A MISTAKEN IDEA.

The Oswego Times has it that "the Canadian statesmen despair of our fixing things just as they want them with the United States until they have a representative at Washington," that the representation they have at Washington at present is not of the kind they are thinking about, but that "they must be content with it until, under a proper annexation treaty, they are duly represented in both houses of congress."

And it adds: "This is a matter they are looking in the face, and to the sensible portion of them the longer they look at it the better it looks to them." A grosser misrepresentation of the spirit and desire of the Canadian parliament was never put in print.

The Times has singularly misunderstood plain speech or it would not give to the debate in the commons the colouring which it has. The idea originated with the leaders of the opposition that Canadian interests would be more successfully guarded were there at Washington an agent through whom our government could communicate with the U. S. government more directly than through correspondence, one who, well posted on Canadian affairs, would be able to render valuable assistance to the British minister, and perhaps aid in the disposal of minor matters of state without their passing through the Colonial office. A representative (in the general acceptance of the term) was never thought of. The most hoped for was an agent-general, with powers similar to those possessed by the predecessors of Sir Charles Tupper, or by Sir Charles himself in London. The motion was not part of a movement looking towards annexation, and cannot be construed to mean such without a deliberate distortion of the facts. It is true one government disapproved of the appointment, as it manages to disapprove of most of the suggestions which the opposition leaders advance, however wise and prudent they may be. It would not do to admit that any good thing can emanate from the grits, but it has been felt that the ministry would find a way, by and by, of acting upon the idea after their own fashion, and of so trying the practical effect of it. Such twaddle as that in which the Oswego Times indulges is, however, disgusting and should not have prominence in a paper so sensibly conducted.

WHO IS TO BLAME?

Five women, eminent in literature, have in a joint article to the North American Review, given their opinion upon the marriage question. The men have repeatedly said what they think of the issue, but never before have so many of the brightest intellects among the fair sex undertaken so earnestly and so candidly to solve the problem of all social problems. To the query: Is woman the more to blame for unhappiness in marriage? Rebekah Hardy Davis laments the inclination of too many women to sacrifice love for the sake of position and wealth, and the scandal and shame that so often follows the unlikely union of men and women. "If," she writes, "a woman makes amusement and luxury the end of life she will naturally sacrifice everything else to gain the rank of wealth which commands them. Ethel Newcome is sold here for dollars as in England for a title. In these mercenary marriages the wife is more guilty than the husband because she sinks lower to gain her end. Love and personal honour count far more to a woman than to a man." Still she does not think there are more unhappy marriages than fifty years ago. "There are more divorces, and divorce bills drag the secret unhappiness to light." Upon the whole, she believes that owing to downright true love, to conscience, and to the sound sense and large good humour, characteristic of the American, the vast majority of marriages in this country are happy.

Rose Terry Cook is quite philosophical. First she finds that when women marry from wrong and inexcusable motives they start on the downward path, that when they marry for money they put themselves among the lowest order of humanity. That her sale is legalized does not alter its real morals. She is actually one of the outcasts of her sex in heart and soul. Secondly, some women have a mistaken notion about the home, and want nothing instead of becoming a real help-meat to their husbands. The training of some mothers is responsible for the failure of their daughter's marriages. Thirdly, women are too impatient. They resent the thorns in their path instead of trying to blunt them, and in their impatient passion pull up roses and all. Fourthly, she is too exacting and so destroys the beautiful rest and shelter of a real home. Fifthly, women are inconsiderate and selfish and talkative, and the "unruly member" has kindled many a fire that has eaten away "honour, love, obedience, and troops of friends." Lastly,

THEY ARE JEALOUS, AND JEALOUSY WILL RUIN THE AFFECTION OF ANY HUSBAND.

If women guarded against the faults herein enumerated, and took counsel from above, marriage would cease to be a failure.

Marion Harland declares that the whole system of marrying and giving in marriage, as it exists in this country, is founded upon a blunder. Courtship is to some a deception, and matrimony must be the same. Where the cause of wedded wretchedness is not vice, or inconsistency or violent temper, the women is fester than not in fault. The whole case can be summed up thus: "Courtship is play and marriage work. The sooner women recognize the truth of the definitions and act upon them the sooner will the reproach be lifted from the honourable state and condition in which the truest and purest happiness possible in our sin-warped world is to be found or made."

