IN THE COLD, COLD EARTH

DR. TANNER, FASTER, WILL GO AND BURY HIMSELF.

Dr. Tanner Winning One Thousand Dollars—He Will Now Bury Himself—The Resuscitation of a Brahmin Fakir—The Rungeet Singh Had to Believe Him.

The celebrated Dr. Henry S. Tanner, who nine years ago made himself a forty days' wonder by trying to starve himself, is about to come to the front again and set the people agog by getting into a coffin and being buried under ground. It was early in 1880 that Dr. William A. Hammond offered a certain Mollie Faucher, of Brooklyn, who claimed to have lived fourteen years without food, $1,000 if she would consent to be watched for one month, and not take any food during that period. Dr. Tanner, living at the time in Minneapolis, saw the challenge, and offered to perform the experiment. Dr. Hammond agreed, and on the 28th day of June, 1880, at noon, began a fast which lasted, not thirty, but forty, days. He lost ten pounds of flesh during this period, but did not suffer in health. He took no food whatever, but drank all the water he wanted. On the morning of the fortieth day he sat with a peach in his hand, peeling it at a few minutes before noon. At 12 o'clock he ate the peach, which was followed by other fruit and more substantial food. The experiment was performed to the satisfaction of the watchers, and Dr. Tanner won the $1,000.

Tanner has experimented upon himself and dieted with a view to gaining sufficient strength and control of his forces to enable him to gain every advantage. One of the acts which enables one to live in this comatose condition is throwing the tongue into the gullet, so that a radical change of the circulation of the blood occurs, the conditions thus effected being similar to those just before birth, where there is no respiration.

Sir Charles Martin Wade, governor general in the Lahore district of the British empire in India, has given a statement of the resuscitation of a Brahmin fakir who had been thus buried. Sir Charles had not seen the interment, but witnessed the resurrection. He accompanied an Indian prince, Runjeet Singh, who testified to the burial, to the building in which the body had been inclosed. The only door to the sepulcher had been closed with hard, dried mud, the padlock of which had been sealed with the private seal of Runjeet Singh. The seal, which was found unbroken, was taken off, the door unlocked, and the place where the fakir was buried entered by Runjeet Singh, Sir Charles Wade and a servant, who descended with a torch to the cell where the body had been placed in a wooden box, sealed and locked. The writer thus describes what followed:

"On being opened by the servant we saw a figure inclosed in a bag of white linen, fastened by a string over the head. The servant lifted the body out, and Runjeet Singh and I descended further into the cell, which was so small that we were only able to sit on the floor in front of the body, and so close to it that our hands and knees came in contact with it.

"The servant then began pouring warm water over the figure, but to satisfy myself against fraud I tore open the bag, which looked mildewed, as though it had been long buried. The legs and arms were stiff and shriveled, the face full, and the head reclining on the shoulder like that of a corpse. I then summoned medical gentlemen, who came and inspected the body critically, but could discover no pulsation of the heart, the temple or the arm.

"The servant then recommenced bathing him with hot water and gradually relaxing the legs and arms from the rigid state in which they were contracted, Runjeet Singh taking the right and I the left, to aid by friction in restoring them to their proper action, during which time the servant placed a hot wheat cake about an inch thick on the top of the head, renewing it two or three times. He then pulled out of the ears and nostrils the wax and cotton with which they were stopped, and, after great exertion, opened his mouth by inserting the point of a knife between his teeth, and, while holding the jaws open with his left hand, drew the tongue forward with his right, in the course of which the tongue flew back several times to its curved position upward, in which it had originally been, to close the gullet. He next rubbed the eyelids a while with clarified butter until he succeeded in opening them, when the eyes appeared quite motionless and glassy.

"After the hot cake had been applied the third time to the top of the head, the body was violently convulsed, the nostrils became inflated when respiration ensued, and the limbs began to assume a natural fullness; but the pulsation was yet faintly perceptible. The servant then put some butter on the tongue and made him swallow it. A few minutes after the eyeballs became dilated and assumed their natural color, when the fakir, recognizing Runjeet Singh sitting close to him, articulated in a hollow, sepulchral tone, scarcely audible: 'Do you believe me now?' Runjeet Singh replied in the affirmative, and invested the fakir with an elaborate pearl necklace, costly gold bracelets, pieces of silk, muslins, shawls, etc."

