LATE DUGALD MACPIE. A Clever Business Man—He was Really a Model Man in Every Respect. The Montreal Star contains an interesting obituary of the late Dugald Macphie. He was born in Scotland in 1831.

He was the son of a well known ship architect on the Clyde, afterwards the designer and builder of the East Indiaman, Ben Lomond, City of Toronto, Empress Josephine, Indian Queen and other ships. Dugald Macphie attended various schools in Quebec, and closed in the grammar school, passing with honors in the higher branches.

He graduated in French under the instruction of Professor Janet, of Quebec, and was ever known as a clever scholar. Mr. Macphie's outset in life was as cashier in one of the largest and best dry goods stores in the city of Quebec, from which he entered as book-keeper in a Quebec shipping office, and continued in the shipping business till his death.

Mr. Macphie was the chief founder of the St. Lawrence & Chicago Forwarding Company, of which the late Sir Hugh Allen was president. When the company merged into the Montreal Transportation Company Mr. Macphie became one of the directors of the M. T. Co. Of Mr. Macphie it may be said that he was a model son, brother, husband, father and citizen.

To the sincerity and fidelity of his friendships many testify. From his earliest youth he gave liberally to charitable objects, and generously supported his church and religion. He was fifty-three years of age. During his many visits to Kingston, on business, he impressed those whom he met with his amiability and great sincerity.

His manner was pleasant, but he always showed evidence of the great anxiety with which he was affected. MARINE INTELLIGENCE. What is Occupying the Attention of People Interested in Vessels.

The Watertown Times gives the following particulars of the accident to the St. Lawrence: "She struck a rock near the Thousand Island Park, and ran high up on it, about 30 feet on the rock. Her bow was about two feet out of the water. The steamers Island Belle and John Thorn made unsuccessful attempts to pull her free off the shoal. No excitement prevailed among the excursionists, and they were safely taken off by the steamers Island Belle and John Thorn."
