A FOUL MURDER.

A Man Accepts Hospitality and Commits a Shocking Crime—A Woman in the Case.

Thomas Samon, an Englishman, aged 50, left his home at Lacroix, N.B., on Saturday, wheeling a trunk, which he took to the house of an acquaintance, James Ruddy. He stopped there for the night, taking his trunk up stairs. Shortly after four in the morning the neighbors were awakened by a woman's screams proceeding from Mrs. Ruddy's house. They found Mrs. Ruddy lying on the ground under the front window, through which she had made a desperate leap. She was bleeding profusely and was unable to rise. On entering the house flames burst out from the doors and windows, but were soon extinguished. The officers found lying upon the kitchen floor the bodies of Ruddy and his infant child, both cut in a horrible manner and covered with the contents of a feather bed which had been saturated with kerosene and set on fire. Both bodies were disfigured by the flames past recognition. In the bedroom was found the trunk mentioned and the lifeless body of Mrs. Ford, which was identified by her husband. One of her limbs had been chopped off. The detached member and the remaining leg were found in the woman's body with a clothes line. The bedclothes had been saturated with oil, piled on the body and an attempt made to set them on fire, which failed. Mrs. Ruddy, on being questioned, said the crime with a hatchet. "We all went to bed," she said, "about 9 o'clock. At 11 Samon came into the front room and looked out of the window, saying he was nervous and couldn't sleep. I got up and made him a cup of tea. I went back to bed. At 4 o'clock Samon came into the front room again and acted queerly. He went into the kitchen. My husband then got up, and he also went into the kitchen. I soon heard a fall, and going out found my husband hanging over a chair with his arms down. Samon struck me with a hatchet on the head. I grabbed his arm. He then struck me and threw me on the floor. He went to the front room and killed my baby, who was crying. While he was there I tried to unlock the kitchen door, but he returned again and struck me on the head, knocking me down. I laid quiet. He went back in the front room, got the baby, then came back and heaped feathers and straw over us and went out. I got up and tried to open the front window but could not. I then broke a pane of glass and jumped through. The hatchet with which the crime was probably committed was found in the river. Samon was arrested on the road between Lacosia and Plymouth.

WAS COMMITTED BY SAMON

HE DIDN'T RESIST ARREST.

There being a suspicion against Ford, the husband of the murdered woman, he was also arrested. Several suspicious circumstances tend to show his guilt. There was no evidence of Mrs. Ford's murder, and it is thought her death was accidental at Samon's hands; that wishing to conceal the body he took it down stairs in a trunk, thence to Ruddy's, whence perhaps he could carry it from the house during the night; that Ruddy refused to assist him, when a struggle ensued. The opposition to Mrs. Ford that either from strangulation or dragging, as she frequently indulged in strong drink. Great excitement prevails, and fears are entertained that a vigilance committee will be organized and the prisoner lynched. Samon is in jail at Plymouth. He denies all knowledge of the affair and says his arrest was a perfect surprise. He had never been regarded as vicious, even when intoxicated.

FURTHER PARTICULARS.

Samon is a cook by trade. He has a wife but does not live with her. It is alleged that he caused a separation between Ford and his wife and that he was a frequent visitor at Ruddy's house. When he reached the latter place with the trunk he called out Mrs. Ruddy and the two conversed for fifteen minutes, after which they went into the house. On Saturday morning Samon took down the clothes line in the back yard of Ford's house. It was noticed that his hands trembled violently. Mrs. Ford was between forty and fifty years of age and was last seen in the company of Samon on Friday morning going in the direction of the village. Ford says his wife had been in Samon's company two or three nights. Samon has a hare lip and is a repulsive looking person. There are several blood spots on his clothing. The coroner's jury found him guilty.

"I had been for eight months unable to work, and felt as though I would as lief die as live, through Dyspepsia and Indigestion. I vouched at the time of getting a bottle of McGregor's Speedy Cure 100 lbs.; used 3 bottles, and now weigh 165 lbs. and never was better in my life. It was McGregor's Speedy Cure that brought me around." So says Wm. Bell, Hamilton. Go to Chown's Drug Store and get a free trial bottle or the regular size for 50 cents and $1.

The Faith Cure

One who tried the "faith cure" declares she was cured—"cured of her faith"—Burdock Blood Bitters cures by works, not by faith alone. It is the grand specific for all diseases of Liver, Kidneys and Blood, purifying, regulating and strengthening the vitalfluids.

A Fortunate Escape.

Mrs. Buchanan, 20 Pembroke St., Toronto, at one time was about to submit to a surgical operation for bad lameness of the knee joint, all other treatment having failed, when Hagyard's Yellow Oil was tried, and speedily cured her.

The Greatest Healing Compound

For 10 cents sufficient dye is given in the Triangle Dye Package to color from 2 to 4 pounds of any kind of goods. For carpet rags better and cheaper than any other dye stuff. Ask for sample card of 30 colors at your druggist's.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

A Slander Corrected.

The Editor, British Whig.