Dyspepsia.
Much will necessarily depend upon the care exercised in the selection of food, which is all important to the dyspeptic. Hamilton's Pills may be used with the greatest benefit in cases where liver and bowels complications are produced by or are a result of dyspepsia. Commence with one pill every second day immediately after dinner, and reduce the dose gradually until one quarter of a pill only is taken, which will be found sufficient to stimulate the liver and assist in the more perfect assimilation of food in the stomach. Dyspepsics, try Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butter-nut.

When baby was sick, we gave her Castoria. When she was a child, she cried for Castoria. When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria. When she had children, she gave them Castoria.

Have You Neuralgia?

If you are suffering the agonies of neuralgia, and have failed to get a remedy that will afford relief, we want you to try Poison's Nerviline. No remedy in the market has given any thing like the same degree of satisfaction. Its action on nerve pain is simply marvellous, and as it is put up in 10 cent sample bottles no great expense is involved in giving it a trial. Poison's Nerviline is the most pleasant, powerful, and certain pain remedy in the world. Sold by druggists and all dealers in medicine, 10 and 25 cents a bottle.

WILLIAM H. BARNUM.

A Noted Democratic Politician Who Has Passed Away.

The Hon. William H. Barnum, famous for his able management of several Democratic campaigns, whose death was lately announced, was born Sept. 17, 1818, in Columbia county, N. Y., but moved over the line into Connecticut at an early age and entered the business of iron manufacture at Lime Rock, Litchfield county, of that State. In this he prospered so soon that at an early age he became proprietor of the principal blast furnaces and forges in the Housatonic valley. Through all his life he was an earnest Democrat, ever ready to aid his party with counsel or cash.

W. H. BARNUM.

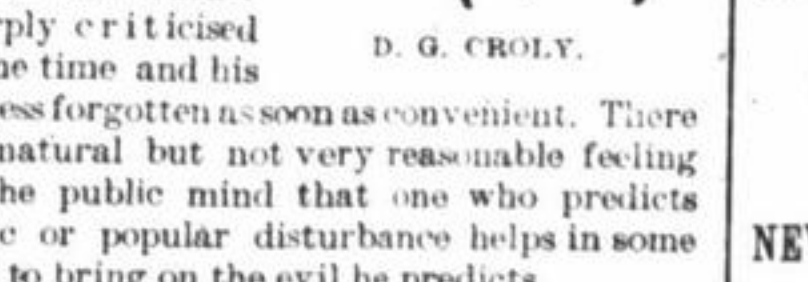

After serving a term in the state legislature he was elected to the Fortieth, Forty-first and Forty-second congresses, and on May 22, 1876, took his seat in the United States senate, having been chosen to fill the unexpired term of Senator Ferry, deceased. In 1879 he was succeeded by Orville H. Platt, and thereafter turned his attention to managing the national affairs of his party.

His management practically began in 1872, when, as a member of the national committee, he was charged with important duties; in 1876, his work was still more valuable, and in 1880 he was unanimously named chairman of the committee, and again in 1884 and 1888. His great wealth, extensive acquaintance and shrewd business management enabled him to do the best possible for his party, and almost to wrest victory from the jaws of defeat. It may be said that he sacrificed himself to his party, as he persisted in remaining at his post in the performance of all his duties to the end of the campaign, though his physician had warned him a month before that it was at the peril of his life. When the task was completed the reins fell from his nerveless hands, the reaction left him completely exhausted, and he never recovered any fair measure of strength. His native ability was improved only by a common school education and long experience, and both in business and politics he was noted for the promptness with which he met an emergency.

David G. Croly.

