THE LOTTERY BUSINESS.—There is a possibility of the Toronto constable, William Walker, coming to Kingston to serve some of the holders of London Lottery tickets, but in the worst of an exchange it William Walker here till he gets back any large amount of prize money he will stand a good chance of ranking as the "oldest inhabitant."

LOST HIS FINGER OFF.—On Tuesday, when a number of men were engaged in handling a plank upon the new steam barge at Garden Island, R. Davy got one of his fingers caught between the timber and hold. The sponsor was not forced to amputate the first joint. The finger tip dropped to the ground when the man pulled off his mit.

CASE ADJOURNED.—The interim case of Keenehan and Craig, for stabbing McCullough at Verona, has been adjourned to May 1st., owing to the inability of the prosecutor to attend. He still suffers from the wounds received. It is now probable that the case of Michael Keenehan will be heard at the Assizes. Messrs. McIntyre and McIvors are interested in the case.

LOST AND FOUND.—This morning a gentleman reported at the Police Station that Barton Gleason, of Garden Island, had wandered away. He was ten years of age, dressed in a short tweed jacket and pants, laced boots and a round dog skin cap. The boy turned up shortly afterwards. He had come to Kingston last night, and did not return home owing to the darkness. He remained with a friend.

VELOCITY OF THE WIND.—Last night, when the wind began to howl, people fully believed that Wiggins' storm had commenced. The wind blew from the west, but veered round to the south. Its velocity was 33 miles an hour, a long distance off the 2,000 predicted by the astronomer. The speed the wind attained was the same as that of the blow of Tuesday last. At 7 o'clock this morning the gale moderated, and was succeeded by a drizzling rain.

CONCERT AT GARDEN ISLAND.—On Friday evening next there will be a concert in the School House, Garden Island, in connection with and under the auspices of Maple Leaf Lodge, United Temperance Association. Sleighs will leave Wade's, corner of Brock and King Sts. at 7:30 o'clock, conveying to and from the island, gratuitously, those of our citizens who desire to attend the entertainment. Several Kingstonians, including Keeley, will sing at the concert.

A CROOKED POOL PLAYER.

William Burleigh, one of the contestants in the Rochester pool tournament, is charged by the Union of that city with throwing games in the interest of betting men. Burleigh captured the first three games of a series and his "friends" backed his opponent heavily. The crowd finally saw through the scheme and their indignation was very great. The Management Committee have expelled him from the tournament.

REMEMBRANCE OF EARLY DAYS.

An Iroquois gentleman, writing of early times, says the nearest mill was at Kingston, eighty-five miles distant. Families used to unite and go to the mill in parties, as it required a considerable number of hands to get the heavy batteaux up the rapids. These voyagers camped out at night, lighting big fires and making themselves as comfortable as possible. Their meagre bill of fare was varied with fish, then very plentiful and easily caught.

THE NEW FARMER RISEN.

This morning there were hundreds of dozens of eggs in the city. They were brought from the States and sold by the grocers at 15c. per dozen. Importing eggs from the States is something unprecedented, but as a gentleman remarked "it is owing to the fact that the farmers are holding the hen fruit at such a high price. They will lose by their attempts to bull the market. Butter will also shortly arrive here in large quantities. The gentleman proceeded to say that the farmers hold their produce at too high a figure. People would not buy, and the pecuniary have had to sell to grocerymen who gave them trade in return. Consequently the city people secured their produce cheaper from the grocers than from the farmers. The country folks injure themselves. If they sell at a lower figure the money would be better to them than trade." He wished these hints to be published for the benefit of the farming community.

SEEING THE ROAD.

This morning a gentleman interested in the K. & P. RR. said that at present there were no indications of the sale of the road. The talk is all done in the newspapers, and has been to the same effect for a year. The railway as now managed pays better dividends to the shareholders than it would if any other Company owned it. The road will continue to act in concert with both the G. T. R. and C. P. R. so long as it is advantageous to do so. This gentleman considered the sale of the road a thing not likely to occur for some time.

EASTER CANTATA.

Rehearsal of a Sacred Entertainment—A Local Production of Much Merit—A Success.