Dear Sir,—A report, injurious to the reputation of one of the Captains and damaging to the Savol Army being in circulation, the Executive Committee, of said Army determined to have an investigation of the matter. It took place before a Committee appointed for that purpose last evening. The finding of the Committee is that the said Captain acted from no wrong motive in what he did on the occasion that gave rise to the report.

Portsmouth, Nov. 27.

Dr. Wilson and the Clergy.

The Editor, British Whig.

Sir,—How the members of St. George's Cathedral feel at the departure of Dr. Wilson from the city I am not in a position to know, but I can assure you that outside of the circle of his own Church his departure is universally regretted. I am not an Episcopalian nor a member of the Salvation Army, neither do I approve of the way in which the Salvation Army conduct their meetings, but there are more serious irregularities, if I may call them by that name, than attending an all-night meeting for prayer and Christian fellowship. A certain clergyman in this city says that he hopes "Dr. Wilson will return a better man," and I would inform that rev. gentleman that the Dr. leaves the city with his garments unstained, his piety undoubted, and his works will live when the names of some of those who have too warmly opposed him shall have perished. For 17 years the Dr. has laboured amongst the people of Kingston and only One, who keeps the record of the deeds done in the body, knows the miles he has travelled on errands of mercy, the tears he has wiped away, the prayers he has offered for the sick and the dying, and the many brands he has plucked from the burning. Is there to be no acknowledgment of the services he has rendered in the past? Is he to be treated as if he had committed some grave misdemeanor? How extremely painful to himself and family must to the humiliation to which he is being subjected; but he calmly submits knowing that all things work together for good to them that love God. There are bright days in store for the Dr. He will shine as a star with undimmed lustre when the flickering tapers around him have disappeared. How sad must the members of his bible class feel to part with such a spiritual instructor and adviser, some of whom had not the opportunity to say to him, "Good bye!" and it may be to some of his scholars an everlasting farewell, as many changes occur in the space of three months. It is said "that the Curate needed for St. George's Cathedral is a man that understands Greek and can eat his dinner without a knife." Two very essential qualifications, to be sure, for a minister of Him who had not where to lay His head. What next? We wait for further developments which may startle those who at present minister in holy things. I tell you, sir, the public feeling is stirred to its very depths at the treatment Dr. Wilson has received at the hands of the Rector. It would be well for him to be more cautious, that is, if to his the interests of the Cathedral at heart. What he requires at this time are wise counsellors, not like those whom Rehoboam gathered around him. I am inclined to think that the Dean has advisers who will lead him into difficulty if he be not careful. As one clergyman in the city, who is rather free to express himself just now, said, "We could not tolerate the doctor's conduct any longer. I am sorry that "he," and such as "he," were allowed to have anything to do in the matter. Praying that the doctor may be guided by the divine spirit, and hoping soon to see him again, I remain, yours truly. PHILIP.

Kingston, March 26.

A Word on the Army.

"Be not righteous over much; why shouldest thou destroy thyself"—Ecclesiastes vii. 16.

Dear Sir,—Through curiosity I have attended the so-called "Salvation Army gatherings" several times. I was at first rather impressed with the idea that their peculiar meetings might, on the whole, be productive of more good than harm. Latterly, however, I have changed my mind for the reason that to keep up the enthusiasm which was fast dying out they have introduced certain actions and mental hallucinations which, if not guarded against in time, may lead to serious consequences.

"The voice said, and vanished from his ears
The dreamer wakened in a mournful fright,
He looked around his neighbor and declared
What in the chamber he had seen and heard."

Nervous changes and mental states such as have been known under the name of "mesmerism," "animal magnetism," "neurology," "revivals," "power" and "spiritism" came on from sympathetic imitation and from the laws of habit. This law of habit gives force to persons and objects, real and imaginary, and is constitutes the "influence" by which nervous phenomena may be developed. In this manner a thought, any dominant idea as Dr. Carpenter styles it, into mind in the proximate cause. The belief is either of something imaginary, in the mind or something objective outside. This habit makes the disbeliefs to the "power" and all its attendant phenomina; it gives force to the laws of association by which the "power" comes on, and hence it is that it comes on when associated with religion. "Spirit," "magnetic power," or whatever else may have preceded the state as the suggestive or protracing cause. The immediate cause of the so-called "power," whether spontaneously or artificially produced, is always in the mind or in the nervous system of the person acted upon. All persons, without any exception, who can be more or less impressed by mesmeric processes may be made, at the wish of the operator, to see visions, to receive the power, to converse with God, etc. The actions of all human beings are to be accounted for by mundane laws. To yield up the nervous system to these abnormal states is attended with danger both to body and mind, hence so many motions in the United States become nervous, excitable, ophicentral, hallucinated and insane and there come some of the worst forms of fanaticism that have ever cursed the world.

