CHANGE OF PARTNERSHIP

PUBLIC NOTICE is hereby given that the partnership heretofore existing between Mr. James Kelly and the subscribers, as proprietors of the Grand Trunk Brewery, has been dissolved by the death of Mr. Kelly, and that the business has since been, and will hereafter be, carried on by the undersigned, under the firm and name of KELLY & BRUNT.

The subscribers beg to thank their numerous customers, both city and country, for their patronage in the past, and to announce that they intend to keep up the high standard of their Ales and Porter, and hope by strict attention to business to merit a continuance of the favors so liberally bestowed on the late firm.

Dealers and consumers not already customers are respectfully solicited to give their favors a trial.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—The undersigned alone are authorized to collect all debts due the late firm, and all persons so indebted are requested to settle at once, that the business of the late firm may be closed up.

THUCYDIDES RIDOUT, LL.D.

Sept. 1, A.D. 1883.

A CLEVER ROBBERY.

How a Gay and Festive Policeman Humbugged a Pair of Servants—Burglar in Disguise.

The London correspondent of the Philadelphia Evening Telegraph tells a good story of a capture of silverware by a London thief. He writes: "The house of a relative of mine was robbed the other day in rather a novel manner. The family had gone to Aberdeen, leaving the house in charge of the cook and housemaid. The night after the family had departed the inevitable burglar appeared—this time in the guise of his natural enemy, the police, blue coat, helmet, buttons—everything was right, from the japanned spike of his helmet to the sole of the brogan. He bore a pretty, purring kitten in his hand and as the door was opened began: 'I beg pardon, miss, but I suppose this dear little beauty must be yours; I found it just outside.' The housemaid's heart immediately went out to the pretty forlorn kitten:

SHE CARESSED IT GENTLY, and reluctantly admitted the 'pretty dear' didn't belong to the house. 'Ah,' said the policeman immediately, 'it do seem queer how the little things wander sometimes, and it would be a shame to leave it in the streets. I'll just call on the other houses in the terrace and if I can't find an owner I'll bring it back to you; you've plainly took a fancy to it and have a rare tender heart, I know.' Need I say that the servant was immensely flattered, or add that after disappearing for a short time the policeman returned from his praiseworthy but fruitless efforts to find a home for that kitten? Of course he was asked in to have a glass of beer in the kitchen and made so deep as he had before done on the susceptible housemaid. He didn't 'rush' matters; he made a job of it—cleverly making love to both the servants at once. He was, indeed, a charming man, and one night while staying late and partaking of cold meat pie and unlimited beer, he entertained his fair hearers with bloodcurdling stories of burglaries and murders, in all of which cases he had, of course, taken a prominent part in bringing the culprits to justice. Having wrought the women up to a proper sense of nervousness, he took his departure about midnight, but immediately returned with the startling intelligence that he had seen a suspicious character lurking about. The servants were much alarmed. So he suggested he had better go over the house with them and see that the fastenings, etc., were all right. The offer was eagerly embraced.

AN IMPRESSION ON THE COOK

AND THE PROCESSION STARTED.

While examining the dining room window the mock constable pretended to notice marks on the sash with a burglary implement. The house maid was smart to death, cook inclined to be hysterical, and, to cut a long story short, the rogue was persuaded to stay all night. Cook made up an impromptu bed on the dining room couch, and retired to rest well satisfied with the capital arrangement which had provided them with a policeman all to themselves. The regret may be easily imagined. Long before the cook and housemaid descended the policemen had disappeared, and taken with him £800 of plate, which he found conveniently to hand in the dining room sideboard. As the plate weighed about 14 cwt., the clever thief probably had an accomplice, but of this there is no proof and not a sign of plunder or plunderer has been seen since."

Killed by Electricity.

Another instance of death resulting from contact with electric wire occurred at Dayton, O., on Thursday night. The city is lighted by the Fuller system, which suspends the lamps at the intersection of the streets. While President Chandler, of the National Fuller Electric Light Company, President Lowe, of the Dayton Company, and Superintendent T. B. Robbins, also of the Dayton Company, were making a tour of inspection in the rain, a lamp in the business centre of the city went out. Superintendent Robbins, in lowering the lamp to examine it, took hold of the conducting wire where the insulation was worn off and fell as if shot. Before he died, which was three minutes later, he said, "The life is burned out of me." Had the ground been dry or insulation more complete he would have escaped.