We had the pleasure of hearing Mr. Heath's cantata rehearsed last night by a chorus of about thirty voices. For the benefit of those who would like to have an idea of the composition before hearing it we subjoin a short resume of it. The cantata is divided into two parts, the first describing the incidents in connection with Christ's death, and the second those in connection with His resurrection. The opening chorale is a song of praise followed by a short tenor solo: "Behold and see if there be any sorrow like His sorrow"; then a chant, "And there was darkness," leading up to Christ's exclamation on the cross, "My God, My God, why hast thou forsaken me." A long pause is followed by the solo, "And the veil of the temple was rent." Thomas, the doubting one, then sings three verses lamenting the loss of his Master and casting such a shade of doubt over the disciples that they follow with a heavy minor chorus, relieved by Mary's obligato in a major key. John, the beloved disciple, then reminds his companions of Christ's promise that He would rise again. At the end of each verse the disciples join in chorale "Were our glorious Saviour dies." The second part opens with a short prelude and the angel at the tomb sings to Mary Magdalene, "Woman, why weepest thou?" She answers "Because they have taken away my Lord," and then breaks out in her song of sorrow. The angel dissipates these fears by replying, "He is not here for He is risen as He said," on which Mary sings to the disciples the news. Doubting Thomas refuses to believe but receives assurance in the words of Christ, "Reach hither thy finger and behold my hands." The last chorus follows immediately, "Lift up your heads, O ye gates." The final chorale closes the second part. The music in the first part is rather sombre, but very pleasant to listen to, and in the second part Mr. Heath brings his music, which increases in brightness, to a fine climax by the last spirited chorus. Miss Rainford, Miss Bates and Miss Borton are the ladies who take solos, and Mr. Cumberland, Mr. Sherlock and Mr. Baldwin the gentlemen. We were much struck by the really masterly effort Mr. Marquis has made in the poetry. The public will be admitted by invitation and a collection will be made to defray expenses.

Upon the results of these examinations there are, besides these, fourteen scholarships which will be awarded upon the sessional work of the students, and eleven which are confined to the Divinity Faculty.

SUICIDE IN ENGLAND.

W. H. YOST'S END A SURPRISE—WEALTH DOES NOT BRING HAPPINESS—A MISERABLE LIFE.

Difficulty with His Wife—Escape to Canada—Brings a Heavy Valise to Kingston—His Baltimore Dealings to be Burdensome—Leaves Considerable Wealth.

If the cablegrams can be relied upon William H. Yost is no more. On Thursday he committed at the American Consul's place at Baudermaline, Scotland. Mr. Yost had for the past three years resided in this city. During that time he stopped at the British American and Windsor Hotels. He was an American by birth and a resident of Theresa, N.Y. There he amassed a fortune, but for reasons afterwards explained he had to fly to Canada, and only ventured out of it once in order to make a trip to the Western States. He was a man of fair habits. His chief characteristic was his penury. He was very close. His means he obtained by speculation and farming and he "froze" to his money. He was quite a conversationalist, a careful reader and a man well posted on financial and political questions. He was a great advocate of the American polity. In religion he was of the Bob Ingersoll stripe, though he attended services quite regularly in St. George's Cathedral. His time was principally spent around the hotels. He was at times given to despondency, the result of his troubles in the States. Gentlemen well acquainted with him state that at times

HE SEEMED SO VERY MISERABLE

that life seemed to be burdensome to him. He would say life was nothing more to him than a snap of his finger. On one occasion he was particularly melancholy and had a friend not observed him would probably have ended his existence. At that time he stated that he had a mind to jump off the dock and end all. Last December Ex-Senator Spencer, a gentleman who came to Canada in order to escape being summoned as a witness in the Star Route case, put up at the British American Hotel and being from the same State as Mr. Yost an acquaintance sprang up, resulting in Mr. Yost accompanying Mr. Spencer to England. Both gentlemen had considerable currency with them. Some say they had $1,500 each. We remember the day in January upon which they left. They were driven to the station by Miles Sinnott. Both appeared to be in excellent spirits and were anxiously looking forward to their visit to the old land. They were expected back in April, but the unfortunate ending of Mr. Yost's life prevents his return. Before leaving Mr. Henry M. Folger was given charge of Mr. Yost's business, etc. etc. was principally bonds and securities which he had invested in this country. Some time ago we published a sketch of his career in New York State. We give the gist of it again; it will be read with interest at this time. Yost, was born in Theresa, where his mother and brother now reside. He was about 40 years of age, and was married some 12 or 14 years ago to a beautiful and accomplished lady. Their married life was not happy. It is stated that his parsimony was one of the principal reasons for his wife commencing an action for a decree of separation. Mr. Yost, at the time of the trial, was reputed to be worth between $70,000 and $100,000, and his wife procured a decree against him that he pay her $1,500 annually, give bonds to secure the same, and also pay a large bill of costs and attorneys' fees. The decree was made in June, 1880. His wife's attorneys commenced suits to set aside the conveyances he made of his property, on the ground that they were made to defraud his wife. Mr. Yost was in Watertown on the 16th day of June, 1880, and disposed of securities to banks and insurance companies. This fact became known to Mrs. Yost's friends, and her counsel procured an order of arrest. This fact became known to a young man in the office of Yost's attorney, and when the officers of the law sought Yost they were unable to find him. He got Yost in a buggy and with a team of the fastest horses they took the road leading to Adams, then turned towards Henderson, and then turned and crossed between Sackets Harbor and Brownville to Dexter, then down to Perch River, and direct through LaFargeville and Omar to Alexandria Bay. They arrived at the village about three o'clock in the morning. Mr. Yost was again put in a hiding place until a boatman was found and just as the sun was rising on that lovely June morning they were seen landing at Rockport by a man who knew Mr. Yost, and telegraphed the fact to Watertown. The first train from the Bay brought back the manager of the escapade. He said it was a little out of his ordinary course of business, but he started the matter and was not in the habit of letting his projects fail.

