Quate Seriously Injured After All. The London Free Press reports that F. P. Betts, brother of Dr. Betts, of this city, has been taken home, seriously injured in the Pickering disaster. He is still suffering and has been forbidden to talk. His greatest injury is a contuse t wound extending across the forehead and down the bridge of his nose. This has been neatly dressed and appears to be doing well, but the sufferer complains of great screness in the side and back. Mr. Betts was so stupefied by the blows that he remembers nothing of which he was.

l'esterday was a day of business at the fair. The crowd was large and active. Until 4 o'clock the secretary and his assistants, located in the building at the south end of the ground, received delayed entries. Even later persons asked for permission to exhibit, and when the secretary (who handed the books at 10 o'clock this morning to the judges) refused there were indignant looks and speeches. The treasurer and ticket sellers did not do much yesterday, but they were on the qui rire to-day. The fair is a success. The display eclipses that of any previous show in recent years; the patronage of the people now is only lacking. In the exhibits of cattle, horses and live stock generally the farmers of Frontenac and vicinity show Changed Their Plans, A wedding 'ncident that is not, after all, a wedding incident, is reported from a city church. A popular pastor was called upon one evening last week, during a pouring rain, by a bashful anxious groom with a request for his services at a wedding in his church next Monday at 5 o'clock. He demurred to the unusual and inconvenient hour, but the groom was importunate, as he hoped to carry off his bride by the 6 o'clock train going east. So the minister, with an inward protest, consented, and slept but little during the night. Sing to frequent wakings in his anxiety not to disappoint.
