

AYER & CO'S NOTICE

Be Sure

To ask for Ayer's Sarsaparilla, if you are in need of a Blood-purifier—the only certain and reliable remedy for pimples, blotches, and all other eruptions of the skin. As an alterative, Ayer's Sarsaparilla, after a trial of nearly half a century, is universally conceded to be the best ever discovered. It is agreeable to the taste, and, being highly concentrated, only small doses are needed.

An old lady of eighty, Mrs. Mary C. Ames, of Rockport, Me., after forty years of suffering from a humor in the blood, manifesting itself in Erysipelas and other distressing eruptions on the skin, at last began the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and, after taking ten bottles, she is now, she says, "as smooth and fair as ever."

Leander S. McDonald, of Soley st., Charlestown, Mass., suffered greatly from Boils and Carbuncles, and for nearly two months was unable to work. A druggist advised him to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla, after using two bottles of which he was entirely cured. He has remained in good health ever since.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla, Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass. Sold by all Druggists. Price $1; six bottles, $5.

YOUNG FOLKS' COLUMN.

FOR THE SPECIAL ENTERTAINMENT OF OUR BOYS AND GIRLS.

An Often Repeated Experience in May Day Excursions Again Told, with Pleading Diversions in the Way of Realistic and Amusing Illustrations.

Oh! 'tis bland, and oh, 'tis bloomy, for it's May; Could there be a more delightful season, pray? How the sunbeams skip and scatter, And the sparrows chirp and chatter, And the sweetly scented breezes softly stray! And we're glad some, and we're glad, and we're glad, And we're highly happy hearted, For we're blithely, briskly started, For a joyful, jolind, jolly holiday.

WE ARE GLAD SOME AND GLEEFUL And oh, 'tis glum and gloomy, though 'tis May; Could there be a more distressing season, say? We must hustle, we must hurry, In a flutter and a flurry, For the sky is direly dark and I grindly gray, And we'll have to hasten home the shortest way; And we scuffle and we scamper! What a dreary, drizzly, dreadful holiday!

WE SCUTTLE AND WE SCAMPER. —St. Nicholas.

The Lady Bug's History.

Almost every boy and girl can tell what a lady bug looks like, and there are few who have not heard the old rhyme: Lady bug, lady bug, fly away home, Your house is on fire, your children will burn. It is doubtful if any of our youthful readers know, however, just why the bug is called lady bug or why her house is always supposed to be on fire. Following is a bit of history on the subject originally gleaned for the benefit of Harper's Young People: Lady bugs are supposed to appear suddenly on St. Barnaby's day (the 11th of June), and for that reason were first called St. Barnaby's bees. Now, St. Barnaby was noted for his good works, and for administering comfort to the afflicted, and it was thought that he sent the bugs, and taught them to be useful to men by destroying plant lice and other insects that feed upon trees and flowering shrubs.

In other places they are known as "Our Ladybird," evidently called after the Virgin Mary; also golden bug, May bug, blessed cow, golden knap, lady cow, barn bee, cussow ladies and dandy cows.

One of the old rhymes says: Lady bug, lady bird, sigh thy way home; Thy house is on fire, thy children all roam, Except little Nan, who sits in her room, Weaving gold lace as fast as she can. Then fly to the east and fly to the west— Fly to those that I love best.

There are several species of these little bugs, and all of them are said to be useful in destroying insects so small that the human eye can not see them.

But no matter whether they do good or not, I think there are very few children who would willingly kill a lady bug, or forget to say whenever they find one: Lady bug, lady bug, fly away home! Your house is on fire, your children will burn.

Things Boys Should Learn.

To shut doors without slamming. To shut them in winter to keep the cold out. To do errands promptly and cheerfully. To get ready to go away without the united efforts of mother and sisters. To be gentle to his little sisters. To be kind to all animals. To have a dog, if possible, and make a companion of him. To ride, row, shoot and swim. To be manly and courageous. To let cigarettes alone. To tell the truth.

Mary Had a Little Lamb.

The real Mary who "Had a Little Lamb" is now 82 years of age and resides in Somerville, Mass. Her name is Mrs. Mary E. Tyler. When a child she lived in the little country village of Sterling, Mass., not far from Worcester, and had a pet founding lamb, which really "followed her to school" and hid under her seat. When the little lamb made its appearance before the school it caused such a disturbance among the scholars that "the teacher turned it out." John Roulstone wrote the original poem of three verses, but two more were added by a Mrs. Townsend.

Phonographic Dolls.

Our little girls have had dolls that opened and shut their eyes, that cried, and that walked. And now has appeared the greatest wonder of all, the phonographic dolls, with voices clear and loud; dolls that can repeat Mother Goose's melodies and other juvenile poems. These dolls are sufficiently large to admit of the insertion in their bodies of one of those wonderful talking machines which scientists have named phonographs.

Anecdote of a German Philosopher.

A German boy was reading a book and thunder novel. Right in the midst of it he said to himself: "Now, this will never do; I get too much excited over it. I cannot study so well after it. So here goes!" and he flung the trashy book out into the river. That resolute boy was Fichte, the great German philosopher, on account of whose life and works you will find in the encyclopedia.

United States Mints.