David Goodman Croly, the recently deceased writer, was at one time quite noted on account of the remarkable fulfillment of some very remarkable prophecies which he made on purely philosophic principles. Writing as a "positivist" or sociologist in the early part of 1873, he predicted the crash in the Northern Pacific railroad, the panic, the fall of wages, labor riots, decline in prices and a change in the political government of the nation in 1876—all fulfilled except the last. He put forth the doctrine that a close study of the past would often enable us to predict the future social condition with absolute certainty; but the American people do not take kindly to prophets, so he was rather sharply criticised at the time and his success forgotten as soon as convenient. There is a natural but not very reasonable feeling in the public mind that one who predicts panic or popular disturbances helps in some way to bring on the evil he predicts.

Mr. Croly was born in Coghnaquity, County Cork, Ireland, Nov. 3, 1829, and came to the United States in 1854. He learned the trade of silversmith, but very early went into journalism, marrying Miss Jennie Cunningham, known to the reading public as "Jennie June." They lost their all in an unfortunate journalistic enterprise at Rockford, Ill., then attained success in New York city, where Mr. Croly was at one time managing editor of The World and at another of The Graphic. He was a man of very many curious theories and apt suggestions, as strange a mixture of the severely practical and the visionary as can be found in the profession. He leaves a wife and three children. The daughter Viola is an actress, as was his daughter Minnie, who died a few years ago.

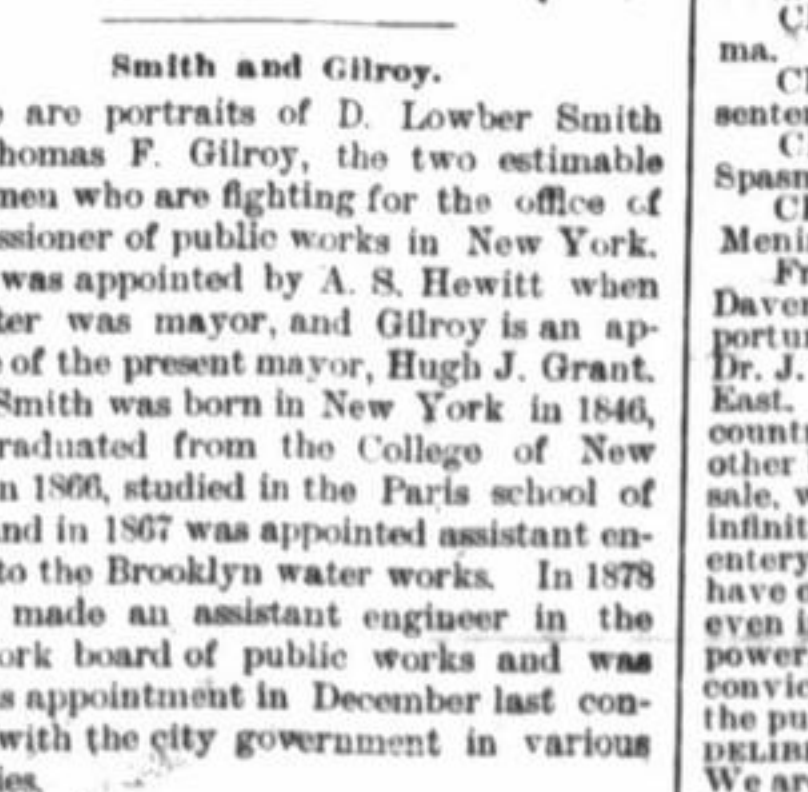

D. G. CROLY.

Southwest.
To the true born westerner, in whom the instinct of moving on to find a more desirable country never dies, not even the Pacific ocean can be a barrier.
A man of this class, who had lived successively in a number of states and territories between his native Ohio and his present home in California, one day had a revival of his migratory longing. He must "pack his grip" and "go west."
"But how can you get any farther west than California?" he was asked.
"Shaw!" he answered. "There's plenty of west left, all down through Mexican California and South America. There's Peru, now. I'd give a good deal to see the mines down there. I tell you, sir," he cried, warming with his subject, "it must be real good and wesy down in Peru!"—Youth's Companion.

Smith and Gilroy.

