Mutual Marriage Aid Association of Canada.

Unquestionably the Most Popular Institution of the day in the above Association. AND WHY! Because at comparatively small cost it makes provision for the payment on marriage of from $250 to $3,000.

UNMARRIED PERSONS OF BOTH SEXES and parents are particularly interested in this association, who should at once look into the plan of operation. This association has saved during the past year Certificates to the extent of $2,000,000. $20,000 paid in benefits during 1881 to date. For full particulars address WALTER B. WEBBER, Sec'y, HAMILTON, Ont.

MY MARRIAGE.

What Trouble a Lack of Confidence Brought—A Foolish Wife's Coquetry.

A shower of brown leaves flutter down upon us as I speak, and the soft wind blows them rustling past.

"'Tis love of money is the root of all evil.' I never believed that until now." In all the comment he makes on my mad words; and then he speaks again. "The other day I heard a man speaking of a friend of mine. I did not believe him; I should like to have dashed the words back down his throat; but I am glad I did not do so now, for I am afraid what he said was true."

He means something; I know the Colonel's ways of old, and I look up quickly into the grave iron-gray face. But he goes on, speaking as if he was telling a story, looking straight in front of him, out between the stems of the trees.

"It was in the train; and they were talking about her. I did not know at first that they were speaking of my old friend, nor did I imagine it possible that it could be so. One was an old man with an eye-glass, and the other two were young. They all seemed to know this lady very well; and they spoke of her beauty, her charm of manner and her many attractions, also of her marriage; and one said—

"'She married him for his money, and why on earth should she not spend it?'

"'And flirt too if she likes,' another said, 'do be jealous, do you know?'

"Then the old man broke in.

"'And why should she not flirt and break men's hearts?' She is the most beautiful woman I have ever seen, and she cannot help men making love to her. All the county is raving about the lovely Mrs. Carstairs.'"

Quietly I listen to every word.

"It was Sir Joshua Granby," I say,—"I am glad to hear that he has such a good opinion of me."

The grand old face looking down at me is full of trouble. The Colonel sees only a bitter carelessness of the world's opinion in the eyes of the woman whose beauty has been the curse of her life. He sees not a woman's passionate heart throbbing madly at the injustice of it all. And when he speaks next, I know how firmly he believes every word spoken by those men.

"I wish I had never come to Carstairs, to see the child madmay I used to have grown into a woman of the world. You were far more lovable in the cotton frocks of three days than you are now, dressed like a woman of fashion; and—perhaps I am old-fashioned—your ghost was contained more of beauty than, before men praised it and taught you to forget your husband."

Ah, surely madcap Madgie never looked so utterly despairing, so sadly reproachful as Madgie Carstairs does now, looking into the kind stern face of the man who has known her since a child, with her eyes welling up with tears.

"You have condemned me, and I have not said one word in my defence. Some day I will tell you all the truth—but not now."

"Some day. When will that day come, Madgie?"

"When I am dying," I answer, with a burst of bitter weeping.—"all I do before Humphrey. And then you will see that poor madcap was not all to blame, and you will be sorry to have thought so badly of her."

How I should have laughed long ago if I had been told that I should be planning death-bed meetings with the old Colonel—that I should be counting on going before him, in my life and health and strength! It does not seem ridiculous now; when the heart is sad and sore, death or the idea of it seems naturally enough.

Colonel Trevanion does not laugh at my suggestion; he only says cheerfully—

"It will come all right before that, my child."

"It can never come right," I answer dismally. "And, oh, please do not speak about it any more!"

Only one word more do I say upon the subject as we get back to the house. I slip my hand within his arm, as I used to do long ago when my small fingers could just reach up to his sleeve.

"Colonel Trevanion, you must not say anything about all this at home—promise!"

"Do you believe in promises, Madgie? I remember a promise made to me once; and how has it been kept?"

"That also I will tell you some day," I whisper, with crimsoning cheeks.

"We are at cross-purposes, my old friend and I; and I may not tell him the truth. In his heart he blames me, and so goes away from Carstairs blaming me also.

* * * * * *

It is November, and Bee and Lena are with us still. Bee is well and strong again, and her short locks curl almost round the old merry laughing face. And she has taken to writing again—a story that is to end well, she says. She has ridden the Ranger again too, and comes home with bright cheeks and laughing eyes, with Chris Dalgarnet beside her, and these two seem fast friends now.

There is a ball at the Abbey to-night, the first Gongile has given since her return home; and the neighborhood has been in a state of pleasant excitement for weeks. Sir Jasper and Lady Tree are very popular; and there is a delightful vanity of Christmas festivities at the Abbey, and of the house being filled with guests.

