observing the rule very close-

The movement is general for a better ob servance of the Sabbath so far as as the railways are concerned. Speaking for the American roads the Rochester Herald says: It will be difficult to adjust the demands of modern business to a policy of absolute ces sation of traffic on Sunday. The mails must be carried; some passenger trains must be run ; and certain classes of freight must be transported. These are works of necessity. But a great reduction on Sunday traffic may unquestionably be secured and the managers of the Vanderbilt lines appear disposed to go as far in that direction as the conditions of their business will permit. So far so good. What about the canals? Are they not to be closed ? There were so formerly, in Canada at least, and the sooner the return is made to the old rule the better. A departure from it appears to have been made at present in exceptional cases, and they were the entering of the thin edge of the wedge. Last season's Sunday traffic on the Welland canal called for the indignant protests of the people, and they were without avail. We hope the government this season will have a better regard for the eternal fitness of things.

PARTYISM RAMPANT.

A finer illustration of the great evil of party ism could not be furnished than that embodied in the case of Mr. Robillard dis. cassed and disposed of by the house of commons on Wednesday. A year or so ago timber limits on an Indian reservation had been sold by the government for $316. The purchaser was Mr. Robillard, M.P. He got the Shawanikiski Indians to make a surrender of the timber, and compensated them to the extent of $319 each, while he made a neat $50,000 by the transaction. The sacrifice of the timber was made more apparent by the fact that while it went at $4 per square mile the Ontario government had realized on timber on adjacent land between $1,000 and $2,000 per square mile. The whole thing was a job, and Mr. Barron, M.P., who stated the facts called upon the house, by motion, to censure the government for the course it had pursued. Mr. Robillard made an effort to justify the course he had pursued. He had, he said not purchased the timber himself. He had simply acted on behalf of others, as their agent. The official documents submitted to parliament show that Mr. Robillard wrote to the Indian department speaking of the application for the Whitefish Lake timber limit as "my application;" the license was made out by the department in Mr. Robillard's name, and Mr. Dewdney stated in the house of commons, in answer to a question put by Mr. Barron, that the limit in question had been sold to Mr. Honore Robillard, M. P., for $316.

In any case he knew that he was occupy. ing, even as such, a most improper position, that he was subjecting himself to severe criticism, that under the circumstances he was acting inexcusably. He certainly used his parliamentary position to obtain concessions and favours from the government, and he was the only one known in the case. To all intents and purposes he, and not a syndicate, was the purchaser of the timber and at a price which was ridiculously low, which showed that the government meant to give him a benefit. He protested that he made nothing at all, and the members, "inside the house," accepted the statement, though "outside of it" they will not accept it. Hon. Mr. Dewdney defended the government, saying little, as little could be said, but enough to show that every conservative present had a duty to perform, and that duty to vote down the motion. The division was 91 to 62. There wasn't any cheering. The "whitewash" was a matter over which there could be no jubilation. It's a lamentable thing that party servility will make a man support that which his conscience cannot honestly endorse. The timber sale in question was only a formality. Practically the timber went as a gift from the government to its political friends, since it was subsequently sold for $45,000 and is now valued at $100,000.

NYE FOUNDING OMAHA.

Some Intelligence That the World Was Not Seized With Hitherto. Bill Nye in New York World.

Omaha was founded by Fred Nye at the close of the war. Nye, who is a Spaniard by birth, with rich Castile blood in his veins, discovered the site of Omaha by accident, and immediately started a paper there, which was followed by the arrival of several thousand people, who came there to subscribe for the paper.

After founding the paper and building a court house Mr. Nye became the head of what is known all over the world as the Nye family. From Omaha this hardy and energetic race moved castward, and with its relinement and cultivation soon made itself felt in Boston and Skowhegan, Me. Everywhere the name became the synonym for remarkable strength and rigid integrity. Manly beauty characterizes the males, and female beauty seemed to characterize itself mainly to the women and girls of the tribe.

The Omaha Indians now number about one thousand souls, I was about to say, but they have associated with the white man so much that I will just say there are 1,000 head of them. Some of them at times fly in the face of industry. The Indian by nature seems to reluctantly part with his perspira-

Lucien Fontenelle, born in New Orleans about the year1800, went to the west in 1824, where he soon began to move in the best Omaha Indian society circles. He was always invited to attend the best and most recherche scalp dances, where he would trip the light fantastic toe till "the wee sma" hours anent the twa," as I read in a paper once. It was not long then until Mr. Fontenelle won the heart of a young Indian squaw. It was but the work of a moment to make her his wife. She did not play on the piano at all and so made him a good wife. She was a remarkable woman in many respects, and as she walked through the spacious halls of her home, her footfalls sounded like a game of beanbag at a quiet secial.

She dressed plainly in an army blanket, and, in addition to her housework, used to catch muskrats during the winter. She became the mother of five halfbreed children. Her husband died in 1840 as a result of his efforts to combine business with delirium tremens. Whiskey at that time in Omaha was often attended with fatal results. It would remove warts, corns and bunions. Mr. Fontenelle used it frequently in order to afford exhilaration. Finally it began to afford not only board and lodging, but also spectacular entertainments, during one of which he suddenly expired, leaving four sons and one daughter. Logan was finally killed by the Sioux after having made a good many experiments with the demon rum. Albert was a blacksmith up to his death, since which little is known of him. He was thrown from a mule in a vertical direction, and when he struck the town his soul had fled. The mule's injuries were slight. Tecumseh was killed by his brother in law in a drunken frolic. He was a lovely character except when drunk. When he was drunk he frequently said things which he afterwards bitterly regretted. Mrs. Fontenelle had the ill-fortane to see one of her little sons coming home from school with a spear inserted in him one day, from which he died. She found out that the deed was done by an Iowa Indian.

