It Makes You Hungry

"I have used Paine's Celery Compound and it has had a salutary effect. It invigorated the system and I feel like a new man. It improves the appetite and facilitates digestion."—J. T. CORLAND, Primus, S. C.
Spring medicine means more now-a-days than it did ten years ago. The winter of 1888-89 has left the nerves all fagged out. The nerves must be strengthened, the blood purified, liver and bowels regulated. Paine's Celery Compound—the Spring medicine of to-day—does all this, as nothing else can. Prescribed by Physicians, Recommended by Druggists, Endorsed by Ministers, Guaranteed by the Manufacturers to be

The Best Spring Medicine.

"In the spring of 1887 I was all run down. I would get up in the morning with so tired a feeling, and was so weak that I could hardly get around. I bought a bottle of Paine's Celery Compound, and before I had taken it a week I felt very much better. I can cheerfully recommend it to all who need a building up and strengthening medicine."—Mrs. B. A. Dow, Burlington, Vt.

MISCELLANY.

Elijah M. Haines.
Elijah M. Haines, the "sage of Waukegan" as he was jocularly called, whose death was lately announced, served in the ranks of more than one party and did several things well. Before the war he was an independent, during the war an ardent supporter of the Lincoln administration, soon after an "Andy Johnson man" and a candidate for congress on that ticket, and subsequently a Democrat with extremely independent tendencies which sometimes showed themselves in rather amusing ways. All this time he was doing a great deal of good writing, published several works on the laws relating to townships, local organizations and law practice before justices, as well as a history of Lake county, Illinois. He leaves a recent exhaustive work on the American Indians and the manuscript of another giving his recollections for fifty years. Mr. Haines was born in western New York, but removed to Illinois in 1835, when he was about 12 years old. For forty years, ever since he became a voter, he has been active in Illinois politics, and has held many offices, the highest being that of state superintendent of schools. He was a representative from Lake county in the legislature of 1881, and in the constitutional convention of 1889, and again in the legislature continuously from 1871 till his death. It may be said that he was twice speaker of the Illinois house of representatives, but whether he was rightfully so the second time was long a matter of controversy, and this it was that gave Mr. Haines a national fame.

The two parties were a tie in the legislature and Mr. Haines an "unknown quantity" he organized a party for himself, and when expostulated with, replied: "Gentlemen, I have always admired the English system by which the speaker must go with the majority; now if the Democrats will elect me, I will be with them and make a majority," and they had to do it. The result was a contest prolonged till one Democratic member died, the Republicans secured his successor, and so Gen. Logan was chosen United States senator. Many anecdotes are told of the amusing ways in which he often threw the house into confusion, but no matter how absurd his conduct seemed at the time, it always turned out that he had one object in view, and he nearly always accomplished it, the opposition being thrown off their guard by what they regarded as his buffoonry. He was peculiarly vigilant in guarding the interests of his constituents. One of his peculiarities was that he would never tell his age; but as he often told of himself and brother walking from Detroit to Chicago when he was but 12 years old, it is assumed that he was born in 1822 or 1823.

A Pointer.

As every reader of this paper knows, it has become one of the fine arts to write attractive and interesting advertisements—especially medical ones.

Now it seems to us that if, for instance, the world-wide advertisers of Warner's Safe Remedies would adopt a style whereby they could work in a startling story of, say—wolves, we believe the immense sales of their medicines could be still more largely increased. We give them the benefit of the idea at any event. Let it commence like this—

"Patter! Patter! Patter!"
There it is again. It is not fifty yards from where he last halted. The steps are too light for those of an Indian. A grizzly would rush upon its victim with a roar of defiance and anger. A panther would hurl himself through thirty feet of space, with a scream to unnerve the hardiest hunter. "Wolves," whispers the hunter, as a howl suddenly bursts upon his ear.

"Wolves! the gaunt grizzly wolves of the foot-hills—thin and poor and hungry and savage—the legs tireless—the mouth full of teeth which can crack the shoulder-bone of a buffalo. He can see their dark forms & fit from point to point—the patter of their feet upon the parched grass proves that he is surrounded—yet no more in danger, and no more effectually surrounded than he who trifles with the symptoms of kidney disease. And you, reader, know whether or not you are a victim to its insidious encroachment. If your back aches, if your eyesight is failing, if your appetite is fickle, if your urine is not clear and of a pale straw color, do not hesitate on the prairie of danger, but flee to the nearest haven of safety, and resort to the only known cure for kidney and liver troubles, Warner's Safe Cure. It is a duty you owe, not only to yourself but to your family and society at large.

Delays are dangerous.
Had the traveller had not been overtaken in the night, and unarmed, the wolves would have had no terrors for him. We warn you just now, in broad daylight, before the wolves of disease sink their poisoned fangs deeply into your flesh and the night of death settles down upon you, to stop your ears to prejudice and bigotry, and to fly to safety through the means we have pointed out.

Material Now Wasted.
Mr. Bawden makes this calculation on the fuel question: Every thousand feet of sawed lumber will furnish one half cord of wood. There is shipped down some of the rivers a large quantity of saw logs, probably on an average, yearly, of 45,000,000 feet, which would give 22,500 cords of wood, and from which they could obtain thirty-five bushels of charcoal per cord. Allowing one hundred bushels of charcoal per ton—the year's shipment of timber would smelt about 7,000 tons of iron.

The most remote point reached by George Kennan in his Siberian trip was the mines of Kara, 5,000 miles from St. Petersburg and about 1,000 miles from the Pacific coast. The narrative of his adventures at these mines will begin in the June Century and be continued through several numbers. The mines are the private property of the Tsar, are worked for his benefit, and it is to them that the revolutionists are sent when the Tsar is pleased to commute a death sentence to penal servitude in the mines. Hence an unusual number of political prisoners are gathered at Kara.
