Shut Them Down Tonight.

Shut them down tonight sir,
O cold, proud heart!
Shall trouble the tongue not a word know
Nor tell what it is to overthrow
The hope that's all in a moment gone,
That climbed so painfully upward.

Shut them down tonight sir,
O cold, proud heart!
Shut them back strong, where no one work
Wandering thro' every day and hour
Where life is true, and there lies where
Consequence hardest thrown.

Shut them down tonight sir,
O cold, proud heart!
To such the hardest lot is allowed
The saddest, shadow to be allowed
Would we not have thrown the want that drove
To sin, to shame, to prison grave.

Shut them down tonight sir,
O cold, proud heart!
Then it God does with all pain, but hold
That sympathy to its source, O cold,
Crack not the bonds which thrown
Put into him back to hope again.

STATE OF SIEGE.

Berlin, Nov. 3.—A minor state of siege is proposed for Frankfort in consequence of the explosion in the office of the Chief of Police.

FATE OF VILLAGES DOUBTFUL.

Athens, Nov. 3.—Many districts on Thursday are still flooded although the rains have ceased. The fate of a number of villages is still unknown.

GENERAL INQUIETUDE.

Berlin, Nov. 3.—Rumors are current here that the reserves of the second class of the Landwehr will not be sent home as expected in the present month. General inquietude prevails as to the maintenance of the peace during the winter.

UNIVERSITY RECTORSHIP

Edinburg, Nov. 3.—The balloting for the Rectorship of the University of Edinburg resulted as follows: Sir Stafford Northcote, 1,058; Mr. Trevelyan, Chief Secretary for Ireland, 893; Professor John Stuart Blackie, 238.

BAD BANK FAILURES

Montreal, Nov. 3.—Duggan & Co., bank dealers, of St. Hyacinthe, have assigned to Mr. Wm. Farrell, Manager of the Eastern Townships Bank, for the benefit of creditors. Liabilities $200,000. A. S. Beauchemin & Co., shirt manufacturers, St. Hyacinthe, have failed with liabilities of $45,000.

A REMARKABLE BRIDE

Washington, Nov. 3.—Joseph H. Bradley, aged 83, one of the most prominent lawyers in the district, has married Mary Hazen who was tried in 1865 for the murder of Burroughs, Treasury clerk. The defence was paroxysmal insanity, and the prisoner was acquitted. Bradley was her counsel.

ENGAGED TO EIGHTEEN GIRLS.

Albany, Nov. 3.—A pretty girl before Justice Clute complained that deshire Harry Fuhlstein, of Troy, had won her affections, and under promise of buying her a trousseau borrowed $40 from her. The girl afterwards learned that her Harry was engaged to seventeen other girls, of whom he had borrowed similar sums, so the match was broken off and an attempt made to recover the money.

CAPTURE AND DEATH.

Montreal, Nov. 3.—Detective Kirkpatrick, of Dayton, Ohio, who came here to search for a man named Nathan Haines, discovered the culprit lying sick in the Notre Dame Hospital recently. Haines was employed until August last by the corporation of Dayton as a collector of market fees, rents, &c., disappearing with from $1,500 to $1,600 of his employer's money. On removal to Dayton, Haines became much worse and has since died.

A SWEEPING FIRE

Cleveland, Nov. 3.—A conflagration is raging at Willoughby, 18 miles east of Cleveland. A number of buildings have been already destroyed. The whole business part of the town will go. Stores, dwellings, sheds and barns on Spalding and Erie Streets have been burned, also six horses and two mules. The flames were fanned by a high wind. In several instances the blaze lapped up the entire house so suddenly that nothing was saved. Loss heavy.

RECEPTION TO THE MAYOR.

Dublin, Nov. 3.—On his arrival here last night Lord Mayor Dawson was met by an estimated crowd of fifty thousand people and accorded a hearty ovation. A torchlight procession was made up, and, with five bands of music, escorted the Lord Mayor to the Mansion House. There was intense excitement, especially in College green, where the Lord Mayor and Mr. Sexton addressed the crowd and declared that the triumph of Home Rule was rapidly approaching. On arrival at the Mansion House a deputation presented to the Lord Mayor an address signed by twelve members of Parliament and other leading citizens. Further speeches were delivered from the window of the Mansion House to the immense crowd of people in the grounds about the building who received the orators with vociferous cheering. Mr. Tuyens, the Government Magistrate in command at Derry, who came to Dublin with Mayor Dawson, declares that the whole Orange party in Derry on Thursday did not exceed five thousand persons, and that the Nationalist women would have routed them but for the protection given the Orangemen by the police.

