THE CZAR'S GREAT PERIL.

LATEST ATTEMPT TO SHOOT THE EMPEROR OF RUSSIA.

The Story of the Latest Attempt at His Life as Related by a Parisian Correspondent.—The Czar and One of His Nobles Have a Fight.

PARIS, May 20.—The beautiful Empress of Russia had nearly recovered from the shock of the Borik accident when another attempt was made on the czar's life, and fears are now entertained in St. Petersburg that she will soon be added to the already long list of imperial and royal lunatics.

The czar refused to believe that Troubetzki would attempt to kill him, and summoned the prince to his presence. What happened then is not exactly known, beyond that a shot was fired. Some say that the czar shot at and killed Troubetzki; others that Troubetzki fired at and missed the emperor.

THEY WERE NOT HUMAN.

THE AWFUL BRUTALITY PRACTICED IN A CHICAGO ASYLUM.

A Witness Who Was Booted and Blackened—His Arm and Ribs Broken—He Secured Justice at Last—The Horrible Deaths Because of Fiendish Treatment.

CHICAGO, Ill., May 21.—The most horrible revelation yet made in Judge Pendergast's investigation of the management of Chicago's public insane asylum was reached yesterday in the testimony of George Hill, an engineer on the Lake Shore road. Mr. Hill is shrewd looking, and his straightforward manner carries conviction. He said he entered the institution in January, 1888, and was discharged the following May. He was not violently insane when he went to the asylum. He was asked by an attendant named Lock if he was insane. He said he was not.

"Well," replied Lock, "we will make you a sight insaner than you are now." Mr. Hill said another attendant named Julian ordered him to sweep out the room. I replied that I was not sent there for that purpose. "You ain't eh? We will see about that."

Then he knocked me down and kicked me in the body and mouth and kicked two teeth out. I tried to cover my face by getting my head beneath a bench. My arm was over it and through a space in the back of the bench. Julian turned the bench over to get another kick at my face. In doing this my arm was broken.

Hill rolled his right coat sleeve up and showed about three inches below the elbow a huge lump where the ends, illy joined, stuck out. "They knocked me down again," continued Hill, "and broke one of my ribs. My arm caused me great pain and I had no proper treatment. One day Julian came to me and said let me see that arm, and he tore my coat off. Then he rubbed the arm with liniment. That was the only treatment I had. I tried to see the doctor, but Julian told me that if I dared to speak he would kill me right there. I told Supervisor Jones that I was badly treated, and he said he would send me to another ward. Then Lock and another attendant held me while Julian kicked me in the head."

I bled a while I got up bleeding and said I would have justice some day. "You will see," said Julian, "we will give you all the justice you want," and he struck me in the face and knocked me down again. That was all that was done to me. My arm and rib healed in a kind of a way, and I got along all right. One day a poor fellow named Levi was brought in. He did not know enough to go to the dining-room, and I was showing him the way when Lock asked me what I was doing. Julian came up and Lock said, "The won't eat."

"I'll show him how" said Julian, and he grasped Levi by the hair and throwing his head back jammed a big piece of bread in his mouth. Levi tried to get away and hide in one of the rooms. There he was caught by Julian and Lock. They struck him in the face, knocked him down and jumped on his stomach. Levi's face turned black. "Get up," they said, but he could not move and they picked him up and threw him on the bed. The poor fellow died that night.

The court was still at death during this recital. The witness was told to bring his wife to corroborate his story and Dr. Harold Moyer was instructed by Judge Pendergast to examine Hill's arm and rib. Further evidence was taken to the effect that one inmate was cruelly beaten for going to bed with his socks on, and it was a common thing for attendants to drive patients to bed with clubs. Further evidence showed the food was insufficient and the clothing and bedding entirely inadequate in cold weather. County Physician Todd testified that Robert Burns was beaten to death by attendants and did not die of consumption as stated by Superintendent Kiernan in the certificate of death.

AN AMERICAN WELLDAND.

A New York Movement For a New Waterway at the Falls.