Important.

The Excelsior Regular Treatment was introduced to the American people several years ago by furnishing the remedy to those afflicted with Hernia in any of its forms and collecting no pay until permanent cure was effected. In this way the treatment gained a world wide reputation on its own merits, never failing to cure any reducible Hernia. The Company has placed the remedy on sale by all druggists in the United States, Canada and England, in this way bringing it within the reach of all classes at a trifling cost. Ask your druggist for a free book or send six cents for one to the Excelsior Rupture Cure Manufacturing Co., Ogdensburg, N.Y.

Have You Thought About It?

Pain is one of the sure things of life, and it becomes then a most important question to have at hand the quickest and most efficient remedy. Pomeroy's Nervuline enacted full to cure cramps, toothache, neuralgia, headache, and all pain, internal or external. Nervuline is the most perfect combination ever offered to the public for the relief of pain. It will not cost you much to try it, for you can buy at Polson's & King's for 10 cents a trial bottle, which will convince you of its mighty pain relieving power.

The public are cautioned against imitations of the Pain-Killer, and to be suspicious of persons who recommend any other article as "Just as Good"; many of these they make a little more profit upon, but which have no qualities in common with the Pain-Killer.

LIGHTS AND SHADES.

Demolishing a Section in Paris that is Redolent with Crime—Suicides, Murders, Etc

Wherever there are strong lights in Paris there are also deep shadows. Probably no city in the world could present such a picture of vice, destitution and squalor as found a lodgment in a collection of miserable dwellings situated at Nos. 84 and 86 Rue de Meaux and known by the name of its owner the cite Girard, though the official signs give it the title of the cite du Tiers. This veritable city in a city had a main alley 400 feet in length, from which ran side alleys not so long, but, on the other hand, much narrower. Along these alleys, in an irregular line, arose the dilapidated buildings, kept from tumbling in a heap by all sorts of ingenious devices. There were formerly shops in these buildings, but they had been converted into lodgings by the landlord, M. Gaud, who was at the same time housekeeper, wine merchant, grocer, butcher, milkman, sold fruit and fancy goods and would not allow any competitors in the cite. There were altogether 200 rooms in the buildings, and into them were crowded a population of 1,780 persons, two-thirds of the number children. Men and women, boys and girls, all

HUDDLED PELL-MELL TOGETHER

Since a long time almost all the occupants were rag pickers. The sights presented every night were almost incredible. Two or three families economized by living in a single room. Each one brought with him his rag-picker's basket at night and kept it in the room until the morning, when he went out to his filthy work. Sometimes, especially on pay nights when the men were drunk terrible scenes would ensue as they fought pitched battles with each other with drawn knives. At other times there were combats between the proprietor, armed with a butcher's cleaver, and a tenant who was trying to skip during the night without paying his rent. One night M. Gaud, in the course of such a fight, received eight dagger wounds, which he barely survived. About three years ago the assassin Abel Leroux, rag-picker, who had murdered his mistress Leontine, was captured in this cite. The wretched inhabitants have all been forced to move, and as soon as the debris of the buildings is cleared away a street will be opened, and before long five story flats will rear their lofty fronts on the site of the cite Gaud.

LATE PARISIAN SUICIDES.

