A Musical Nuisance.

A slippery chap is annoying the people uptown. He has a craze for piano playing, and has been found in several parlors, uninvited, grinding out the most agonizing melodies.

An Acknowledgement.

The Treasurer of the Kingston Ladies' Association for Bible and Mission Work acknowledges with thanks a donation of $25 from the Mayor of the city towards the salary of Mr. Jack as city missionary.

Coal Oil Lamp Contract.

The Fire, Water and Gas Committee have awarded the contract for the lighting and care of the coal oil lamps to Garret Francis, the rate being $8.75 per lamp, an exceedingly low rate. There were only two tenders, the other being that of the late contractor, Mr. Allen for $10.50 per lamp. Mr. Francis has not a great bonanza.

Auction Sale.

The Messrs. Ashley, purchasers of the stock of G. W. Andrews, Wellington street, intend to offer it at auction, commencing on Saturday evening, on the premises. Private sales at clearing off prices during the week. The stock consists of ready-made clothing for men and boys, gentlemen's furnishings, store fixtures, mirror, &c. No reserve whatever—a positive slaughter for cash.

Police Court Service.

The services in the Police Court department this morning were very interesting. A great company stood up and told their experience.

Henry Armstrong, drunk, $1 and costs; Arthur Dooks, drunk, remanded; Doiver Bablen, drunk, $5 and costs; Neil Macdonald, drunk, $1 and costs; G. Jones, drunk, $1 and costs; Michael Magohty, larceny, charged with stealing a wrench and snips from J. Cockbourn, remanded. He is said to be guilty of other offences.

Wedding Yesterday.

St. George's Cathedral yesterday morning was crowded with those who desired to witness the marriage of Miss Emma L. Claringbold, a popular young lady of this city, to Joseph Mills, of Peterboro, formerly of this city. The affair passed off with eclat. The bride, tastefully attired, was accompanied to the altar by her sister and Miss Minnie Shiels. The groom was supported by Messrs. John Horsey and Samuel Mills. Rev. Dr. Wilson performed the ceremony. The couple left at 2 o'clock by the Maud for a trip to border cities.

Quoiting Match.

At a quoit match played yesterday between two teams on the Cricket Ground, the following scores were made:

No. 1 Team.		No. 2 Team.
T. McCormick	29	P. Morahan	31
Fairburn	31	R. McCormick	13
Matthews	25	Watson	31
W. McCammon	30	Saunders	31
Drisdale	31	Hinds	31
Miller	21	Hall	31
Clark (Capt.)	0	Singhy (Capt.)	17
Total	177	Total	180

Empy's team won the match by eight points.

Then there was a match between P. Clark and R. McCormick. Clark won; score 21 to 11. Quite an interest was taken in the games as witnessed by the attendance.

A Social in the P. M. Church.

Last evening the basement of the Primitive Methodist Church, Brock Street, was crowded with friends who had assembled to participate in the social given by Miss Carnovsky under the auspices of the Young Ladies' Aid Association. The tea was excellent and after due discussion Rev. R. Harris proceeded to bring before the company the talent of the city. Readings were given by Dr. Dupuis and W. S. Gordon. A recitation was given by Nelson Raymond. The "Gloria," from Mozart's Twelfth Mass, was finely performed by Master Walter Harris on the organ, Master Herbert Harris, first violin, and Master Robert Ross, second violin. They received a hearty encore. Songs were given by Rev. Mr. Harris, "The Minute Gun at Sea," encored; Rev. LeRoy Hooker, "The earth cares little for me;" the Sabbath School children and the choir. Miss Agnew played the accompaniments in a finished manner. The social was a financial success.

Tea-meeting at Portsmouth.

Last evening a tea-meeting for the benefit of Mr. H. Sattary was held in Portsmouth Orange Hall. The place was annual full. After a fine supper had been partaken of the literary and musical programme was given. On the platform were Revs. F. McCuaig, C. A. Cartwright, W. Buchanan, Messrs. Robt. Thompson, Chas. and George Cameron, and John Miller, mind-reader, who gave several successful experiments. These with local talent and a delegation from Kingston made a lengthy but highly interesting evening of enjoyment.