"The girls must stay for the Christmas gaities," Humphrey says. "don't let them go, Madgie. Felicia will be here too."

The first part of his speech softens me; but the end of it turns me hard and cold.

"We must be gay too, and fill Carstairs," I answer. "Life would be unendurable here for another winter without some amusement."

So I draw up a programme of festivities that will last till long over Christmas; and there is no talk of anything but amusement.

We are all dressed for the Abbey ball, waiting for the carriage. Lena, standing her knee on the fender, turns her bright smiling face half round.

"Sir Jasper said my Dragoon is to be at the ball. Dear man, I am longing to see him again!"

"But flirt, Lena," I say, laughing, "I think you do no great credit to-night"—looking in high delight from one sister to the other.

White silk and fleecy tulle suit them well, with strings of pearls on their necks and arms, and twisted in Lena's shining tresses, and Bee's short brown locks—Bee's radiant eyes smile brightly.

"I have never seen you look so well yourself, Madgie."

"Do I do credit to the Carstairs diamonds?" I say glancing at the mirror, to see myself flashing with diamonds, glittering and sparkling.

"I am in black to-night, black net, and the diamonds shine light up my white throat.

Humphrey comes into the room, and I sweep him a low curtsey.

"Are you proud of your wife to-night, Humphrey?"—with a quick upward glance into his eyes.

"She is very lovely," he answers coldly and coldly, as if he were talking of the clock. "The carriage is at the door. Are you ready, Madgie?" he says immediately afterwards.

There are times in our lives when an impulse, strange, sudden, and irresistible, comes to us; be it for good or evil, and we act upon it. Bee and Lena have gone into the hall. I lay my hand with a quick sudden movement on his arm, and he stops beside me. He gave me light on the landing.

"What are we now," I say, with in an odd quiver.

A great white fleecy thing lies upon a chair, and gravely he wraps it round my shoulders and folds it carefully across my chest, saying no word; and my heart fills with an indescribable feeling, for one moment feels like open as I used to years long ago. One step nearer I want to him, a little closer, and gaze with sad longing eyes up into his.

"Say something kind to me, Humphrey, one little word."

I can read a sudden surprise in his eyes.

"Why, darling, do you care for what I say?" he whispers low and tenderly.

For one second my face lies upon his breast, his arms hold me closely to him, and I am more happiness though it be but for a moment, than I have been since the day I laid my cold hand in Humphrey's and stood beside the altar, his wife.

"Won't you dance with me to-night?" I say to him, as we pass through the hall; and I dare scarcely as I put the request—"people say unkind things of you and me, things that are not true."

"And so, to contradict the world's opinion I am to have the pleasure of dancing with my wife?"

The bitterness has come back to his tone. I always seem to say the wrong thing; and yet we are better friends to-night than we have been, for a long time. My hand lies in his on the drive to the Abbey; and if it trembles and struggles a little in his clasp, it is not all with pain.

CHAPTER XL

I meet two men to-night, one of whom I never expected to see, and the other I had hoped never to meet again till time had obliterated some things, and taken the sting out of others. I come suddenly face to face with Mr. Carrington and Captain Delmerest, and for one second stand dismayed and distressed. Then I recover myself and hold out my hand to Mark Carrington.

"I told no then you were to be here to-night, Mr. Carstairs," I say, uncomfortably aware that Clive Delmerest's eyes are fixed upon my face; and struggle bravely for composure, while the very sight of him brings back a hundred memories that make it impossible to meet him now with calmness. Long afterwards I hear that my sudden discomposure was not unobserved and was much commented upon and added to by those who witnessed my meeting with Captain Delmerest.

"I could not expect to meet the citizen," he says, when at last I am forced to turn from Mr. Carrington and speak to him.

"No; your sudden appearance quite startled me," I answer,[1] looking straight and swiftly with grave reproach into his eyes, for he has broken his word and come back to mar our peace.

He smiles an easy society smile.

"Are you engaged for everything, Mrs. Carstairs?"

Sir Jasper is beside me; I cannot well refuse to dance with Captain Delmerest.—There is a moment's hesitation, and then with a strange smile on his face he is scribbling his name on my card, and as he hands it back, I meet a quick triumphant gleam from his dark eyes and suddenly I feel chill and cold.

Through the crowd I see my husband watching me, as I stand with the diamonds glittering and flashing, my hand on Sir Jasper's arm, and Clive Delmerest saying a few polite things that I listen to without heeding. I promise Mr. Carrington a dance; he is engaged for the next to Lena, and presently I see him claim her and take her away from the heavy Dragoon, who seems so fascinated as ever with my pretty bright sister and gives her up reluctantly.