The shadows into which the nether ends of Paris is plunged assume their blackest tinge when the suicides which take place here every day are considered. Day before yesterday the ticket seller at the Theatre Gymnase, Contel, and young Alice Guyot agreed to take their own lives in the rooms they occupied on the fourth floor of the Brady flat in the street of the same name. They carefully bolted the doors and closed every crevice which might admit fresh air. Then they lit a charcoal fire in a furnace placed on the floor. At 10 o'clock yesterday morning the other tenants heard a slight groaning issue from the room, and, being unable to break open the door, placed a ladder against the outer side of the wall and entered the chamber by breaking the window panes. Contel and Alice Guyot were found lying extended in bed unconscious, but still breathing. After considerable exertion they were restored to consciousness, and may survive. A few minutes later all assistance would have been useless. They ascribed their rash act to poverty. On the same night Leo Kugler, aged 24 years, fired

TWO BULLETS IN HIS BREAST,

with instantaneously fatal results, at the Hubber restaurant on the Boulevard des Italiens. He had come here from Vienna, his native city, on the 15th of last month, bringing with him 30,000 francs, of which not a sou remains. He dined in apparent good spirits at the restaurant with a fair companion, and during the meal smilingly proposed to her that they should kill themselves together. She declined the offer, regarding it as a joke in rather bad taste. At the moment, however, when the waiter presented him with the bill for 89 francs, 70 centimes the young man pulled out his revolver and shot himself dead. One more episode of the nether side is to be found in the arrest of Armandine Nanguet on the charge of having

ABANDONED HER NEW-BORN CHILD.

She is an unhappy creature, of which the city contains so many who are mothers but not wives. She had presented herself at the Bureau of Public Assistance to obtain aid for herself and child. It was refused on the ground that at a previous visit she had given a wrong address. The unfortunate woman, in a fit of despair, put her child in the hall and ran away. She came the next day three times to claim it; the last time the official sent her to the Commissary of Police, who put her under arrest. At the examination she stated that the father of the child abandoned her six months after its birth, and her sister put her out of doors without a penny in her pocket. She had not eaten a thing for a day, and being unable to nourish the babe had placed it on the hallway of the public charity as that it should not die of hunger. All night she wandered in the streets without eating, not wishing to beg. Finally her sister took pity upon her and permitted her to return to her until she could obtain a situation. She was condemned to six days' imprisonment. It is hard to say which is the most monstrous, the conduct of the officials who refused assistance to a poor mother, or the magistrate who condemned her for a fault committed in a moment of frenzied despair.

Eno's Cure.—Gratefil and Comfortant.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of indigestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Made merely with boiling water or milk. Sold only in packets and tins (lb. and ½lb.) by Grocers, labelled.—James Epps & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London, Eng.

At the closing of the Cork exhibition on Saturday the singing of the national anthem elicited a storm of mingled hisses and cheers. The police had great difficulty in preventing a free fight.

THE TEETOTAL CRAZE.

A Statement Rebutting That Made by the Temperance Men—Do Figures Lie in This Instance?

(Western Rumor.)

In a recent number of the Isle of Wight journal there appeared a most able letter on "The Teetotal Movement," in which the writer gives a historical account of the rise and progress of this movement during the past half century. We have not space for the whole letter, but the following extract will be read with interest: "The teetotal movement has now a history of fifty years. It was going to destroy the drink traffic, and still boasts of what it has done in that direction. But how stand the facts? It is true that, as the results of half a century of temperance work, the sale of intoxicating liquors has diminished in this country? On the contrary, statistics show that it has largely increased. In 1831, when the teetotal movement was first started, there was 30,000 and Wales, or one to every 260 of the population; at the present time there are 150,000, or one to every 170. In 1831 the amount spent in intoxicating drinks averaged £3 per head; it now averages £4. The truth is, as a writer in one of our leading magazines remarked on the occasion of a recent temperance jubilee at the Crystal Palace, that the net result, after half a century's propagandism of total abstinence, seems to be that there are more public houses, that more people get drunk, and that more money is spent in drink than ever. But temperance reformers are inaccessible to the lessons of history, and the experience of half a century has taught them nothing. The state of the liquor trade at the present day, as compared with that of half a century ago, when the forces of fanaticism first leagued themselves against it, is the best answer to the loud boasts of its adversaries, and the strongest evidence of their utter impotence to realize them. "Undismayed by repeated disappointments and the utter falsification of their

LICENSED HOUSES IN ENGLAND

PREDICTIONS IN THE PAST,

they (the teetotalers) still take to their souls the unction of the flattering belief that the liquor traffic is on the eve of succumbing to their assaults. Every temporary falling off in the revenue from this source is hailed by them as a proof of their own progress, and an omen of victory. They judge after the manner of their kind. If the tide had been receding when Mrs. Partington went forth to mop up the Atlantic, she would infallibly have declared that the subsidence of the water was due to her own efforts. The state of the liquor trade at the present day, as compared with that of half a century ago, when the forces of fanaticism first leagued themselves against it, is the best answer to the loud boasts of its adversaries, and the strongest evidence of their utter impotence to realize them."

