Anticipating some interesting developments in regard to the Street Railway there was a large attendance of | would be another line here. citizens at the Council meeting last evening. They sat around patiently, until about nine o'clock, when Ald. J. Wilson presented the report of the Select Committee. The Committee recommended that the Council grant the following concessions upon condition that the Company free itself from al indebtedness and liabilities and liens on

He has made an extensive deal in the principal to begin and be continued as soon as the Company are earning enough, not exclusive of the payment o the instalment, to enable them to pay (after paying running expenses) an eight per cent. dividend on $8,000, being the new capital sum, by the payment of $200, and to be completed in annual in stalments of $200 each, with interest as above, on the unpaid balance until principal money is paid.

That the Council undertale the ar nual repairs to the satisfaction of the Committee on Streets and Improve ments, for an annual sum, to be fixed by the Committee and the Company, and paid in advance by the Company to the Corporation, on March 1st in each

A GUARANTEE BEQUIRED.

A personal quarantee and undertak ing to be given by three or more res ponsible persons to the city, that if it should happen that the railway should cease to be operated, according to the agreement, for a period of six months at one time within the next five years, the Company or those representing them boot-tree, chairs, tables, etc., will take should take up and remove the rails, sleepers and ties, and restore the streets used by the Company to a good state of repair, to the extent the Company is now bound to keep the streets in repair and of any disrepair caused by them in taking up, the property so taken up to be subject to any claim or lien the city may have upon it, however, and surrender their charter, the Company to be a party to such guarantee and undertaking, and the Company for the time to come, after the said five years, to grant on their property an indemnity, against the expense of doing the above work and repairs, in case of a failure of the Company after said period, of $1,000. The present agreeement, except as it may be affected, to remain binding.

A further condition is that the switch at the corner of King and Princess Streets is to be abolished at once. MUST BE PAID IN CASH.

Before there is any expenditure by the Council the Company's indebtedness must be paid in cash, and not merely arranged for by incurring new indebted ness, and that the plaintiffs' costs of the suit, now pending by the city against the Company, be paid by the Company, and all liability and damages for any accidents that have occurred to be paid by the Company at once, and in future be attended to by the Company. Your Committee recommend that it be districtly stipulated and provided that by this corporation doing the repairs at present and annually required as above, the liability of the Company to persons who may, or whose property may, be injured by accidents occurring from, or m connection with the track. sidings, or switches, shall remain as if they had done the repairs themselves and this Corporation shall incur no liability by doing such repairs.

A SYNDICATE FORMED.

On motion the President of the Company was heard in regard to the Rail-

President Carson said that a Syndicate had been formed in connection with the line. This Syndicate was to take the road, pay off its indebtedness, and run it. It was to receive 8 per cent. dividends and any surplus over that amount was to be handed to the old Company. The men were simply risking their funds in the scheme and therefore the city should not be too exacting. No gentleman was so deeply interested in the line that he would be come personally responsible for the ed his employees for them and for the street repairs. If the report was not medified Kingston would probably not have a street railway. There were some discussion as to the way in which the report should be considered in order to give the Aldermen a chance to intelligently digest its con tents. The Council want into Commitee of the Whole and considered the where they will engage in evangelistic by-law clause by clause; Ald. Dunn in the chair. There was considerable dis-

> CONSIDERED CLAUSE BY CLAUSE. Regarding exemption the Syndicate asked for ten years, but the Committee urged only five years. The clause Ald. Whiting and Mayor McCammor had a colloguy regarding the second clause. Ald, Whiting thought that the

the road could be run. It would be mere child's play to pass the report if the syndicate would not accept it. The Mayor said the city were to satisfied, not the company. This remark brought forth applause from the gallery.

Ald, Smythe said that the Committee were anxious to meet the views of the syndicate and they had reported in keeping with with the petition of the syndicate. If the company became defunct the streets would have to be repaired by the city in any case. Ald. Quigley opposed the report. H would not vote for any of its clanses. W. G. Craig wanted the Council to If the Report Was Adopted-Too Strong keep in view the question whether the city required a street railway or not It seemed as though the citizens were looking at the matter in a small way. If the rails were removed there never GREATLY OPPOSED TO IT. Ald. Adams made a strong speech He objected to the poor man's taxes been taken to fix up the streets so that money could be made afterwards by a syndicate of wealthy gentlemen. The money was required for boardwalks and other street purposes. The railway was a luxury and not a growl would be heard, save at Portsmouth, if the road was pulled up. The members of the metropolitan wards might vote for the report and be re-elected, but outside Al dermen could assuredly not be returned if they supported the report.

The second clause passed.

RUSHED IT THROUGH NOW. The third clause passed, but on the fourth President Carson said that the Company would not be satisfied with it If it passed Kingston would probably have no street railway. Ald. McGuire said they brought the report down to satisfy the Council, not the syndicate. They considered the re port fair and honest. The Council were not anxious to banter with the Street Railway Company's directors. It was unusual to cross fire at the meeting The report of the Committee would be left to the Directors to accept or reject. At this meeting they could consider the costs report, but the Council Chamber was not the place for them to talk.