The Opening Concert.

The promenade concert in the City Hall on Wednesday evening, under the auspices of "B" Battery Band, was largely attended. A pleasant evening was spent. The selections of the band were of a delightful character. There was a little tripping of the light fantastic toe, but the greater number of promenaders enjoyed themselves in conversing and in listening to the music. These concerts will be repeated at frequent intervals. They promise to be liberally patronized.

Converting the Prisoners.

The Sergeants of the Salvation Army are doing great service in the gaol. They claim to have converted four prisoners, one released yesterday and two going to the Central Prison.

A HALLELUJAH TIME.

Salvation Army's Revival Event—Old Sergeants to the Front—Free and Easy.

There was a large audience in the Victoria Hall last night where the Salvation officers and all have had a hallelujah time, a jubilee event under the able management of Mr. W. J. Moore. The A.D.C. opened the meeting with prayer, then came the opening chorus, a new feature in connection with which the old sergeants were the bright and shining lights. They carried and waved banners and sang a lively hymn to the old tune of "Marching through Georgia." They received a hearty encore. Bro. Stacey, who is improving, rendered a song in fine voice, and Bro. Miller's warbling was, as the chairman said, "sweetly nice." The recitation of Miss Hewlett and the reading of Mr. Bawden were fully appreciated, and the duet of the War Cry Sergeants was received with the warmth which was its due. Bro. Shea and Dr. Wilson made capital addresses, but the most popular speaker of the evening was Capt. Nellie Ryerson, who came from Belleville for the occasion. When her name was announced the audience clapped their hands with delight. Bro. Moore extended her a greeting, said he knew they were all glad to see her, and started the chorus "Welcome Home." The people sang lustily and at the same time gave their pocket-linen a great shaking. Capt. Nellie told of how the Lord had been good to her, how glad she was to serve Him, and how the work was going on in Belleville. She had 34 blood and fire soldiers, who would fight until they died. She then sang a new song and called upon the old Sergeants to help her. Bro. Moore's aim was very interesting; the chorus of it was taken up by the soldiers on the platform. Bro. Abernethy gave a good reading, and Bro. Shea did himself credit. In the vocal line Fowler, Miller, Pigeon, Stacey, Shea, Harriman and Abernethy then sang, and Elliott, who also gave a testimony, was particularly well received. The jubilee closed with an address from Capt. Thompson and a prayer meeting.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Capt Abbin is able to take an airing daily.

Capt. Ryerson returned to Belleville to-day.

Lieut. Stephenson, who has been very ill, is much better.

The receipts were large, and go, we presume, to the Barrack fund.

The success of the jubilee is attributed to the efforts of Bro. Moore.

A "drunk" disturbed the latter part of the meeting, but he was quickly silenced.

Miss Markham rendered the accompaniments at the jubilee. She is a beautiful player.

Lieut. Pigeon, late of Kingston, is now at Bothwell, formerly an outpost of Chatham.

A soldier writes us: "The boys are thinking of engaging Wells' male for the 10th. Glory, hallelujah."

Capt. Jack Addin, of St. Thomas, was in the city yesterday. He is about to undertake the erection of a barracks.

We heard this morning for a certainty that there was not to be one but two marriages in connection with the opening of the barracks.

Bro. Shea is to drive Wilson's white horses on the 12th. Yesterday he handled the ribbons while the A.D.C., Bros. Moore, Fowler and Abernethy drove to the prison and asylum.

Capt. Thompson, A.D.C., leaves for Syracuse on Saturday, but returns for the opening of the barracks. He has been connected with the Army for over four years, and for some time was one of the Treasurers in London. In the great metropolis he has been pelted and seriously injured with stones. In Yorkshire, in the crowding and disorder attending the opening of Princess Theatre, which the Army purchased, the Capt. was stabbed twice in the right leg. Five months ago he came to America, and has since been pretty well occupied.