REMAINS WEALTH TO KINGSTON.

Yost brought here a valise which contained a vast amount of wealth. He said of it, "That is the richest Valise that has come across the St. Lawrence for a long time." He had a cheque for $10,000 but failing to find any person to go through the formality of identifying him forwarded it to a friend in Watertown; but his wife's attorney there succeeded in securing the funds and placing them to the credit of the estate from which she was to draw her alimony. Henry Purcell, of Watertown, N.Y., has been paying the money to Mrs. Yost, since the decision, at the rate of $1,600 annually as provided by the decree in the case. Mrs. Yost at present resides in Adams where her children are being educated. She keeps house herself, and is said to be a well educated person. Although separated from him she did not forget her husband, and always anxiously enquired, how he was prospering and what he was doing.

A SURPRISE TO FRIENDS.

His sudden end has created great surprise. To many the telegram is incredible, but others look upon it as too truthful. Men who met him previous to his departure for England assert that he was somewhat demented, and that his actions were remarkably strange. He was easily infatuated by women and many were his flirtations in this city. He was not more susceptible to their wiles, however, than many other men, who had less time to devote to them than he had.

POSITION OF YOST'S ESTATE.

We telegraphed to a friend in Watertown, and learned the following facts relative to Yost's estate and the manner in which his family may fare by his death:

Yost's wife and son are now residing in this County. In June, 1880, she secured a divorce of separation and decree for alimony against him, for $1,800 annually. Most of his property soon after was converted into money and he fled to Canada. Only $9,000 of the property, seized by his attorney, is now left. If he has made a will all of his property will go to the one willed to. If not his wife will receive one-third and her son the rest. His attorneys inform us that in 1880 he made a will giving his property to his mother and if that is still in existence neither his wife nor son will receive anything, as the laws of this country give a man the privilege to will his personal property to whom he pleases, and all Yost's property now is of a personal character. He is reported to be worth from $75,000 to $100,000. His suicide is not a surprise to those who were familiar with him.

ADDITIONAL FACTS.

Dunfermline is a town in Scotland. M. R. Myers is the American Consul there. He was appointed in July, 1878. He is a naturalized German and formerly lived in Alabama. Spencer was from that State, and it is probable that Myers was a friend whom he and Yost were visiting.

Yost committed suicide by shooting himself, the act being attributed to the troubles attending the loss of his estate and the enforced payment annually of a large sum to his wife. Yost always carried a revolver, and when the announcement was made that he had suicided an acquaintance remarked, "I'll bet he shot himself."

STATEMENT OF MR. FLOWER.

New York, March 10.—Roswell P. Flower, who when a boy went to school with Yost, who suicided at the residence of the Consul at Dunfermline, says Yost was a farmer of good family. The ambition of his life was to amass $100,000. When he had $70,000 he married a worthy lady of Orleans. Owing to Yost's penuriousness she applied for a divorce and got alimony amounting to a considerable sum. To avoid judgment Yost went to Kingston, Canada, where he met ex-Senator Spencer, who was born near Theresa. Yost accompanied Spencer to Scotland.

A NEW MISSION.

A few years ago it was a scandal upon the Kingston Churches that the people of the back townships were without the means of public worship or spiritual ministration. However the virgin field is at last being well cultivated. The Anglican Presbyterian and Methodist Churches have their well established services, and now, under direction of Bishop Cleary, Father Twohey is arranging for the erection of a Roman Catholic Church at Sharbot Lake. He went out to visit his co-religionists in that section, and has met with such encouragement in the way of subscriptions that the church will be one costing nearer $2,500 than the $800 contemplated. The corner stone will be laid in about six weeks. The church will be the centre of a parish composed of the townships of Oso, Miller, Palmerston, North and South Canonto, Olden, Clarendon, Barrie and Kennebec in Frontenac, and Lavant, Dalhousie and North and South Sherbr Lanarkeake in