It may naturally mentioned and superstitious people to be told that these strange results are induced by the "spirit of God" or by "that old boss the devil," but science and philosophy have claims upon us which cannot be met in this way. It was characteristic of the ages past to look upon the phenomena as supernatural in their origin. The subjects of these mysterious motions (and notions) were supposed to have been "bewitched" or "possessed by the devil." Such have been the subterfuges of ignorance always, to substitute one absurdity for another, and when unable to account for the phenomena to say "God" or the "devil" did it. It seems strange that the race should have been so very slow in arriving at the correct solution of these mysteries. Let me quote what one of the most eminent physicians in England (Dr. Wm. B. Carpenter, C.B., etc., of London,) says in his work on mesmerism, etc., (page 115) upon this subject: "In all ages the possession of men's minds by dominant ideas has been most complete when these ideas have been religious aberrations. The origin of such aberrations in uniformity lain in the preference given to the feelings over the judgment, in the inordinate indulgence of emotional excitement without adequate control on the part of the rational will. Those who are thus affected place themselves beyond the pale of any appeals to their reasoning faculty, and lead others into the same position. They are no more to be argued with than insane patients. They cannot accept any proposition which they fancy to be in the least inconsistent with their preconceptions; and the evidence of their own feelings is to them the highest attainable truth."

Hoping that some of our good citizens will be forwarned in time, I am yours, etc.,

NE ITUR FARO.

ADDRESS AND REPLY.

Presentation to Rev. Mr. Houston, Late of Athelstan, Now of the Brock St. Church.

(Farmington Gleaner.)

Yesterday morning Rev. Mr. Houston left for his new charge, Brock Street Church, Kingston. At the social held at Athelstan on Nov. 13th, of which some notice was taken in last week's paper, the following address was presented to him:

A VERY TOUCHING ADDRESS.

Dear Sir,—It is with feelings of deep regret that we, the united congregations of Elgin and Athelstan, learn of your unexpected departure from among us to enter upon another field of labour.

We cannot allow you to depart without, in some measure, assuring you of our high esteem and appreciation of your faithful labours in seeking to advance the spiritual well-being of the people of your charge during your brief pastorate amongst us.

We feel that your removal from our midst so soon is our common loss, still we believe there are cases where that loss will be more felt than in others, for we could not but observe that in homes, when sickness and trouble were there, your presence has been often found to cheer and give words of comfort. The young people, too, we are sure, will hardly realize their loss until for a time at least, they have been deprived of the instructions they have been receiving from week to week, and those of us who have failed from any cause to follow in close succession the weekly bible class meetings and others of a similar kind, tending to our spiritual welfare and general improvement, have a loss to recall not easily regained.

In conclusion, may we not believe, although leaving your best wishes will remain with us? We are led to this belief because we have every reason to hope that your connection with us, as a people, has been pleasant, and that advantages in your new home, which you could not hope for here, have alone induced you to make this unexpected, and to us, unpleasant change.

And now, while regretting to part with you, we know our loss is others' gain, and our desire is that God's blessing may ever attend you wherever He in His Providence may call you to labor.

REPLY OF THE REV. GENTLEMEN.

Dear friends of the United Pastoral Charge of Elgin and Athelstan—The address now read is something that I did not expect after so short a pastoral as mine has been among you. Until a very few weeks ago I looked forward to spending many years, if life and health were given, in a charge which though laborious I found so pleasant and encouraging. You had reason no doubt to feel somewhat annoyed at my leaving you so soon, but in your kindness you have overlooked that, or rather you have seen and appreciated the reason why I have with great reluctance been induced to accept a call to another field. I never was and am not now in favor of short pastorates, but circumstances sometimes prove too strong for theories however excellent the theories may be. I find it very painful to sever the tie that bound us together.

With all my heart I thank you for the testimony you bear to what I tried to do while I was your pastor. It was my endeavour to be and to do what you say I was and did, and it is exceedingly gratifying to me to find that you perceived what my motives were even when the performance fell so far short of what it ought to have been. I have testimony to show that my visits to the sick and bereaved were prized and were gratifiable. The young people have shown their appreciation of the little I was able to do for them. In the delightful recollections I shall ever cherish of my stay here the young people who were in my bible classes, who attended their own meetings, and especially those who became communicants under my ministry, will have a large place. I felt that I was one of themselves, a young man among those that are young.

You have very correctly stated the reason why a pastorate so pleasant on both sides and I trust profitable has been cut so short.

That you part from me in so kindly and considerate a spirit is not only a source of very great satisfaction both to me and to my family, it will also be by the blessing of God an incentive to more unwearied exertion in the new field to which I go; and your good wishes and prayers for me will without doubt come back upon your own heads in blessing from that God whose we all are and whom we ought to serve.

Yours in the bonds of the Gospel.

SAMUEL HOUSTON.

GALLOWAY

Old Mistress Thatcher
Went to Galloway's store
To get her boy daughter some furs!
And when she got there
I declare! I declare!
She didn't know the ladies from Furs.

She got in a state
To know what to do,
But Galloway came to her aid!
He said her boy
Should have for all that the pick
Of the vast array placed
And waved on her down.
She'd once and for more it's a week
For the goods that he sold
Were equal to gold,
The woman who had a large flock.

The moral is plain,
To his store go you,
The people go back, who saw him
His goods are marked low
And all sizes to go.
Before the Dominion were free.
