by the entire width of the street, or where the streets are narrow, thus obtaining in a measure the additional stability afforded by the transverse trusses of the Sixth avenue structure.

There is a great deal of talk in New York just now—though it was lulled during the centennial—over an extension which the managers of the elevated roads are endeavoring to add to their Sixth and Ninth avenue lines, but as the proposed extension would take up another portion of Battery park, a part of which the elevated roads have already usurped, and as on this account public opinion seems to be massed against the scheme, it can scarcely be predicted at this time what the outcome will be. The four tracks of the Sixth avenue and Ninth avenue lines meet at Battery park, but from that point the trains of both lines are obliged to proceed to the terminus at South ferry upon but one track. This necessitates a vast deal of shifting and delay, and besides is dangerous, the complications arising when trains on both lines are running at intervals of two minutes being very puzzling. To obviate this danger, delay and inconvenience the company is trying to get another slice of Battery park upon which to build an extension to the terminus which will curve around in the form of a loop and come together with the main lines at the point in the Battery where the two roads meet, from which point to the terminus where the structure forming the loop is to be built there will be a two track line constructed, as shown by dotted lines in the diagram. This will do away with all shifting and delay. Some of the New York newspapers are in favor of this scheme, while others are waging a fierce fight against it, their grounds being that the new structure will interfere with the poor people's enjoyment of the park.

The elevated railroads of Brooklyn, which were built later than those of New York, are constructed somewhat more solidly than the latter, and are calculated to bear a strain of 50,000 pounds to the square inch. There are several other minor improvements in construction.

"CAPITAL MOVER" REAVIS.

Death in St. Louis of a Man Who Made a Good Deal of Talk for His Theory.

For the past dozen years or so the public has heard little of "capital mover" Reavis, whose name is in the list of the recently deceased, but for half a dozen years before that he was a standing subject of praise, criticism or sneering sarcasm; for he had succeeded in getting the whole nation interested in the scheme of removing the national capital to St. Louis—or, if that was thought impracticable, to some other western locality. So far did the scheme progress that a lively contest sprang up among western congressmen, Springfield and Indianapolis being strongly urged, but the general voice finally ran in favor of selecting "some commanding point on the Mississippi river, the government itself to have all the profits from the sale of lots." The example of Nebraska in conducting a profitable speculation on the location of her own capital was strongly urged. But the tide was not taken at the full; "Boss" Shepherd completed his great improvements at Washington, the government resumed building on a large scale, and now the capital is probably fixed for all time.

Logan U. Reavis was born March 26, 1831, in Mason county, Ills., was reared in poverty and obtained but a limited education, but early displayed considerable ability as a writer. He edited the spirited Illinoisian during the early campaigns of the Republican party, and in the spring of 1866 invested in a St. Louis paper called The Press, which proved a failure. He applied at Washington for an appointment, but receiving none became embittered against the place, and his opponents assert that that was the cause of his wanting the capital removed. At any rate he kept the agitation pretty active for a few years and succeeded in getting a large convention called. He also wrote a work on "St. Louis, the Future City of the World," which was widely circulated, and was very active in schemes for improving the Mississippi. He died in poverty, leaving a widow and two small children.

LOGAN U. REAVIS.

The New Minister to Mexico.

Thomas Ryan, of Kansas, who has been appointed minister to Mexico from the United States, has lived in Kansas since 1865. He is a native of Oxford, N. Y., having been born there Nov. 25, 1837. In his early life he removed with his parents to Bradford county, Pa.

He entered the Union army in 1862, and soon attained the rank of captain of volunteers. He was wounded at the battle of the Wilderness, in consequence of which he was mustered out of the ranks in 1864. After leaving the army he took up the legal profession in Topeka, Kan., with considerable success. For eight years he held the position of county attorney and for four years was assistant United States attorney. Mr. Ryan has, since the Forty-sixth congress, been a representative in the lower house of the national legislature.

Irish Insincerity.

That there is a charge of insincerity against the Irish we all know. But is there insincerity nowhere else? Is Ireland alone to be condemned for that? I quite acknowledge that it is torture to any one Irish born to say "no" if "yes" be the word required by his or her companion, but is there no amiability to be deduced from this? False amiability, no doubt, but still with something lovable about it.

They will probably tell you, if asked, that you are looking your best when every fiber of their artistic nature is shuddering at the particularly hideous bonnet or suit you are wearing. They will admire beyond everything your new trap, the bilious painting of which is annoying them beyond measure. They will heartily congratulate you on the purchase of that new mare-of-yours, and call it faultless with one eye upon the splint on the off foreleg. But this is all done with a view to making you at ease with yourself and your surroundings, and to throw a halo of glory over your otherwise rather shabby possessions.

As to any viler insincerities, why there are rogues in all nations, and most of them far deeper dyed than any Ireland has produced!—"The Duchess" in Philadelphia Times.

LANARK LACONICS.

A Gust of News From Our Ever Active Correspondent.

May 8.—Our brass band gave fine music in the streets on Thursday evening last. They deserved the hearty applause given.

A successful social was held in the parsonage of the Congregational church on Thursday evening to welcome William N. Bessey, student, who will occupy the pulpit during the summer. There was a large attendance of members and friends from other churches, and a pleasant evening was spent. The general expectation among the jobbers in this section is to come out behind, financially, this spring.