ON THE WATERS.

The Athabasca on Her way to Algoma—Schr. Guiding Star Ashore.

The steamer James Lee struck a shelf near President's Island last night. A man, woman and boy were drowned.

The divided parts of the steamer Athabasca have passed through the Cornwall locks. The parts are in tow of the stmr. Calvin and Hastings.

The Norseman will make her last trip for the season on or about the 17th inst. It is said that the Captain is now wearing a pair of fur-lined pants.

The steam yacht Minnie, of Alexandria Bay, has passed down the river from the Rideau Canal, where she was with a party of hunters. They had a heap of dead duck on board.

The schr. Guiding Star has gone ashore about twelve miles north of Milwaukee. The Captain reports that he was coming down with a fair wind, the night being very dark, when the schooner struck bottom and filled with water. The bottom was very rocky and the vessel is said to be in a bad shape. The crew escaped. The vessel was owned at Oswego by M. J. Cummings and was built in 1869. She was valued at $10,000; insured for $8,000.

The schr. Siberia is a total loss. This information comes to Messrs. Calvin & Son, Garden Island, owners of the vessel. The vessel, it will be remembered, was ashore at Long Point, Lake Erie. The hull, it is supposed, has gone out of her. She was valued at $6,000. There was no insurance. The timber will be taken out of the vessel if the weather permits. The storms on Lake Erie are very severe. The Garden Island firm have been unfortunate this year.

A Vigorous Old Woman.

There is in the county gaol an old lady (94 years) who is possessed of great vigour and a very bad temper. A few days ago she quarrelled on matters female inside somewhat seriously. The prison officials hope the Salvation Army will be able to convert the belligerent creature.

STATE AID TO COLLEGES.

DR. GRANT RETURNS TO THE SUBJECT—HE EXPLAINS HIMSELF FORCIBLY AND POINTEDLY.

A Vanishing Up of His Critics' Arguments—Because There is a Public System of Education no Reason Why There Should be but One College—The Financial Question Debated—An Address of More Than Usual Vigour.

The Theological Faculty of Queen's University opens on the first Wednesday in November when the matriculation examinations are held. Last night a public meeting was held in the history class room and the session formally inaugurated. Professor Mowat opened the meeting with prayer. The Principal's address on the occasion was as follows:

Ladies and Gentlemen,—In my address on "University Day" I referred briefly to Legislative assistance to higher education in Ontario, and as this is the first public opportunity afforded me of reviewing what has since been said on the subject I may be pardoned for referring to it again before I speak directly to the students of the Theological Faculty whom I am happy to see before me. The press, so far as it has touched the subject, has, I think in the main, endorsed the position that in the present circumstances of the Province only two courses are open. The State may aid every well equipped College that is admittedly doing good work, work that the Province would have to do if it was not done already; or the various Colleges must appeal to the public generally and their friends in particular for the additional funds they may think they require from time to time. No third course is possible.

A GENTLEMANLY CONTROVERSY.

I desire to thank heartily the writers who have done me the honour of criticising my address for their general courtesy of tone and desire to get at facts and principles. Controversy ceases to be barren and bitter, when men recognize that their opponents are gentlemen. I for one would not have spoken on this subject at all had I not felt that University College is chasing a shadow was in danger of losing the substance, and that even the gain of a paltry grant would cost the country dear if it led to the renewal of hard feelings between the Colleges. There is an evident appreciation of this side of the case. Those who would like to see their own College extended indefinitely at the public charge feel that an annual legislative contest "would minimize if not utterly destroy the value of the benefit sought," and in stating his own position one writer, who evidently speaks for others, has asked me to consider it fairly and to give my views a little more fully. I shall do so with the trust that he and his friends may try to look at the subject from our standpoint.