Where's the Power?

Where lies the power of the Salvation Army? It is reported that they have stormed and captured the town of Ingersoll. They are a nine days' wonder in Kingston. They have created a police court sensation in London. If they were the advance agents of a big show one could more readily understand it. But they aren't. It is simply religious fervor or fanaticism that sustains them. They have no backing from Canadian pulpits. Carlyle once said that there were 30,000,000 fools in England. But if a Salvationist can give a fool even a purpose in life isn't he doing some good? All reports agree in stating that the Salvation Army does more good than harm. If this is so we ought not to sneer at the agency, however cockneyfied and uneducated it may be.—Toronto News.

The New Governor-General's Wife.

The Marchioness of Lansdowne, who is to succeed the Princess Louise as the first lady in the Dominion, by virtue of being the wife of the Governor-General, is the youngest daughter of the present Duke of Abercorn who claims direct descent from the Stuarts, and who is the "living image" of the luckless Charles I. She is not by any means a handsome woman, being Not a fixture femme, but she is intensely aristocratic looking. She is one of the great leaders of fashion in the upper 10,000. As Lady Hamilton, she resided with her father during his occupancy of the office of Viceroy of Ireland, where she was exceedingly popular with the inner set of English officials.

Curiosities of the Census.

The "curiosities of the census" have an illustration in the returns of the north-west provinces of India and Oude, which enumerate more than 8,000 professional "acrobats," 1,000 "actors," 3,000 "ballad singers," 146 "carvers by incantation," 30 "gamblers," 97 "snake-charmers," 20 "match-makers," 10,000 "singers and dancers," 4 "poets," 4 "story-tellers," and 7 "thieves." There are more than 1,500,000 "cultivators of the soil," nearly 30,000 "land-holders," and nearly 40,000 "money-lenders."

Science.

To increase the weight of the body, invigorate the system, revitalize the exhausted and depressed, is the true object of medical science. The digestive organs must be in a healthy condition if we wish to secure this desirable result, and to remedy yet discovered has proved so effectual in accomplishing this as Flat-Sans Extract Cure. It contains the Phosphorus to build up the nervous system and all the fat producing properties of Flax-seed to enrich the blood and supply the animal economy with the elements for construction. For sale at Wade's and the Pharmacy, W. J. Wilson.

Be Careful What You Eat.

The best medical authorities declare that worms in the human system are often induced by eating too freely of uncooked fruit and too much meat, cheese, etc. Whatever may be the cause Freeman's Worm Powders are speedy and safe to cure; they destroy the worms and sustain their own authority to expel them.

Railway Accident.

Frank Spink, Wilton Avenue, Toronto, some time ago received a bad injury by an accident on the G.T.R. The severe contusion were quickly healed by the use of Hagyard's Yellow Oil.

Nervousness.

Now that there is a reliable remedy for kidney troubles half the terrors attached to these complaints have been removed. For this let all be thankful, and to Dr. Van Buren's Kidney Cure award all praise for having thus removed a hitherto mysterious fatal disease from our path. It was never known to fail. SOMETHING ABOUT FLOUR.

CHAPTER III.

We call special attention of the public to our GOLDEN CROWN FLOUR made from the finest Manitoba wheat by the full patent process. Being much dryer than the ordinary flour, it will take in more water, and of course give more bread than a like quantity of ordinary flour. It is also much healthier, and is highly recommended to dyspeptic persons, being more easily digested. Neither in the great State of Minnesota nor in the Dominion of Canada can it be surpassed for WHITENESS and PURITY. The world knows no better.