She concealed an axe under her blanket, and, telling him to look at the beautiful sunlight which bathed the entire landscape and flooded it with glory, she spat on her hands, and, swinging the axe about her with great vigor, buried it in the centre of the low, coarse brute. Wiping the axe carefully with her packet handkerchief she returned to her home and wrote up the occurrence for the local papers, laying the blame mostly on the deceased for the un fortunate affair.

Peculiar Methods.

The aphorism that "all is fair in war" seems to be the guiding star of those whos aim it is to attract the reader's attention in the latter-day newspapers. Formerly, the casual mention of the merits of an article was all that was neces sary to attract attention ; but when the advertising columns of the papers became crowded the reader of the newspaper soon realized that too much time would be consumed in reading all of them, and, as a result, those columns were oftentimes skipped altogether.

It was then that advertising developed into a science-for the preparation of advertising matter which will attract public attention is a task which, now-a-days, requires a degree of tact and skill which not everyone possesses. The modern advertiser, aware of the public disposition to hurriealy pass over the ordinary advertisements, hus called to his assistance all conceivable ingenious advices of the printer's art, which will tend to render his advertisement attractive to the reader.

Peculiar methods are often employed—as is usual in the case of the extensive advertising, which is done in behalf of Warner's Safe Cure, the noted discovery for all diseases of the kidneys and disorders arising

What appears to the reader as current news is discovered upon perusal to be an in teresting article, which impresses the fact that kidney disease is the original cause of most lung, brain, heart and nervous disorders, and that those disorders are not disease itself, but only symptoms of a disease which can be successfully treated by the use of Warner's Safe Cure, which will remove the primary cause, and thereby restore other affected organs to a vigorous and healthy state. In this instance the advertiser succeeds in attracting the reader's attention, and not only is the name of the advertised article impressed upon the mind, but also the purposes for which its use is adapted.

COLD IN HEAD,

CONSUMPTION,

THERE is positive danger to health and life in neglecting a case of cold in the head or catarrh, and at this season, with its changeable weather, unusual moisture and sudden changes, from heat to cold, there is peculiar liability to cold in t e heat. A neglected case of cold in the head rapidly develops into catarrh, and neglected cutarrh just as certainly develops into consumption and leads to premature death. Medical testimony proves conclusively that a large percentage of all the deaths occurring from consumption had their oligin in a neglected cold, which, by gradual stages, developed into cutarrh, and then into consumption, that dread disease with which medical science is as yet unable to cope successfully. If you are suffering from cold in the head, or from any of the numerous symptoms of catarrh, such as had breath, dull oppressive headaches, droppings from the head into the throat, hawking and spitting copious discharges from the nestrils, losing sense of smell, or taste becoming dull, hacking cough, or a general feeling of debility, husky voice, a wheezing or cracking sound in your chest when breathing, eral feeling of debisity, husky voice, a wheezing or cracking sound in your chest when breathing, a feeling of cizziness, particularly when stooping, a feeling of tiredness and indisposition to exertion, a feeling of nauseau in the morning when attempting to discodge accumulations in the throat. Do not newlect them These are but a few of the many symptoms of catarrh, and if you experience any, BE WARNED IN TIME. Do not permit them to run under the m staken impression that the disease will eventually wear away. It will not, but on contrary will wear you away as it has thousands before. Procure at once a bottle of NASAL BALM, the only certain and speedy cure ever offered for cold in the head and catarrh. This is no idle assertion, but an unquestioned fact, which is verified by the thousands of testimonials in our possession telling of marvellous cures. These testimonials we have received from all parts of the Dominion, and we append a few, selected at random, as fair samples of the who'e

ALEX. I have used rowders and deaphers have been been all the ears. and douches, but all to no effect, the only result arising from the use of such was temporary relief, followed by the usual symptoms in a more aggravated form. The results arising from the use of Nasal Balm are : sweet breath, stoppage of the dropping into the throat, (consequently less hawking and spitting), clearness of hearing, and not once since I began its use have I had pain in my head. Prof. McKay Secures the First Prize For an Essay.

J. B. McKay, of the Dominion business college, Kingston, Ont., has won high honors in securing the first prize for an essay on "Teaching Writing in the Public Schools." The prize was offered by the Penman's Art Journal, New York. There were many competitions and the judge B. F. Kelley, was a gentleman who had had years of experience in such work and was fully competent to judge of the merit of the various articles. He was unaware of the names of the essayists and therefore the selection of Mr. McKay's paper makes the honor all the more prominent. The paper shows careful thought and a clear conception of the principles that should govern the teaching of such an important subject as writing in the Writing is characterized both as an art and a science, and the labor required in becoming a good penman is two-fold partly mental, partly mechanical. Mind and hand act together, the one governing a knowledge of form and a correct conception of the requisites, and the second causing welldirected practice to secure proper execution. He advised a standard. The success of a teacher depended upon his ability to impart knowledge and arouse enthusiasm in his class. Then followed a critical review of how a teacher could impart the knowledge he possessed and arouse interest in the