OSWEGO, May 20.—A number of central New York capitalists have petitioned congress to build a ship canal on the American side of the Canadian line to connect Lake Ontario with Niagara river. Congressman Nutting, of Oswego, is taking care of the bill and intends to push it through congress. Six surveys have been made, the longest route being fourteen miles, and the shortest, and the one most likely to be selected, being seven miles. The latter route connects Lake Ontario, near Grand Island, with the Niagara river at a point below Lewiston.

George I. Post, who is famed throughout this section as the father of the Southern Central railroad, said it was intended for the canal to be a distinctive government undertaking, as the only connecting link between the great lakes now was the Welland canal on the Canadian side, which was a constant menace to the American shipping in case any international difficulty should take place between the two English speaking nations.

LOST IN THE PACIFIC.

The Elegant Steamer Alaskan Sinks with Several of Her Crew.

PORTLAND, Ore., May 20.—The loss of the magnificent side-wheel iron steamer Alaskan, belonging to the Oregon railway and navigation company, is reported. The Alaskan left Portland on May 11 for San Francisco, where she was to have been repaired preparatory to being placed on the Puget Sound route. She carried no passengers and had on board only her officers and crew.

ONE OR THE OTHER MUST GO.

The Fighting Still Goes On in Hayti—An Offer to Fight a Duel.

NEW YORK, May 21.—Advices from Hayti say Hippolyte has recently routed Legitime's forces and captured four towns. It is not unlikely that assassination will rid the island of President Legitime. On April 2 Gen. Jumeau, of the north route, Gen. St. Fleur De Paul, of the south, met at Euri with 450 men. Legitime's troops were driven to the mountains, leaving eighty-three dead upon the field. Hippolyte's troops captured four cannon, one mitrailleuse, and took twenty-eight prisoners, twelve of whom were shot, the remainder reserved for the rack. Hippolyte's favorite method of getting information. Another battle took place on the 29th. Gen. Borgen attacked the southern troops at Fort Benite and captured the town and a number of field pieces. There was great rejoicing in the north over the success attending Hippolyte's troops, now in possession of all the important points. All northern ports are open to shipping, and trade is greatly increasing. Nothing but Legitime's downfall will satisfy Hippolyte. The northern general even offered to fight a duel with the leader of the south, the fate of the war to rest on that combat.

MINISTERS AND CONSULS.

A Batch of Appointments for Various Vacant Fields.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—The president has appointed Solomon Hitch, of Oregon, to be minister to Turkey; Clark E. Carr, of Illinois, to be minister resident and consul general to Denmark; Henry W. Servance, of California, to be consul general at Honolulu; John Jarrett, of Pennsylvania, to be United States consul at Birmingham; F. H. Sherman, of the District of Columbia, United States consul at Liverpool. Hon. W. H. Miller is said to be the appointee as justice of the supreme court. Col. E. F. Shepard, New York, may be made minister to Russia, to succeed Allen Thornlyke Rice.

He is a Lucky Lowrey.

ST. PAUL, May 21.—While reading a soiled and battered copy of the Carlisle, Eng., Patriot a few days ago John W. Lowrey glanced at the advertisements for the next of kin and saw the name of John Wilkin Lowrey, heir to the Lowrey estate. The advertisement announced that the estate would pass into the court of chancery unless claimed prior to May 21st. A message to "Stay proceedings at once; I am alive and don't you forget it," was addressed to attorneys of Carlisle. Lowrey will inherit $500,000.

O'Brien on the Stand.

LONDON, May 21.—W. O'Brien testified before the Parnell commission to-day. He remained seated while giving his evidence and spoke in a weak voice. Witness gave details of agrarian outrages which occurred in Tipperary prior to the organization of the league, and said the league prevented a wholesale famine and a fearful war in the west of Ireland in 1870 and that no murders had been committed in Tipperary since its formation.

A Vessel Collision.

LONDON, May 20.—The British steamer "German Emperor," from London for Bilbao, ran into the British steamer "Beresford" from Hartley Pool for Bombay yesterday morning, while the latter was lying at anchor in the Goodwin Sands. The "German Emperor" sank instantly. Boats were launched from the "Beresford" and succeeded in rescuing twelve persons.
