The Bishop of Niagara made the Salvation Army the subject of special reference in his address to the Synod. He said he had read a great deal about the movement, and he did not desire to condemn an organization which professed to have fer its aim the redemption of souls for God. He was convinced, how ever, that "the Almightly has His own chosen people to carry on this work on earth, and is not, therefore, influenced to any great extent by the seeming saccess of the Salvation Army."

The Winnipe g Free Press resents the ins inuation that the Province of Manitoba will have to accept the terms lately offered by the Federal Government that if they are not there may be aggressive action on the part of Sir John Macdonald and independent action on the part of the other provinces. The free Press makes reply: "We say to Sir John himself, and to the Eastern Provinces through him, if he represents them in this insane talk about forcing Manitoba to their terms by 'aggression, that we have had enough and more than enough of aggression and 'aggressionists' already, and will stand but little more. We have asked for our rights and intend securing them, peaceably if we can, but we intend securing them. As for the Eastern Provinces being independent of us we are pleased to hear it. If they think they can stand independence it would delight us to have them try. We are confident of

CREDIT OF THE COUNTRY.

We are sorry to see the Journal Commerce attributing small and unpatriotic motives to Sir Richard Cartwright in regard to his recent speech We may call the attention of the Journal of Commerce to the fact that if Sir Richard spoke at all at this juncture it was simply impossible for him to avoid pointing out the extraordinary lengths to which the Macdonald Administration has proceeded in increasing the expenditure of the Dominion during the two periods-from 1867 to 1874 and from 1878 to 1884-in which they have held

It would, in our judgment, be better for the Journal of Commerce and other simi lar papers to do one of two thingseither to point out where and to what extent Sir Richard is in error, if he be wrong, or to unite with him in putting a stop to the ruinous extravagance and folly which is likely to do infinitely more harm in the course of a single session than the failure of half a dozen loans now or at any other time. The line taken by the Journal of Com meror, and by sundry patriotic papers of like stam; is not a little singular. These good people look on, without stirring hand or foot to prevent intolerable mischief being done, and afterwards, when the wrong is done, and when the Reform leaders point out the identical results which they had foreseen and predicted, these worthies rise up and gravely request perfect quietness lest.

We have to tell these gentlemen, as we have had to tell others, that the credit of the country is damaged when such a blunder, as the compact to build a road across the continent, was made in 1871; when such a contract as that with the Canada Pacific Co. was made in 1881; and when such concessions were forced from parliament by a railway corporation as those which disgrac-

One lady particular was bedridden and very low had tried everything that money could procure, but all in vain, when, to please a friend, she was finally persuaded to use the lemons. to spread the truths of our glorious Christianty. He never was confined to sations as circumstances made it needful. The instrumentality has been manifold and diversified. When the Moore is lowling the Idlewild with priesthood was limited to the tribe of are being made for the grand Republi-Levi. He raised up prophets. The means to which the Divine Being has often used to accomplish His purpose have been to all human appearance the most unlikely to succeed. This is a fact which is attested by the history of the Church of Christ in all ages, and this was the case with that form of Christianty known by the name of Methodism. Methodism is no new religion. It is the religion of the Bible, the simple unadorned religion of Apostolic times-Methodism had a small beginning. Not more than a half dozen persons formed the nucleus of the Methodist church. Unlike many other institutions, no pomp marshalled its origin. Though it was born on choice ground, the sages became its bitterest opponents and tried to strangle it in its infancy, but having a robust constitution it waxed strong to the utter astonishment of its opponents. Methodism has been gradual in its progress. It has never grown tired nor > enly progression, from strength to strength, and from conquest to conquest. The preaching of its early ministers was like so many discharges of electric fire through the atmosphere of the moral universe, which caused vibration and reverberation which has not yet ceased. The founders and their coadjutors, burning with love to God and man, were swifter than the eagle and stronger than the lion. The work of God was as fire shut up in their bones, and they could in the whole armor of the cross, marched through the towns and villages of England, making the streets, hills and dales resound with their songs of praise. The strongholds of Satan fell on every hand, and those who had been carried captive by the devil at his will were liberated and rejoiced in full salvation. The heralds soon found their way into the domains of heathenism, and they

