From us for aye the mellow day Has drifted through the gates of Heaven, Like en bers dead, all overhead, Pale ashen clouds by winds are driven. Far, far away across the bay, Day's bended bow is arrows sending ; Their last red glow, fain, fain would flow O'er headland bay, with gray lights blending. On cir ling wing the white gulls swing

EVENING.

Steadily, slow, the waves below The wave uplifts the park that drifts Through, bars of gray to opas turning. Above, afar, tue evening star Gleams like a gem from day still burning, Remote and dim the vespers hymn

In distance, like the spray uplifted

On woss-girt secks, in murmum dying, Into the night, through paths so light, In vapporous mists the moon is climbing, Farewell for aye, bright perfect day, With peace, with mellow glow and chiming.