The one argument on which my critics seem to me to rest their case is as follows: University College is the cope stone of the Ontario system of public education; therefore, University College and it alone should be supported by the Legislature; not only so, but it should be supported wholly by the Legislature; and further, it should be extended indefinitely, and irrespective of the proportion of the Collegiate work of the country that it does. With submission I say that such an argument has only to be stated in words to be rejected. Every item of the conclusion would be combatted by men in sympathy with a truly national system of higher education. But, as some might agree with me on one item but not on others, let us

LOOK AT THEM ONE AT ONE.

1. Does it follow that because there is a public system of education, there should be only one College? That would be the ideal of excessive simplification run mad. We have more than a hundred High Schools and Collegiate Institutes. These ought to supply, and they do supply, students enough for three or four Colleges. There is a limit to the number of students that classrooms can accommodate, and a limit to the number of students that Professors can attend to, unless the students are to be neglected and Professors confined to hack-work. More than one College is needed in Ontario. Why, then, if public support is to be given, should it be limited to one? Would it not be in true accord with our High School system to have at least two or three Colleges in suitable centres? And if voluntary effort has already established these would it not be wise and economical on the part of the Legislature to recognize and stimulate that voluntary effort? The Legislature does so in the case of Schools of Art, Mechanics' Institutes, and other institutions. Why not in the case of Colleges? Must a British called the State enter into senseless competition with more than half of the people who constitute the State? Such a position seems to me irrational. A College may have been forced into existence by the unjust attitude of the State, it may have been the first in the country free to all without distinction of creed, it may be completely unsectarian so far as its Arts and Science courses are concerned, it may be situated in an appropriate centre, it may be

OPEN TO BOTH SEXES

and then to all instead of to half the population, it may have as many professors as University College, or twice as many, and yet it has only to be snobbishly styled "denominational" to be ruled out of court? Is it not about time for men of candour to cease pretending to be frightened by this bogy? What the country needs is not pinsean but Pants. It needs more than one college. In Great Britain the principle adopted to secure and to perfect the colleges that are needed is that the Government shall help those who help themselves. On this principle it helps all the Scottish colleges, though all of them have theological faculties, and it is now proposing to give $30,000 a year to a new college in Wales. We are asked to adopt the principle of helping only those who will not help themselves.

CLAIMS OF THE LEGISLATURE.

2. It is not in accordance with our educational system that schools, high schools or colleges shall receive the whole of their support from the Legislature. In the case of common and high schools the people who are chiefly benefitted have to contribute the largest proportion of the support. The grant that the Legislature gives to high schools does not amount to one-third of their annual cost. If the Province has more money to give to education, it should first of all give it improve the High School. These need it most, and in fact, the best way to help the colleges is to improve the secondary education of the country. We ought to have in Ontario a dozen first-class High Schools. I would not like to say how many or few we now have. But, what I wish to point out is that it does not follow, because an institution in Provincial it should therefore be wholly and unconditionally supported by the Province. The grant to High Schools and Collegiate Institutes, though comparatively trifling in amount, is conditioned by results, the sum contributed by the county or city, the number of teachers employed, and other factors. A year or two ago University College recognized the principle; I am now pointing out by implying cases now. May it not take one or two more steps on the same line? May it not appeal to those graduates who were educated in the Counties of Prince? May it not raise its fees to something like the

STANDARD IN OTHER COUNTRIES?

There is not any pecuniary sacred in its present rate of $20 a year. Scottish students are poorer in purse than Canadians, yet the class fees in the national universities of Scotland average $50 a year, and the fact that the number of students is much greater in Scotland in proportion to population, shows that such fees exclude none who are determined to obtain a university education. Indeed I would vote for putting up such a fence in the hope that it would keep some men from coming to college. I want no men at college unless they have minds, and a mind to work. Men with such minds can earn money more easily in Canada than in Scotland. Again, Upper Canada College is as well endowed, relatively to its sphere, as University College, yet its fees are $80 a year. If the boys have to pay $60, why not the aspiring and ambitious young men? In a word, the Province has done a great deal for University College, and some of us think that it is in order now that the persons and places that have benefitted most should do a little. The Province has given half a million for buildings and a million for endowment. My friends, call you that little? I wish we had as much. And we have done something. How much have you done?