Very cautiously I look into Bee's face as she passes me—look at her with a yearning tenderness in my glance—and she smiles back a bright reckless smile. Three minutes ago I saw her speaking a few words to Clive Delmerest, and she can smile already with only a very faint shadow of the old trouble in her eyes.

By-and-by Lena comes to me in great excitement. I am sitting talking to Mrs. Delmerest, who moves away to a distant sofa where a future wall-flower awaits a partner in vain. Lena takes her place beside me.

"Oh, Madgie, I have something to tell you! Listen with all your attention."

"What is it, Lena?"—turning to her with sincerity, and thinking it can be nothing less than a proposal from the Dragoon.

"It is about Mr. Carrington," she begins; and all matrimonial schemes vanish into thin air. "I was dancing with him, and I happened to mention Felicia Grant; and, oh, Madgie, you should have seen his face! He became ashen, more as white as a sheet, and he asked me what Felicia Grant I meant, and who she was. He said it might mean a great deal to him if his Felicia and our Felicia were one and the same, and he got so fearfully excited, and looked as if he were beaming with joy. It was perfectly impossible for me to answer all his questions; so I sent him off to Humphrey; and they are in the tea-room now, talking twenty to the dozen.—What can it all be about?"

"Our dance Mrs. Carstairs?"

With a cold smile I look up at Captain Delmerest. Lena is carried off by a white-haired beaming boy, all dimples and good-nature. Well may he beam! He has fifteen thousand a year, and expects more; so the white haired boy is in demand to-night.

"You do not seem very pleased to see me," Captain Delmerest begins; and I cut him short immediately.

"I will not listen to any conversation of that sort. If you cannot think of anything more amusing to say, let us dance in silence."

We do dance in silence accordingly; and not until the waltz is over does he speak.

"I have come here to-night to say good-bye. Will you grant me five minutes?"

He holds back the heavy velvet curtains of the open window, and the night air stirs the hair upon my forehead and fans my heated cheeks.

Sweetness Sir! Sir!

Read this carefully. If you or any friend are suffering from any kind of pain, internal, local or external, try Polson's Nervoline, the sure pain cure. Nervoline is one of the most elegant combinations ever offered to the public for the relief of pain. Pleasant to take, powerful in effect, safe in results, and cheap because the strongest, surest, and most certain pain remedy in the world. You can test this great remedy by going to Polson's and King's drug stores and buying a 10 cent sample bottle. Try it at once.

Have You Thought of It,

For four thousand years or more the world groaned, suffered, and found about its cures, for there was no positive remedy—no certain and painless cure until Dr. Scott's Pyrenia gave to the world his great Cure for Neuralgia. If there is suffering now it is a result of carelessness, for the remedy is at hand. Try Pyrenia's Cure Extractor. It is sure, painless, and prompt. Beware of substitutes. R. C. Polson & Co., proprietors, Kingston.

Have You Dyspepsia? Sick Headache? Biliousness? Jaundice? Sallow Skin? Heartburn? Flatulency? Dizziness? Drowsiness? Coated Tongue? Foul Breath? Dry Skin? Nervousness? Sleeplessness? Cold Feet? Wakefulness? Dimness of Vision? Dull Pain in the Head? Nervous Trembling? Feeling of Impending Evil? Sudden Flushes of Heat? Confusion of Ideas? Restlessness? Sudden Dizziness? Extreme Lassitude? Irritability of Temper? Hot Hands? Inward Chills? Sorbid Appearance of the Skin? Eruptions on the Face? Pain in the Heart? Pain in the Back? Weak Kidneys? Frequent Desire to Pass Water? Scanty Supply of Water? Specks before the Eyes? Yellow Skin? Loss of Memory? Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System?

These symptoms, arising from Disordered Digestion, Torpid Liver, and Impure Blood, are frequently combined with Constipation of the Bowels. Burdock Blood Bitters will positively cure them. They act directly upon the Liver, Stomach, Blood, Kidneys, Bowels, and Nerves, at the same time. They are the only medicine that will do so. Sold by druggists, or sent by express on receipt of price, $1 per bottle. Large bottles, six times the quantity, $5. Sold wholesale by the proprietors, THE T. MILBURN CO., Toronto, Ont.

Important.

The Excelsior Rupture Treatment was introduced to the American people several years ago by furnishing the remedy to those afflicted with Hernia in any of its forms and collecting no pay until permanent cure was effected. In this way the treatment gained a world wide reputation on its own merits, never failing to cure any reducible Hernia. The Company has placed the remedy on sale by all druggists in the United States, Canada and England, in this way bringing it within the reach of all classes at a trifling cost. Ask your druggist for a free book or send six cents for one to the Excelsior Rupture Cure Manufacturing Co., Ogdensburg, N.Y.