There are five United States mints, only three of which are used as mints, at Philadelphia, New Orleans, San Francisco, Denver and Carson City. The first three are still coming. Coins struck at Philadelphia are not marked. "S." stands for the San Francisco mint, "O." for the New Orleans mint, "C. C." for the Carson City mint.

THE CURIOSITY SHOP.

"Masterly Inactivity"—Origin of the Expression—Used in the Civil War. The Imperial Dictionary attributes the phrase "masterly inactivity" to Sir J. Mackintosh, who said: "The commons, faithful to their system, remained in a wise and masterly inactivity." Mr. Fletcher, assistant in the Watkinson library, of Hartford, wrote to London News and Queries in 1870 that "it was in very common use in the United States during the late civil war, as descriptive of the policy of some of our generals who were in favor of letting the rebellion die a natural death." Another authority insisted that Cowper must have originated the idea if not the phrase, in these lines: When admirals extol'd for standing still, Or doing nothing with a deal of skill.

Then another remarks that "masterly inactivity" was easy to say after Cowper's line was written. In London Notes and Queries, Sept. 17, 1859, a correspondent has this note: "This expression was used by the late John C. Calhoun in a debate in the senate of the United States upon the acquisition of Cuba, in which he alleged that when the proper time came Cuba would gravitate toward the United States, and that in the meanwhile the policy of the United States was a masterly inactivity."

Vitus Behring. Behring Straits are named from Vitus Behring, who was a navigator in the Russian service. He was born in Denmark in 1680 and died in 1741. He entered the Russian naval service in 1704, was made a captain by Peter the Great, served with distinction in the war between Russia and Sweden, and in 1725 was placed in command of an expedition of discovery in the Arctic seas. Returning from this, he was in 1778 placed in command of another expedition to the seas bordering upon the northeastern part of Siberia. The explorations connected with the expedition lasted several years, in the course of which he discovered that the continents of Asia and America were separated by the narrow strait which bears his name. On June 4, 1741, he again set sail from Okhotsk, in command of two vessels. He sailed apparently as far north as latitude 69 degs., but stormy weather and sickness in his crews compelled him to return. He was wrecked on a desolate island in latitude 55 degs. 22 min. north, longitude 168 degs. east, where he died. This island and the sea in which it lies still bears his name. He founded the Russian settlement of Petropavlovsk in Kamchatka. The adjacent coasts of Behring Strait are uninhabited. Russia acquired her American possessions, which she sold to the United States, by virtue of the right of discovery. Vitus Behring, as above explained, having in 1741 discovered the rocky range of mountains, the crowning peak of which is Mount St. Elias.

Salt. There are many interesting facts connected with salt which it is well sometimes to remember. To begin with the name itself, a curious fact is to be noted. Salt was formerly regarded as a compound resulting from the union of hydrochloric acid, as it is to be called, muriatic acid and soda, and hence the generic term of salt was applied to all substances produced by the combination of a base with an acid. Sir Humphrey Davy, however, showed that during their action on each other both the acid and the alkali underwent decomposition, and that while water is formed by the union of the oxygen of the alkali and the hydrogen of the acid the sodium of the former combines with the chlorine of the latter to form a chloride of sodium, and this term is the scientific designation of salt, which, paradoxical as it may seem, is not a salt. Chloride of sodium must be considered economically under two heads, relating respectively to sea or bay salt and to rock or mineral salt. The one is probably derived from the other, most salt rock deposits bearing evidence of having been formed at remote geological periods by evaporation from the sea.

He Broke Down at Last. Morphy, the celebrated chess player, could play several games of chess simultaneously without seeing any of the boards on which the various games were being conducted. It was certainly a wonderful feat of memory, to see how attention and abstraction were retained throughout—a most extraordinary feat, and one performed by him over and over again, as he used to stand alone attacking and defending himself against the several opponents who were arrayed against him. That his brain at last gave way and that he died insane proves that physiology has something to say to memory. Like every other gift, memory must be used with discretion, or else the frail frame with which the mind is associated may be shattered by overstraining and what has been the best may be corrupted into the worst. A wonderful genius may degenerate into an idiot.

A Small Typewriter.

A typewriter, so diminutive in size as almost to justify the term "pocket typewriter," has recently been invented. Its extreme dimensions are four inches by three inches, and its weight is less than four and a half ounces. Yet it carries all the characters necessary in ordinary correspondence on the inner edge of the revolving disk, which forms the principal feature of the machine. The whole frame travels across the paper, which consequently may be of any size, and a roller, to which a spacing check is fitted, secures an absolute straightness and evenness in the line of printing.

English Official Salaries.

No two office holders in Great Britain, not reckoning the members of the royal family, draw salaries of £10,000, but several offices in the colonies have such salaries attached. For example, the ambassador to France gets £10,000 a year and a house; so does the governor general of Canada. The viceroy of India has a salary of £25,000 and several residences; the lord lieutenant of Ireland has £27,000 and residences. The lord chief justice of England gets £8,000 a year.

Watch Statistics.

The average watch is composed of 175 different pieces, comprising upward of 2,400 separate and distinct operations in its manufacture. The balance has 18,000 beats or vibrations per hour, 12,000,000 in thirty days, 157,000,000 in one year. It travels 1 43-100 inches with each vibration, which is equal to 9 1/2 miles in twenty-four hours, 22 1/2 miles in thirty days, or 3,558 1/2 miles in one year.