CELESTIAL POLITENESS.

That the Chinese are not wanting in gallantry or in the art of repartee was demonstrated by a young mandarin, an attache to the Chinese embassy in Paris, in a conversation with a beautiful woman who had him introduced to her one evening at a fashionable reunion. Curious to know whether it was worth one's while to attempt a little flirtation with this son of the Celestial Empire, she asked him what qualities his countrymen valued most in women. "Her domestic virtues," was the reply. "Oh, indeed," said the lady, in a slightly offended tone. "Then you don't like your ladies to go into company and enjoy a little society?" "No, madame; a Chinese husband has a right to get a divorce from his wife if she is a great talker." The charming French woman here thought she detected a covert allusion to herself, and commenting Mr. Quimoli: "I suppose that would have been my fate in China?" The Chinaman at once replied, bowing low: "You only be sure that from the day of your arrival in China the law that inflicts the mode of punishment on the inconstancy of women would be abolished."

BURNS V. KINGSTON.

Evidence Taken Before the Adjournment—City Functionaries in the Box—Cell's Condition.

It was shortly after noon on Saturday when the case of Burns v. the City of Kingston was called at the Assize Court. The jury was empannelled, but there were only nine persons upon it. This was all the jurymen in attendance. By consent of both parties the case proceeded. Mr. T. L. Snook, for the plaintiff, called his witnesses. Mr. Burns was the first. He spoke of the condition of his daughter's health before and after her incarceration in the police cells in March. She had been a strong, healthy girl, he said, and did all the housework previous to her arrest. She died three weeks afterwards, her disease, in his opinion, being contracted while confined in the station.

COL. DUFF IN THE BOX.

The Magistrate testified that the cells where Miss Burns was confined were in a pretty good condition. Mr. Snook questioned him as to what he had said in regard to their state previous to the arrest of Miss Burns, but he could remember nothing. He was not aware of having, on account of the cells' bad condition, sent persons to gaol instead of keeping them in the station. Mr. Snook said this was very strange as he remembered the circumstances, and he had the printed reports of his speech before him. The blackness of the Magistrate's mind on this point caused Mr. Snook to refrain from further questioning him.

RICHARD'S SISTER EXAMINED.

Lizzie Burns had remained in the cells with her sister from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on the Sunday after her arrest. The cell smelt like a water closet, bugs were crawling over her and her sister, and there was also a vermin in the place. Her sister could not eat anything, and after her release suffered from chills which continued to her death. Previous to her arrest she did the baking, scrubbing and washing at her mother's home. On cross-examination the girl admitted having seen bugs at her mother's house.

Witness said that queer critters had been removed from the craniums of some of the family. The counsel said that probably she had taken the objectionable company to the cells herself.

Several other women were sworn, but their evidence was unimportant, further than that in their opinion the deceased was strong and healthy previous to her arrest.

THE MAYOR EXPLAINS THINGS.

Mayor Livingston was called and said his attention had been called to the cells by an article in the paper. He investigated the matter. Mr. Snook questioned him as to the complaints lodged with the Council, and the Mayor stated that one communication had been received and referred to the proper Committee, to report. His Worship was again referring to the article in the paper when His Lordship, in a joking way remarked, "that if he took notice of everything that appears in the papers he'd have a lively time of it."

His Worship said that he would like to have the jury visit the cells. He could assure them that many homes in this city were not as comfortable.

JUDGE'S DEPARTURE—OFF FOR ——ARE.

His Lordship, who had announced his determination to leave at 3 o'clock, in gathering up his papers, remarked that if the case proceeded it would be a good idea to have the cells inspected. His Lordship said that he had to go to Napanee and he would leave the case in the hands of the County Judge.

The case stood and a messenger went in search of Judge Price, but his Honor could not be found. The counsel made most unjust remarks to the jury regarding the case, Mr. Snook going so far as to read the verdict at the inquest to the people present. Judge Price not being found it was arranged that the suit should remain over until the Spring.

MRS. LANGTRY.

Her Stage Dresses—Style and Material of Which They Are Made.

