The strictest examiner may try every test of touch and sight without discovering that these are other than the Genoa Velvets which they so closely resemble, while the peculiar arrangements resulting in the fast woven pile enable them to stand interminable and rough wear, which would ruin real velvets at four times the price. For Costumes and Trimmings it is unequalled, and in fact for all purposes in which Silk Velvet may be used we specially recommend the "LOUIS" VELVETERS.

whistle. "See here," said Temple, " must have some tools. You have a club and a revolver. Give me the club, which he took without more ceremon The men came up from this garden an instant, and fell in at Farnham's word which a lump of figs is ordered as a good of command in a moment. Masked by the shadows of the trees and the shrubbery, they were not discernible from the street. "Remember," said Faraham. "Use your clubs as much as you see fit if you come to close quarters; but do not fire without orders unless to save your own lives. I don't think it is likely that these fellows are armed."

The clattering of feet grew louder on the sidewalk, and in a moment the leader of the gang—it could hardly be call-ed a mob—stopped by the gates. "Here's the place. Come along, boys!" one of them shouted, but ro one stirred until the whole party came up. They formed a dense crowd about the gates, and half-filled the wide avenue. There was evidently a moment of hesitation, and then three or four rushed through the gate. They had come so near the porch that it could now be seen by the light of the moon that few of them carried arms. Some had sticks; one or two men carried heavy stones in their hands; one young man brandished an axe; one had a hammer. There was evidently no attempt at organization

Farnham waited until they were only few feet away, and then shouted: "Forward! Guide right! Double time! March!" The men darted out from the shadow and began to lay about them with their clubs. A yell of dismay burst from the crowd. Those in front met those behind, and the whole mass began striking out wildly at each other. Yelling and cursing, they were forced back over the lawn to the gate. Farnham, seeing that no shots had been 55 00 fired, was confirmed in his belief that the rioters were without organization. and to a great extent, without arms. 33 00 He therefore ordered his men to the right about and brought them back to the house. This movement evidently encouraged the mob. Loud voices were 130 00 distinctly heard.

"Who's afraid of half a dozen cops?" said a burly ruffian, who carried slung shot. "There's enough of us to tat 'em up.' "That's the talk, Bowersox," said another. "You go in and get the "That's my style," said Bowersox. Come along, Offitt. Where's Bott !

I guess he don't feel very well. Come along, boys! We'll slug 'em this time!" And the crowd, inspirited by this exhortation and the apparent weakness of the police force, made a second rush for Temple was standing next to Farn-"Arthur," he whispered, "let's ham. change weapons a mement," handing Farnham his club and taking the revolver from his hand. Farnham hardly noticed the exchange, so intently was he watching the advance of the crowd, which he saw, in a moment, was far more serious than the first. They were coming up more solidly, and the alvan-100 00 tage of the surprise was now gon . He waited, however, until they were almost as near as they had been before, and then gave the order to charge, in the same words as before, but in a much 247 00 sharper and louder tone, which rang out like a sudden blast from a trumpet.

The improvised policemen darted 225 00 forward and attacked as vigorously as 147 00 ever, but the assailants stood their well as taken this time. There was even a moment's confusion on the ex-27 00 treme right of the line, where the cont tol rang out, and he tumbled toraxid over Farnham, who sprang to his feet and shouted, "Now, men, drive 'em! Taking the right himself and profting by the momentary shock of the sle they got the crowd started again, and by vigorous clubbing drove them once more into the street.

Returning to the shadow by the Louse. Farnham's first question was, " Is any.

"I've got a little bark knock - | o2. said one quiet fellow, who came forward showing a ghastly face bathof in blood from a wound in his forebead. Farnham looked at him a moment, and then, running to the door, opened it and called Budsey, who had been hiding in the cellar, praying to all his saints. " Here, Budsey, take this man down to the coachman's house and then go round the corner and bring Dr. Cutts. Making in all over six hundred of the If he isn't there, get somebody else. They had been alarmed by the noise and thought in front of Farnham's house, and had locked and bolted their own doors in consequence. His voice was that of Offitt. as he said, "Ladies, we don't want to do no violence; but, in the name of the Re volutionary Committee, we have called to collect an assessment on you." This machinery was the invention of the moment, and was received with great satis fact on by the Bread-winners.

Bott hurried after as fast as he could; but she gained her bedroom door enough in advance to lock it between them, leaving him kick. ing and swearing in the hall. She ran to the open window, which looked toward Farnham's, and sent the voice of her love and her trouble together into the clear night in one loud cry,

"Arthur!" She blushed crimson as the word in voluntarily broke from her lips, and cried again, as londly as she could, " Help! "I hope he did not hear me a' first," she said, covering her face with her hands, and again she cried, "Help!" " Shut up that noise," said Bott, who was kicking violently at the door, but could not break it down. "Shut up, or I'll wring your neck." She stopped, not on account of his threats, which suddenly ceased, but beon the porch, and of a short but violent scuffle, which showed that aid of some scuffle, which showed that aid of some sort had arrived. In a few moments she heard Bott run away from her door. He started toward the stairs, but find. ing his retreat cut off ran to the front windows, closely pursued. She heard a scramble. Then a voice which made her heart beat tumultuously said, "Look out below there."

We Do Not Claim
That S haker Blood Syrup will cure every. thing, but the fact that on the purity and vitality of the blood depends the vigor and health of the whole system, and that disease of various kinds is often only the sign that nature is trying to remove the disturbing cause, we are naturally led to the conclusion that a remedy that gives life and vigor to the blood, cradicates serofula and other impurities from it, as Shaker Blood Syrup undoubtedly does, must be the means of preventing many diseases that would occur without its use hence the field of its usefulness is quite an extended one, and we are warranted in recommending it for all derangements of the system which are caused by an unnatural Comprising the Finest Goods state of the Blood.

Gentlemen,-I was a great sufferer from Salt-Rheum on my limbs, for a dozen years previous to the summer of 1876, at which time I was cured by Shaker Blood Syrup. The skin would become dry, chap, erack open, bleed and itch intensely, so that I could not help scratching, which of course made them worse. At the time commenced taking Shaker Black Syrup (in the summer of 1876) they were so bad they discharged, and I was obliged to keep them bandaged with linea cloths. The skin was drawn so tight by the heat of the disease that if I stooped over they would orack spen and actually bring tears to my eyes. The first bottle benefitted me so much that I continued taking it till I was the value of Shaker Blood Syrup, and re-ceive as much benefit as I have, I am,