3. I quite agree with "A Toronto Graduate" that "higher education cannot safely and advantageously be left to denominational effort." I think the Legislature acted wisely in determining at the outset that there should be at least one college in Ontario well equipped, and if all the people had patronized that college till its class rooms were filled, the Province would have been called upon.

AS THE POPULATION INCREASED,

not to pamper and overload the one, but to establish another college and then another, in different centres. But at least one half of the people preferred to establish colleges on what they conceived a grander ideal. They did so, not for mere denominational ends, as is ignorantly asserted, but from the highest public motives. Those men were among the noblest that ever lived in this great province. Read the list of our founders, if you would know what manner of men they were. Their names are inscribed in the Capitol. They did their work with a view to the best interests of the country. Such voluntary activity should be encouraged in a highly organized society. The less that "the state" is called upon to do the better. Doubtless the men who gave its constitution to Toronto University also acted in the public interest. And I say that the country is richer from possessing both kinds of institutions. Its educational life is fuller, more varied and more independent. Every one but the fanatics who would reduce all life to the pattern of their own brickyard will agree with me in this. Well, is the actual history of the country not to be recognized? If the university question is to be re-opened, is it to be

SETTLED BY HALF THE PEOPLE who desire one type of collegiate education getting it at the expense of the other half who have built, patiently, and at their own charge, after what they believe to be a superior type? I have such a question to be answered by the common sense of the people. I leave it to the sense of justice, with which I willingly credit my critics. Having been asked to consider the position of Toronto University I may be permitted to suggest that while its graduates have already a share in its management I see good reasons, not for handing it over to the graduates, but for freeing it altogether from party or political control. Indeed it will be a good day for the country when the whole department of Education is made independent of party. Still, the important question is not, who shall manage University College, but whether it is well managed. If well managed, its friends may be asked to do something for its extension. If not well managed, I do not see why I should be taxed for its luxuries. Our graduates are satisfied with a voice in the management of Queens. They do not govern it, but that does not stop the steady flow of their liberality. One word as to our finances, for this question has been imported into the discussion. A critic gravely informs us that while University College cannot get contributions Queen's "has been able to get

ALL THE MONEY IT NEEDED."

This will be pleasant news to some of its friends, who perhaps are getting just a little tired—such is the weakness of the flesh—of giving without ceasing. I am sorry to dispel so pleasing an illusion. Had my critic read my address he would have learned that we had just appointed two professors without having secured an endowment for the chairs, and in previous addresses I pointed out that we need now, and need very badly, a quarter of a million dollars. All that I can promise is that the money shall be well spent. University College and Queen's may well sympathise with each other, for both are in need, but our need is the greater. But I believe that both of us shall get all that we really require, if we only go the right way about it, and exercise a little patience. And when the money is given willingly, it will be twice blessed.

A SURPRISE!

The rapidity with which we obtained a large share of the Boot and Shoe trade of Kingston was a surprise to a great many. We heard of all sorts ejaculations by knowing ones when we announced our opening, such as "Two more candidates for the Bankrupt Court," "The fools are not all dead yet," &c., at all of which we quietly smiled.

WHAT A STRANGER SAW:

Before we had been open six months a stranger in the city, seeing the store literally packed with customers one Saturday evening, enquired of a merchant opposite if we were having an Auction, Were we selling off or What was the cause of such a great rush? He was told that it was nothing unusual but just the result of selling A GOOD ARTICLE AT A LOW PRICE.

GREAT EXPECTATIONS:

Our rapidly increasing trade does not at all surprise us. Knowing the inducements we could offer the public over ordinary dealers, we expected to do a large and steadily increasing business in Kingston as we have done in Belleville and Trenton. For a good article, for a large variety, for LOWEST PRICES AND NEWEST STYLES GO TO