For the benefit of our fair readers we give the following description of the dresses to be worn by Mrs. Langtry here on the 13th: The first is a ball dress, pale pink satin train, over a satin petticoat draped in white lace, diamond buckles and pink bows. In the first scene, a pale blue ottoman silk sortie de bal, trimmed with Labrador fur, is worn over this costume. The second dress is a brocaded terra cotta tea-gown of the period worn over cardinal-Nil petticoat, trimmed with silver. The third dress is a chef d'œuvre. The bodice and train in one, double breasted, is of red ottoman silk and the petticoat is pale blue brocade. The bodice fastens with diamond buckles in front of the neck and wrists are ruffles of India muslin. The hat is black, with red feathers, and a large white swan's down muff completes this costume. The fourth and last dress is perhaps the handsomest. It is of white brocade, embroidered in colored flowers. The petticoat is entirely of pearls, with a ruching at the bottom of natural roses. These dresses are the work of M. Doucet of Rue de la Paix, Paris, who is considered the fashionable dressmaker of the day, and who is thought to have outpaid even Worth as a leader of fashion. The dresses are perhaps the most beautiful ever exhibited on any stage, and were chosen in Paris by Mrs. Langtry herself.

A Complimentary Supper.

An oyster supper was tendered on Friday evening to Mr. Jos. Mills, at Darcy's Hotel, Petersboro, by a number of his young gentleman friends, previous to his departure for Kingston to take a principal part in a very interesting event. A number of young men were present, only the fewer, to give Mr. Mills a good "send off," and an exceedingly enjoyable evening was spent in music, speeches, songs and singing.

ONE HUNDRED KISSES.

Sold by a Young Lady who is Sued for Breach of Contract—The Case Compromised.

A curious case of escalation is reported from across the line. Some time ago Mr. Finch, who was in the jewelry business in Newborn, United States, sold to a young lady named Miss Waters what was described as a beautiful set of real jet, the bargain being that he was to receive in payment one hundred kisses, at the rate of one kiss daily. Mr. Finch was to call at the young lady's house every morning, Sundays excepted, to receive the daily kiss, which Miss Waters undertook and promised to duly deliver to him. For thirty consecutive days—Sundays excepted—Mr. Finch punctually called upon Miss Waters and duly received the stipulated kiss. On the thirty-first day, however, Mr. Finch made a formal complaint that Miss Waters was not fulfilling her contract, inasmuch as she insisted upon permitting him to kiss her cheek only. He maintained that this did not constitute a legal kiss and demanded that he should be allowed to put his left arm around her waist and kiss her in the highest style of art. To this, however, a firm refusal was returned. The lady offered Mr. Finch a choice of cheeks, but insisted that the contract would not bear the construction he put upon it. Thereupon Mr. Finch, in great indignation, brought an action for breach of contract against the lady. The action ruined several new and interesting questions, among the most important of which was, what constituted in the eye of the law, a kiss? The plaintiff set up the further plea that there was a difference between active and passive kisses, that Miss Waters had promised to give him a certain number of kisses—not merely allowing him to take them—and that giving kisses was an act which required the use of lips. The case was compromised.

Watching a Wife's Grave.

For some weeks there has been a bell tent in Hinchley's cemetery, Wolfe Island. Some people have wondered what it was being used for in such a place, others have seen it lighted at night and had their curiosity excited in a somewhat unpleasant way. Yesterday a friend explained the case to us. He said that some weeks ago Samuel Kind lost his wife, and in the absence of a vault on the Island at that time—one has since been constructed—the body was interred. The Medical College was about to open, and the bereaved husband was determined that the mortal remains of her who had been his loving helpmeet for many years should not become a subject for the dissecting room. Hence the erection of the tent over the grave. Here he has slept every night since the burial, and it is understood that he will continue his faithful and courageous vigils for some weeks to come. Such a man is a great rarity.

Canadian Inland Carriage.

"In future inland invoices may be taken at Liverpool or any other port duty, the inland carriage from point of production to place of steam shipment will be allowed to be deducted from the 'free on board' price, provided evidence be furnished, by the production of the railway receipt, that the inland carriage has actually been paid; and the duty will be payable on the net amount representing the cost at point of production."

This is the basis of agreement between the hardware merchants and Minister of Customs decided upon at a conference last week, and it is a move in the right direction.