Catharine Owen laments the failure in marriage to the absolute impossibility of some people to live out their ideal of the married state. Resolutions to do this and that count for nothing. Unless common sense rules the home becomes lifeless and loveless. Bad house-keeping accounts for little. Men accept all faults in this direction with infinite amiability, and in many cases where the wife is neglected and unappreciated she is unselfish and goes beyond the average of wives.

Amelia E. Barr thinks that, speaking broadly, women are to blame for unhappiness of marriage. She is fond of flattery; she is weak and gushing; she talks too much and does not talk at all; they are ignorant of the high moral duty of domestic service, and are great misery makers; they are jealous and provocative of divorce proceedings; they marry for money, and out of season, that is without regard to age. A great deal depends upon the action of women in the future. As they marry for love or for profit they will have happiness or unhappiness.

Such is the condensed thought of some of the great writers of the day, and women, on the subject that is dearest to their hearts. It is singularly agreed and reflective on the women. The criticism is merciless and for that reason calculated to do great good.

This is the best advertisement of the scenery in question that has yet appeared. There is a rich harvest to be reaped by the summer resort man who isn't afraid to lay out a little money to advertise properly the Bay of Quinte scenery.

Perfect Electric Light

Cape Vincent Eagle. Probably few cities in Canada or the United States have a more perfect system of electric lights than Kingston, our neighbor over the river. To prove this assertion one has only to cast his eye in the direction of that city on any evening and note the bright reflection that is cast on the sky, caused by the many lights of the limestone city. In fact for a long time our people mistook this reflection for northern lights, no one thinking it possible that the sky could be so brilliantly illuminated at so great a distance by artificial means. They have no flicker or sputter, but burn steadily and evenly, quite a contrast from those in use in the "wicked little city" of Watertown. Kingston may be behind the times on some things, but not on street lighting.

COLD IN HEAD, THE CONSUMPTION, CATARRH, 4 DEATH! STAGES

THERE is positive danger to health and life in neglecting a case of cold in the head or catarrh. At this season, with its changeable weather, unusual moisture and sudden changes from heat to cold, there is peculiar liability to cold in the head. A neglected case of cold in the head rapidly develops into catarrh, and neglect of catarrh just as certainly develops into consumption and leads to premature death. Medical testimony proves conclusively that a large percentage of all the deaths occurring from consumption had their origin in a neglected cold, which, by gradual stages, developed into catarrh, and thence into consumption, that dread disease with which medical science is as yet unable to cope successfully. If you are suffering from cold in the head, or from any of the numerous symptoms of catarrh, such as bad breath, dull oppressive headaches, droppings from the head into the throat, hawking and spitting, copious discharge from the nostrils, loss of sense of smell, or taste becoming dull, hacking cough, or a general feeling of chilliness, husky voice, a wheezing or crackling sound in your chest when breathing, a feeling of dizziness, particularly when stooping, a feeling of tiredness and indisposition to exertion, a feeling of nausea in the morning when attempting to dislodge accumulations in the throat. Do not neglect them. These are but a few of the many symptoms of catarrh, and if you experience any, BE WARNED IN TIME. Do not permit them to run under the mistaken impression that they will eventually wear away. If you do not, but on contrary will wear you away as it has thousands before. Procure at once a bottle of NASAL BALM, the only certain and speedy cure ever offered for cold in the head and catarrh. This is no idle assertion, but an unquestioned fact, which is verified by the thousands of testimonials in our possession telling of marvellous cures. These testimonials we have received from all parts of the Dominion, and we append a few, selected at random, as fair samples of the whole:

ALEX. BURNS, Sudbury, Ont., says: Gentlemen: I may state that I have been affected with catarrh for seven or eight years, and it was attended by consequent symptoms such as foul breath, constant droppings into the throat, hawking and spitting, partial deafness, ringing in the ears, and sickening pains in the head directly over either eye. I have used powders and douches, but all to no effect. The only relief arising from the use of such was temporary relief, followed by the usual symptoms in a more aggravated form. The results arising from the use of Nasal Balm are: sweet breath, stoppage of the droppings into the throat, consequently less hawking and spitting, easiness of hearing, and not once since I began its use have I had pain in my head. In fact it is my opinion that a cold in the head, and persistent use of the "Balm" will effect a cure in the worst case of catarrh.

