In one case John L Harris was given $400 with which to wipe out an indebtedness to Sir Albert. and he swears that he was fully assured by the lender that if he supported Josiah Wood, the Tory candidate, he would not be asked for the cash again, that it was a clear gift in view of "his vote and influence," and that on this condition it was accepted. Mrs. Harris, too, swears that patrick is the senior member. she was paid a sum to induce her husband to accept the terms aforesaid, and she says, further, that it was distinctly stated by her husband that he would not accept the money or oppose Sir Albert, "unless it was given to him absolutely, as he had reason to believe that Smith would not press him for it." Nothing would now be heard of this venal transaction were Sir Albert not dead and all danger of a new election passed. A great deal of interest is taken by Canadians in the proceedings of the Chicago convention, and the chances of this candidate and that one are debated by them with as much eagerness as if our political affairs were to be materially affected by the result. The democrats were, at the outset of the new presidential agitation, supposed to be poor in the number of its candidates, but experience shows that those who made this calculation and indulged this supposition have been weefally mistaken. It is because the party has too many ambitious men-their availability is another matter-that there is such chaos and confusion in the convention. It is because there are so many politicians with a desire to carry the party standard that the strongest man may be left or thrown overboard, and a weak and comparatively unknown one selected,

It is hardly fair of the ministry not to undertake it. Although all who are acquainted with the circumstances are aware of the trouble Mr. Kirkpatrick and the other members of the de putation have taken in the matter there are some, not too well poste who are inclined to blame them. The defendants, the corporation of the city Kingston, assessed both plaintiffs for $2,000 for the year 1883 as the amount of taxable income, no doubt meaning the taxable income of the plaintiff's company. The plaintiff, Kirkpatrick, the amount, even if I were in a position

The plaintiffs declined to pay the amount of taxes claimed upon this assessment and a warrant was issued and under it a seizure made of personal property of the plaintiff, Mr. Kirkpat rick, and thereupon the amount claimed, $34.82, was paid by him under protest. The defendant, Middleton, was the collector of taxes for the corporation of the city of Kingston, and the defend ant Robertson was his bailiff. This action is brought to recover back the money so paid, the plaintiffs claiming damages and their costs, and for an injunction restraining the defendants, the city of Kingston, from collecting taxes for the year 1884 upon an assessment made for this year in the same

At the trial it was agreed amongst counsel that the questions to be determined should be as follows:

"Are the insurance premiums received at Kingston by the plaintiff, Kirkpatrick, as agent for the plaintiff company at Kingston (the plaintiff company being a loreign corporation whose head office is outside of the Province of Ontario), for insurance business transacted through him as such agent assess able at Kingston as taxable income of personal property against the plaintiff company and the plaintiff Kirkpatrick, its agent, or against the latter as the agent of the plaintiff company, or against either of the plaintiffs ?"

It was admitted that a seizure was made by the defendants, Middleton and Robertson, of property of plaintiff Kirk patrick for alleged taxes for the year 1883. The warrant was admitted and put in, as also the memorandum of property endorsed upon it, and that this property was the property of the plaina communication to Mr. Barnum, the tiff Kirkpatrick. It was also admitted that the money, the $34.82, was paid under pressure and protest, and that the same money was paid over to the corporation of the City of Kingston with knowledge to them of all the facts. Very little evidence was given. Mr. H. C Voigt, the accountant in the office of Kirkpatrick, was, however, called by the plaintiffs, and he said that the plaintiff company had no other place of business in Kingston; that at the end of In the third game, after a quarter of an each month the premiums were transseems absolutely necessary that you (I) mitted to Montreal; that there was not on the 1st October nor on the 1st No-Your inquiry was explicitly answered | vember, 1882, any of the money in the in the negative by my letter of June 10 hands of Mr. Kirkpatrick in Kingston, flags. that the losses were paid in Montreal, that no money was retained by Mr. Kirkpatrick for payment of losses, that the premiums received are the primary