Here are portraits of D. Lowber Smith and Thomas F. Gilroy, the two estimable gentlemen who are fighting for the office of commissioner of public works in New York. Smith was appointed by A. S. Hewitt when the latter was mayor, and Gilroy is an appointee of the present mayor, Hugh J. Grant.
Mr. Smith was born in New York in 1846, was graduated from the College of New York in 1866, studied in the Paris school of mines and in 1867 was appointed assistant engineer to the Brooklyn water works. In 1878 he was made an assistant engineer in the New York board of public works and was until his appointment in December last connected with the city government in various capacities.

D. LOWBER SMITH. THOMAS F. GILROY.

Thomas F. Gilroy is now in his 40th year, having been born in Ireland in 1840. When but 5 years of age he came to America with his parents, and received a thorough public school education, graduating from the College of the City of New York, and afterward learning the painting trade. The official positions which he has held are those of clerk of the supreme court, chambers; clerk of the ninth district civil court, deputy county clerk and under sheriff.

HAINES & LOCKETT.

Dr. J. - Collis - Browne - Chlorodyne.

THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE.

ADVICE TO INVALIDS—If you wish to obtain quiet, refreshing sleep, free from headache relief from pain and anguish to calm and assuage the weary aching of protracted disease, in relieving the nervous media, and regulating the circulating systems of the body you will provide yourself with that marvellous remedy discovered by Dr. J. Collis Browne (late Army Medical Staff) to which he gave the name of CHLOROXYNE, and which is admitted by the profession to be the most wonderful and valuable remedy ever discovered. CHLOROXYNE is the best remedy known for Coughs, Consumption, Bronchitis and Asthma.
CHLOROXYNE acts like a charm in Diarrhoea, and is the only specific in Cholera and Dysentery.
CHLOROXYNE effectually cuts short all attacks of Epilepsy, Hysteria, Palpitation and Spasms.
CHLOROXYNE is the only palliative in Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Cancer, Toothache, Meningitis, &c.
From Sykes & Co., Pharmaceutical Chemists, Medical Hall, Simla, Jan. 5, 1880. To J. T. Davenport, Esq., 33 Great Russell Street, Bloomsbury, London. Dear Sir:—We embrace this opportunity of congratulating you upon the wide-spread reputation this justly esteemed medicine Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne, has earned for itself, not only in Hindoostan, but all over the East. As a remedy of general utility we must question whether a better is imported into the country, and we shall be glad to hear of its finding a place in every Anglo-Indian home. The other brands, we are happy to say, are now relegated to the native bazaars, and judging from their sale, we fancy that their sojourn there will be but evanescent. We could multiply instances "ad infinitum" of the extraordinary efficacy of Dr. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne in Diarrhoea and Dysentery, Spasms, Cramps, Neuralgia, the Vomiting of Pregnancy, and as a general sedative, that have occurred under our personal observation during many years. In Cholera, Diarrhoea, and even in the more terrible form of Cholera Asiatica, we have witnessed its surprisingly controlling power. We have never used any other form of this medicine than Collis Browne's, from a firm conviction that it is decidedly the best, and also from a sense of duty we owe to the profession and the public, as we are of the opinion that the substitution of any other than Collis Browne's is a DELIBERATE BREACH OF FAITH ON THE PART OF THE CHEMIST, TO PRESCRIBER AND PATIENT ALIKE. We are, Sir, faithfully yours, Sykes & Co., Members of the Pharmacy Society of Great Britain. His Excellency the Viceroy's Chemist.

CAUTION—Vice Chancellor Sir Page Wood stated that Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE was undoubtedly the inventor of CHLOROXYNE; that the story of the defendant Freeman was deliberately untrue, which, he regretted to say, had been sworn to.—See "Times," July 13, 1884. We are, Sir, faithfully yours, Sykes & Co., 11a, each. None is genuine without the words "D. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLOROXYNE" on the Government Stamp. Overwhelming medical testimony accompanies each bottle.
CAUTION—Beware of Piracy and Imitation. Sole Manufacturer, T. J. DAVENPORT 33 Great Russell Street, Bloomsbury, London, Eng.