Bad Drainage.

There is nothing more productive of disease in a neighborhood than bad drainage. Open the culverts and sluiceways and purify the locality. The obstructions in the human system may be remedied in a similar manner by Burdock Blood Bitters, which open all the outlets of disease through the Bowels, Liver, and Kidneys.

A Wonderful Result.

A single bottle of Dr. Low's Pleasant Worm Syrup has frequently destroyed from 100 to 300 worms. It is pleasant to take—no other cathartic being required. Tape worms have also been removed by it, of 15 to 35 feet in length. It is effectual for all varieties of worms afflicting both children and adults.

Pimples and Blotches.

Call at Chown's Drug Store, and get a package of McGregor & Parker's Carbolic Cerate. It is composed of Vaseline, Carbolic and Cerate, and has never failed to remove Pimples, Blotches, Ulcerated Sores, Rough skin. It cures when all others fail. Try it.

A Query Answered.

People often ask when is the best time to take a blood purifier? We answer, the best time is now. Burdock Blood Bitters does the work of purifying, regulating, and toning the system at all times and all seasons. Purity in all things is always in order when required.

A Wrong Opinion.

Many a dollar is paid for prescriptions for some disease, that never troubled the patient, and when the sole difficulty was worms, which a few of Freeman's Worm Powders would remove. These Powders are pleasant, safe and sure, contain their own cathartic, and are adapted for children or adults.

Special Notices.

Stand in.

"If you are suffering from poor health or languishing on a bed of sickness, take choice, if you are simply ailing, or if you feel weak and despondent, without clearly knowing why, Hop Bitters will surely cure you.

"If you are a Minister, and have overtaxed yourself with your pastoral duties, or a Mother, worn out with care and work, or a man of business or laborer weakened by the drain of your everyday duties, or a man of culture, toiling over your midnight work, Hop Bitters will surely strengthen you.

"If you are suffering from over-eating or drinking any liquor or dissipation, or are young and growing too fast, as is often the case,

"Or if you are in the workshop, on the farm, at the desk, anywhere, and feel that your system needs cleansing, toning, or stimulating, without intoxicating, if you are old, blood thin and impure, pulse feeble, nerves unsteady, faculties wasting, Hop Bitters is what you need to give you new life, health, and vigor.

"If you are restless or dyspeptic, or suffering from any other of the numerous diseases of the stomach or bowels, it is your own fault if you remain ill.

"If you are wasting away with any form of Kidney disease, stop tempting death this moment and turn for a cure to Hop Bitters.

"If you are sick with that terrible sickness, Nervousness, you will find a "Balm in Gilead" in Hop Bitters.

"If you are a frequenter, or a resident of a miasmatic district, barricade your system against the scourge of all countries—malaria, epidemic, bilious and intermittent fevers—by the use of Hop Bitters.

"If you have rough, pimply, or sallow skin, bad breath, Hop Bitters will give you fair skin, rich blood, the sweetest breath, and health. $500 will be paid for a case that they will not cure or help.

"Had poor, bedridden, invalid wife, sister, mother, or daughter, can be made the picture of health by a few bottles of Hop Bitters, costing but a trifle.

Summer.

To increase the weight of the body, invigorate the system, revitalize the exhausted and depressed, is the true object of medical science. The digestive organs must be in a healthy condition if we wish to secure this desirable result, and no remedy yet discovered has proved so effectual in accomplishing this as Pain-Same Excelsior Cure. It contains the Phosphorous to build up the nervous system and all the fat producing properties of Flax-seed to enrich the blood and supply the animal economy with the elements for reconstruction. For sale at Wade's and the Pharmacy, W. J. Wilson.

Honest and True.

This is emphatically the case with Polson's Nervoline, the "great pain cure." It is an honest remedy, for it contains the most powerful, the purest, and most certain pain subduing remedies known to medical science. It is honest, for it does all it claims to do. It is honest, because it is the best in the world. It only costs 10 or 25 cents to try it, and you can buy a bottle at Polson's and King's drug stores. Nervoline cures toothache, neuralgia, pain in the back and side. All pains are promptly relieved by Polson's Nervoline.

IMPORTANT TO STEAM USERS AND ENGINEERS.

How to Keep Boilers Clean.

FOR THE PATENT AUTOMATIC BOILER Feeder, which positively applied to a steam boiler, never fails to remove all from water before they become baked into scale. The Cleaner is extremely and certain in its action, and will surprise a new boiler. A boiler kept clean requires a saving in fuel and repairs, as well as a reduced liability to explosions.

Muddy Deposits and Sediments

Having the agency for this section of the country, we are prepared to fit them up and guarantee them to do all the patentee claims for them.