out of which the losses are paya ble, and that the plaintiff company had ne personal property in Kingston but the premiums; also that the commission constituted part of the income for which Mr. Kirkpatrick was assessed personally. It was admitted that the money received for premiums was, after deducting the commission, sent regularly given to the Hon. G. A. Kirkpatrick, to at the end of every month by Mr. Kirk patrick to the head office for Canada in Montreal. There was, indeed, no dispute as to the facts. The questions for determination were argued at great length and many autho rities referred to. Amongst others was referred to Borrough on Taxation, p. 160, where it is said that "Annual premiums received by an insurance comgood deal of discoutent prevails in the pany constituted part of its income, and when the charter of a city vests in the corporation in general terms the power of assessment and taxation of all property within the city, such preminms received by the agents residing in the city are not subject to taxation. They are not property but income." The case reterred to by the author is Dubuque v. The North Western Insu rance Company, 29 Iowa, R. 9. This have examined. The holding was that the assessment was not valid, but the reason was that the city had only gene ral powers to levy taxes upon all property in the city, and the premiums were not considered property, but income. Had there been special powers such as are given by the Assessment Acts of Ontario in regard to the taxa tion of income, or any statute law making income personal property for the purposes of taxation, the decision must have been the opposite of what it was. plain that to ascertain the meaning to be attached to these words one must look at sub.-section 8 of sec. 2 of cap. 180, R.S.O., which shows what "personal estate" and "personal property" mean, and according to this sub-sec. these words' do include income. In other words I think the interpretation clauses of Assessment Act cap. 180, R. S.O., apply to 42 Vic., cap. 27, and after having examined all the authorities ream of the opinion that those insurance premiums received in Kingston by the plaintiff Kirkpatrick were personal property of the plaintiff company, and sec. of 42 Vic., cap. 27 provides that "all personal property within the provinces. the owner of which is not resident in the province, shall be assessable like the personal property of residents, and whether the same is or is not in the possession or control, or in the hands of an agent or trustee on behalf of the nonresident owners and all such personal property of non-residents may be asin the name of the agent, trustee or other person (if any) who is in possescarry on the business of fire insurance sion or control thereof. in Canada and have their head office for 2nd. I think both the plaintiffs were properly assessed for this income, and that the assessment for it was properly made in the city of Kingston, and I think the case in re North of Scotland, &c., Co., 31 the city of Kingston apart from the law U.C.C.P. 552, is authority for this con-

It was said in argument that this income was not in the municipality when the assessment was made. It is seldom, I think, that the whole income of any person is intact in the municipality at the time when he is assessed for it as "personal property" under the provisions of the statutes. I think the case of Last v. London Assurance Co., L.R. 12 A.B.D. 389, involved considerations that do not arise here, and is distinguished from the present case. No question was raised, and, as l understand, none was to be raised as to I am of the opinion that the plaintills case fails, and that the action must be

LACROSSE FEVER.

Lust Night's Hotly Contested Game at Po mouth-A Tournament at Brockville,

The game that rules on the athletic field this season is lacrosse. It is invigorating, though it is rough, and is en joyed by the spectators as well as play ers. Last evening the Citizens' Club met the Royals, of Portsmouth, on the brow of the penitentiary hill and had a friendly contest.

The Royals-E. Sullivan, goal; T. Milne, C. Kemp, W. Connors, J. Nichol defence field; E. McGeen, E. Leahy, W. Carlton, J. Hooper, field; R. Patter son, A. McGeen, J. Duncan, home field f. Powers, field captain,

The game commenced at 7:15, and the ball was kept at Portsmouth's goal for some time. At last Kemp managed to get the rubber on his stick, and, being fleet of foot, distanced his check without trouble, until Bissonette sneaked up and stole the ball, flying down the field with it amid the shouts of the spectators. After dodging the line of Portsmouth players he got a shot at the flags and sent the ball between them. Time, five minutes. The loss seemed to stir up the Portsmouth Club and they worked like Trogans in the second game. They did some good play, but the Kingston boys, being better practiced, had things pretty much their own way. C. Millan, for Kingston, passed the ball very quietly to Lindsay, who tipped it between the Royals' flags. Randall believes he is second choice of the Cleveland people, but can do nothing as long as Cleveland is in the race. Pennsylvania delegates suggest Ran dall and Thurman as a ticket with ele-

Hewitt's name was also mentioned this morning. It is said a number of Indiana and western men favour the bringing out of Hendricks after the first ballot. Some papers claim that Cleveland's strength is waning and Bayard's gaining. The general impression, though, is that the situation is unchanged and that Cleveland will proba bly get the nomination. The Tribune puts him down for 397 on the first ballot and Bayard 147.

The Times says Bayard is looming up. Butler has withdrawn from the contest and will support Bayard. It is estimated that Cleveland will get 350; Bay ard, 192; McDonald, 63; Thurman, 94; Carlisle, 26; the others scattering.