Ald. Smythe pointed out why a personal guarantee was required. The syndicate and the old Company were both interested in the railway, and a chattel mortgage or lien on the property could not be accepted. It was said that the rails as old iron were worth $3,000. Why then could not the gentleman who gave the personal guarantee take the chattel mortgage on the rails instead of also retired, seemingly disgusted. The report was passed by the Council and the Select Committee continued to arrange the terms with the syndicate. During the night there was considerable applause, especially when Adams and Quigley spoke against the railroad. The cheers were frequently so loud that the speakers could not be heard. A MANDSOME PRESENTATION.

Mr. Oberndorffer, who was surprised. not being acquainted with what was intended, said he had always treated his hands fairly, and always paid them on Saturday night, never asking them to wait till Monday morning for their wages. If they were inclined to get along he always took great interest in advancing them. The address and presentation surprised him, and he thank appreciation which they indicated. Later on Mr. Oberndorffer invited the party to his house, on Queen Street, and there the visitors found a bountiful supply awaiting thom. After toasts, songs and addresses the party retired, all wishing Mr. and Mrs. Oberndorffer long life and prosperity. MR. OBKENDORFFER'S CAPEER.

Mr. Oberndorffer was born in Bretten. in the Grand Duchy of Baden, on April 7th, 1831. In 1848, during the revolution, and at the instigation of a cleric, he distributed a seditions proclamation and was compelled to leave the country. He and the cleric fled to New York in 1849, and there separated. Mr. Obergdorffer remained in the United States This was in 1854. In 1856 he started business in Kingston, next door to Hobart's drug store, and afterwards re-moved to the building now occupied by R. Main. DIVISION COURT

Lot of Little Cases - Corbett vs. The County of Frontenac- ) Question of Salary.

There were fifteen cases and five judgment summonses heard at the Division Court this morning ; Judge Price presiding. A large number of lawyers surrounded the long table and cracked jokes as the hours slipped away.

A WIFE'S BOARD AND EXPENSES. George W. Davy such William David for $39, for board of and attendance upon his wife previous to her death. also for funeral expenses amounting to $7. The Judge allowed Pavy 25 days board at $1 per day and the expenses aforesaid.

VENTULATING A SMALL CLAIM. J. D. Froiland had R. J. Darragh, M.D., up for an 80 cent claim - the cost of repairing a clock. J. McIntyre put in a certificate that Darragh's wife was ill, and the case was adjourned on payment of fees, witness's and counsel. The Judge thought he ought to enter judgment for plaintiff and allow defendant to move for a new trial, but Mr. McGuire objected. If Dr. Darragh would pay for an adjournment he should

A settlement was reached by defendant paying $2.50, but plaintiff finding that defendant had not paid 30c, costs the money was returned and the case sent to trial. The Judge or dered the agreement to be carried out. He said the plaintiff needn't have troubled himself about the defendants

TALK ABOUT THRESHING. William Redmond was sued by James Patterson and Joseph .Stewart for $12. for a day-and a halt's threshing. The defence set up was that the plaintiffs were not engaged by defendant to do the work, that Robert Patterson was engaged and paid for his services. Quite an array of evidence was presented. The Judge gave judgment for plaintiffs for the amount sued for.

CORRETT V. THE COUNTY. It was nearly 11:30 o clock when the case of Corbett v. the county of Frontenac was called. C. H. Corbett, Gaoler. sued the county for $16.66, a balance of salary due him for March. In January the Council reduced his salary from $800 to $600 per aunum. and he was pail the month's salary at the last named rate. J. McIntyre, Q. C. appeared for the plaintiff, and J. L. Whiting for the defendants Langmuir, forwarded to the Warden on Jan. 30th 1874. After referring to the reduction, be said that he would re commend that the Gaolor's salary "shall be $800." Mr. McIntyre contended that the Inspector having once fixed the sum to be paid no by-law could be passed to alter it. The statute could not be overridden by any by law. The Inspector's letter was tantamount to a requirement on the part of the Council, but he had written the letter in more courteous terms. Another point was that if the present by law was valid it could not take effect until September.

Whiting, for the defence, argued that the Inspector had only recommend ed the salary the County Council should pay; be had not required it. He admitted that if the Inspector had intervened in the case his requirement could not be gone below. The speaker insisted that there was no contract between Corbett and the County, and therefore his salary could be raised or reduced at any time. Judge Price seems to lean to the opi nion that the Inspector's letter was a requirement; also that as after a newvear had been begun it was obligatory that a fixed salary should be paid until it expired. He said be would carefully consider Mr. Langmuir's letter and give judgment subsequently. Police Court-Tuesday