Men and devils, earth and hell. consoured against it, to crush it in its infancy, making as it did an onslaught on the powers of darkness, going forth like John the Baptist with a leathern girdle around his loins, showing the need of repentance, and off sring a free and present salvation from sin. It excited the in-tignation of the great, and in many instances, principally through the influence of the so-called higher classes, it roused the fary of the lower orders of society. Almost all arms were raised up to oppose it. It was assailed by the infuriated mob, breathing out threatening and slaughter. It was persecuted by magistrates, hooted in the streets. ridiculed in newspapers, cried down in lectures, slandered in magazines and attacked by a whole host of scribblers of every grade. But did it beat a retreat? No. it went forward like a victorious army subduing its opponents, not by force of arms, but by the sword of the spirit. Methodism is cheering in its prospects. They were never brighter than they are to-day. Its doctrines were never better understood or more clearly and faithfully preached Some may ask, On what foundation do von base your hopes of success? (1.) Past experience. Remember it is not an experiment about to be tried for the first time, but it has been fully tried again and again with the most glorious results. (2.) The connexional machinery was never so powerful as at present. Think of the scores of thousands of ministers and laymen who are engaged in the work. The spirit is the spirit of enterprise. (3.) Methodism is the work of God. Gamaliel said of Christianity, "If it be not of God it will come to naught." The providence of God is women to membership of the Union. seen in a remarkable manner, both in the origin and progress of Methodism. The same kind of instrumentality which God employed at the commencement of the christian era has been employed in Methodism. The Divine Being did not then make choice of the great and the mighty, the rich and the learned to propagate the gospel, but men who were just the reverse of these. They were as a whole, men without influence, without wealth, without literature What He did then He has done in Methodism. The same steps which were taken to propagate Christianity in the first ages were taken to propagate Methodism. The disciples went every. where, the Lord working with them confirming the word with signs fol-

There is another very striking coincidence between primitive christianity and Methodism, and that is in the effects which were produced by the propagation of the one when compared with the effects which have been produced by the propagation of the other. appetite. Of course as you get better Those who listened to the apostles 'were pricked in their hearts." An objection has been raised that Methodism is not the work of God, because it has been carried on by unauthorized teachers. They are not of the apostolic saccession, not having received ordination at the hands of a bishop. It would have been well if the persons who had brought this charge had settled the matter, so far as it relates to themselves with the Church of Rome, because that church brings the same charge against them Our ministers look for a higher ordination than that imparted by a bishop's hands, the baptism of fire. It has been stated that Methodism is not the work of God, but enthusiasm. They are inseparable. Such sublimand holy work must kindle the fires of sacred zeal in its advocates to an intensity prodigious. If we saw a number of men rushing wildly onwards to a precipice, or floating down the rapids of a Niagara within hearing of the roar of the vast cataract, could you stand by and see such a sight with indifference No: every fibre of your very being would quiver with excitement, and your pulse bound with more than mortal enthe liver and kidneys so badly that all hope ergy. You would shout with aldesperaof recovery was abandoned. He remained tion that would rouse the people within ten and thirteen days without action of a radius of a mile. Who would con- the bowels. Four bottles of Burdock demn you for such an act of enthusiasm? No sane man. Then why should the Methodists be found fault with for lifting up their voices against sin the sting which is death? There is a life in Methodism which you find nowhere else. It is found in its songs, supplications and exhortations, an enthusiastic life, apostolic divine.

Shall such a glorious work stop or go on? There is no such word as stop in ward" is its watchward. It is inscribed on in its banner, and on every department of its work. The word rings out dreds, peoples and tongues feel the force of its vibrations. May God bless our common Methodism.—Rev. H. Harres. eine. Large Bottles 50 cents.