In consequence of unusually low water in the Clyde, Mississippi and other rivers a large number of saw logs will have to remain in the various creeks running into these rivers until next spring for without a heavy rain fall soon the creeks will not float even tims. McLaren and Edwards alone have 75,000 logs stuck.

Charles Smith's little boy, reported very ill last week, died on Saturday at 2 a.m. The funeral on Sunday afternoon was largely attended.

One of John Crawford's horses dropped dead on the road shortly after he left the village for his home of the 2nd inst. Cause unknown.

A. Cohen has completed the erection of a large store with plate glass front. This makes the third store of that class erected within a short time, the other two being owned by John Manahan and C. A. Farmer. This new style of buildings has added greatly to the appearance of our streets. We hope more of our merchants will follow the enterprising lead.

The honor roll for Lanark village public school is: 1st dep., 2nd class: 1st, Willie Pye; 2nd, John Taylor; 3rd, Della Craine. Senior Part II: 1st, Rachel Mendler; 2nd, Annie Perkins; 3rd, Daniel Kennedy. Junior Part II: 1st, Samuel Easton; 2nd, Fred Perkins; 3rd, Willie Robertson. 2nd dep., senior 3rd class: 1st, Carrie McLaren; 2nd, Lizzie Sheriff; 3rd, Howard McLartyre. Junior 3rd class: 1st, Blanche Douraway; 2nd, Martha Watt; 3rd, Max Gordon. 2nd class: 1st, Jennie Smith; 2nd, Alice Pepper; 3rd, Lorna Prentice.

ODESSA SENDS GREETING.

Life in the Churches, the Shingle Mills and the Schools.

May 8.—Thursday morning Fred Cairns, employed in the shingle mill, had his right forearm badly cut. The circular saw sank lengthwise the arm and between the bones exposing the artery, neither of which were seriously injured.

The cheese factory, under the efficient superintendence of S. D. Clark, will soon commence operations.

Mrs. Fred Friese arrived home from Ireland last week. Miss Lettie Kinneborough is visiting friends at Wilton; Miss Hilda Smith has returned from Ottawa. Adam Wiseman returned from Watertown; Phil B. Watts, Montreal, and J. A. Preston are visiting here.

The Church of England congregation have purchased the stone church from the Methodists. The Salvation army have been using it and turned it over on Monday to the purchasers in a creditable state of repair. For the present the army will hold open air meetings.—Bishop Cleary will be here Sunday next, partially in the interest of the proposed new Catholic church, which, according to the plans, will be not only a credit to the congregation but to the village as well.—According to summer custom, service in the Methodist church commences at 7 p.m.—Miss Lizzie Watts and Miss Kate Henzy are collecting on behalf of the Methodist missionary fund, and are successful.

Friday last, Arbor day, was devoted by the school children in beautifying the school grounds.

The honor roll of the public school is thus: Fifth senior, Archie Young, Ada Montgomery; fifth junior, Essie McCombs, Florence Walker, Ethel Mabey, Agatha Booth; fourth senior, Nellie Fraser, Floss Derbyshire, Ernest Young, Gully Watts; fourth junior, Sadie Davey, Allie McCormack, Annie Snider, Lettie Kinneborough; third senior, Edith Hemstead, Elton Hartman, Jessie Chamberlin, Charles Watts; third junior, Carrie Steinburg, Gertie Bennett, George Barry, Willie Cairns; second senior, Theresa Young, Esther Chamberlin, Harry Jones, Lena Edmonds; second junior, Lena Hartman, Laura Davy, Maud McConnell, Philip Oswald; senior part second, Minnie Wright, Frank Jones, Madge Hemstead, Mabel Laidley; junior part second, Ada Babcock, Horace Mahee, Ethel Chamberlin, Archie Babcock; part first, Kenneth Laidley, Willie Scott, Rupert Smith, Frank Morrison. Average attendance 116.8.

ASTONISHED THE NATIVES.

A Youthful Preacher Creates Excitement at Newman, Ga.

ATLANTA, Ga., May 9.—Jimmie Cook, the boy preacher of Carroll county, addressed a crowded house at Newman, Ga., last night. He is 12 years old, weighs about 50 pounds, and is not over three and one-half feet high. He was born in Coweta county, of humble parentage, and is very illiterate, yet his sermon was something wonderful. He went upon the platform in the presence of an intellectual audience, Luelt down in silent prayer, then read a chapter in the bible, asked the audience to sing something, after which he made a brief prayer. In his sermon he kept close to his text, made many quotations from the bible, and interpreted the parable of the virgin referred to in the chapter which he read. He says that he was converted last summer. The audience took up a collection for him at the close of the meeting.

T. GRANGER STUART, M.D., F.R.S.E., Ordinary Physician to H. M. the Queen in Scotland, Professor of Practice of Physic in the University of Edinburgh writes: "Acute bronchitis is common especially in the advanced stages of Bright's disease, and tends to pass into the chronic state. Phthisis (consumption) in its various forms is found occasionally associated with these renal (kidney) affections. It usually proves fatal while the renal malady is yet in its early stage." It thus becomes evident that consumption and bronchitis are intimately associated with kidney disease and Warner's Safe Cure should be taken early in the disease to prevent the damaging influence the kidney malady exerts upon the respiratory organs. Meeting one of Patti's friends, her divorced husband, the Marquis de Caux, said: "Be kind enough to ask madame to send her former husband a ticket." He got it.

Four Oil City ladies met on one of our streets the other day and talked five minutes without uttering a single word of gossip. A great many strange things happen in Oil City.
