Locomofive Works Men Going Back to Work A False Report Nailed.

This morning there was agitation in the Locomotive Works, and the men in two of the shops talked about higher wages. None of them, however, went out. It was agreed that they should continue at work until a special meeting of the directors is held, on Saturday or Monday, when the matter will be discussed and a decision reached. The men will have ample opportunity of presenting their views. At noon to-day a number of the blacksmiths were seen. and they said they would return to work, leaving their demands for settlement by the board. It was expected that all the

blacksmiths and helpers would resume

during the day. Last evening a WHIG reporter called Mr. B. W. Folger's attention to a report which intimitated that there might be a strike among the employees and train hands on the K. & P. R., on May, 1st if their demands for higher wages were not acceded to. Mr. Folger said: "This is the first I have heard of a proposed strike. If the men had grievances they would have been reported to me er Mr. Taylor before they had gained publicity. The wages of trainmen have not been cut, though some of them (and I have told them so) are not receiving what they should for the work they perform. The government is carrying out the arrangement into which the Minister of the Interior entered at the time a civic deputation visited Ottawa. The land north of Princess street, including that desired by the Frontenac Agricultural Association for a fair ground, will be appraised by Messrs. McRossie and Shannon, and on the 29th sold at anc tion. It may bring less than the upset price-in all likelihood it will-and the necessity for valueing it at all does not seem very clear. The formality may be needful, for appearance sake, and to it any way no objection can be taken. The exact area of the land is not known, but it is much greater than the association want. It is suggested, however, that the society appoint some one to represent it, and bid upon the entire plot. afterwards selling off in lots such of it as their requirements do not call for The idea is a most excellent one, and it must commend itself to the directors. The association cannot lose money by the transaction as one public-spirited gentleman has given us the assurance that he will give them $1,000 over and above the amount for which they will be able to purchase the land.

Thomas Atkins, who served in the Crimean and Indian wars, and already wears two medals, protests, in a letter to the Globs, against the shatbiness of the Canadian government in presenting their medals, unclasped and unstamped. "I served with 'A' Battery," he says, "and can tell you without a lie that I was in some hotter places than where I won the clasps for the medals I have on my breast this present moment. When I tell you that never before did I see harder work than that we went through on the sloppy prairie last spring, and the bullets flew thick enough make it dangerous for more than myself cently enlarged and improved, and the drainage I want to ask you if you think the gov erament would allow me to put on clasp for Batoche anyway-though Fish A lease, opposite Cedar Island, on Pittsburg | Creek was the worse of the two. I paid forty-two cents for my name and would not mind fifty cents more for a clasp just to show that I was fortunate enough to get where the rebels lay hil in their pits.