Alpha H. Dale, Farbert, Ont., writes: Your Nasal Balm has made a new man of me. I have never used a remedy so satisfactory.

Miss Maggie M. Martin, Terwood, Pa., says: Through a friend in Canada I became acquainted with your Nasal Balm. I have suffered for years with catarrh, and it is the first remedy from which I have experienced relief, and I feel certain that it will cure me.

Miss Minnie McNaught, Mille Roches, Ont., says: Your bottle of Nasal Balm did me much good. The pain in my head disappeared before I had used the bottle and I find myself receiving the greatest benefit. I am certain Nasal Balm will cure any case of catarrh if its use is persevered in.

James H. McLeod, Mink River Road, N.S., says: I have tried other remedies for catarrh but received little or no good from them. Your Nasal Balm is certainly the best remedy I have tried, and all you claim for it. The fact that it is pleasant and convenient to use adds greatly to its value but its chief worth lies in being a certain cure for that unpleasant disease—catarrh.

Mr. A. Schlenzig, Toronto, says: For a number of years my wife has been badly troubled with catarrh. Dr. — here promised to cure her, but after using his remedy for six months she became worse and weaker than before, and I found that I had spent $30 for medical treatment that did no good. My wife then began to use your Nasal Balm and has improved wonderfully, and she is better and stronger than for years. Your remedy is the best in the market and you can use this as testimony.

Emilie Peletier, Grenville, says: I can scarcely find words to tell you how highly I prize Nasal Balm. Its effects in my case have been wonderful.

A CAUTION.—Beware of imitations. If your dealer has not NASAL BALM in stock do not let him persuade you to take any other remedy which he may say is just as good, but send direct to the undersigned and it will be sent to you post paid on receipt of price—50 cents and $1 a bottle.

DUNN WAS DISHED.

He Was Collared at Mattawa And Will Spend a Term in Prison.

For a year or more a diminutive tailor named T. C. Dunn has been hovering about Perth. He came originally from Sonerville, in Western Ontario, and worked for a time at Nanapan. His name was not unknown he having once been charged with forgery. Later on he got himself into a real, substantial scrape. About a month ago he went from Perth and opened a tailor shop in Portland. On Tuesday, April 9th, he hired a horse and buggy from a farmer named Brown to go to Perth to see some sick friend. As neither Dunn nor the horse and vehicle returned Mr. Brown put the officers of the law in quest of Dunn and the missing property. Mr. Soper, constable, last week got word of his appearance at Mattawa. Mr. Soper drove to Carleton Place, caught the Winnipeg train, and arrived in Mattawa in time to catch Dunn on the railway platform en route for other parts. He took his game into custody, and brought him to Perth. On Wednesday, Dunn was brought before Judge Senkler, charged with larceny of the horse and buggy, and pleading guilty, was sentenced to three years' imprisonment in the Kingston penitentiary. He confessed to having sold the horse to a man named McDonald, of Portage du Fort, for $75, and the buggy to another farmer in the vicinity named Smiley, for $25. Part of this money he had upon him, and it was recovered.

Fredrick T. Roberts, M.D., professor of clinical medicine at University college hospital, London, England, says: "Bright's disease has no symptoms of its own and may long exist without the knowledge of the patient or the practitioner, and no pain will be felt in the kidneys or their vicinity." All the diseases to which the kidneys are subject and to which they give rise can be prevented if treated in time. Warner's Safe Cure is the only recognized specific. R. A. Gunn, M.D., dean and professor of surgery of the United States medical college, editor of the "Medical Tribune," author of "Gunn's new and improved hand-book of hygiene and domestic medicine," says: "I am willing to acknowledge and commend thus frankly the value of Warner's Safe Cure."
