HERE AND THERE.

LAUREL ARRANGEMENT OF ITEMS OF Local and General Interest—Some that is Readable.

Remember the land sale on Wednesday next.

The shortland class will meet in the Institute to-morrow (Friday) evening.

There will be no goods sold at the Institute, as they are to be kept over for the 'Yule sale'.

Mr. T. H. McGraw's new lecture on Commercial Law will be delivered on Dec. 7th, a week from to-morrow evening.

Ready made clothes, $1.75 each, at Hardy & Murray's, and Scotch Tweed clothing, double fold, only 60c per yard.

St. Paul's Church Temperance Society's annual meeting takes place this evening in the School room at 7:45 o'clock.

Heavy white twill blankets from $1.50 per pair. Heavy quilted comforters, 6 lbs. weight, only 50c, at Hardy & Murray's.

The 'Big Traveller' will arrive this evening with the large Princess in tow.

The large made a quick trip to Montreal and back.

If you want the most satisfying value in black and silver silk offered in the city, go to the Richmond & Boyd's great clearing sale.

There is a lovely view at Westburn, an apartment on the Fitzroy circuit. Mr. H. H. H. is conducting it. He has received 2000 bids, and the work continues.

The Board of Management of the Church of England Missionary Society met yesterday in Montreal. The Bishop of Ontario presided. Reports were exchanged.

A medical gentleman last evening presented a handsome bouquet of flowers to the ladies in charge of the hospital table. It was very handsome and greatly admired, and for it they are deeply grateful.

The three H's—Hughes, Homan and Hinds—the new officers of the Salvation Army, are the guests for the present of ex-Sergeant Moore. They had the largest march out last night that has been seen in Kingston for a long time.

A person in Guelph appeared against conviction under a snow by-law. The case came up at the Court in Term, Toronto, and the by-law was sustained. The snow-by-law in Kingston is the same as that of Guelph. People can be compelled to clean the sidewalks.

W. T. Norris is running full tilt against the 'no-barking' of our waters. He wants us to construct the statement that he refused to pay his workmen their wages, and that the Magistrate told the police to run him in if he persisted in his street preaching. Time will indicate who has understood the facts aright—W. T. or the reporter.

PERSONAL MENTION. How People who Know are Spending Their Time—Their Coming and Going.

The Governor-General will visit Toronto after the meeting of Parliament. J. H. Ross, J. H. Allen, and Donald Ross, of Picton, are at the Burnett House.

Mr. Power, Government architect in Kingston, is in Ottawa on business with the Government.

Rev. Samuel Day, incumbent of the Anglican Church, Westmount, has returned from his wedding tour.

Dr. Jenkins, of Montreal, will occupy the pulpit of St. Andrew's Church, Ottawa, during the sitting of the Dominion Legislature.

Mr. G. W. Ross, Minister of Education, was yesterday nominated to oppose Mr. Alex. Johnston for the local election in West Middlesex.

Hon. J. O'Connor has been appointed President of the Commission for the codification of the laws of the Dominion, in place of the late Hon. James Cockburn.

ARRIE TEMPLE.

A Reception of the New Officers—A First Impression—First Several Views.

Last evening Arrie Temple was crowded with those who desired to welcome the new officers of the Salvation Army.

Shortly before 8 o'clock they approached, leading the procession from the Market Square. The band was not and accompanied the soldiers in their march through several of the streets.

When the new officers ascended the platform, the audience, the better to see and applaud them. The meeting then proceeded as usual. There were songs and testimonies, the latter being of a somewhat lively character.

Mr. McGill welcomed the officers to Kingston, and declared that the Army here would strive to rival those of other cities.

WHO THE NEW COVERS ARE. Lieut. Hinds, of Toronto, is a tall young man with a large nose and not unpleasant face.

The sergeant who was extremely low and could not be heard at the double was very low and handsome, she said, but she was glad to come to Kingston, and for him would be to save the souls of sinners.

Lieut. Hanson, "Scotch Annie" is rather diminutive, but, as Capt. Hughes remarked, "though small she's good."

She has a prominent nose, and a 'voice which would 'strange' her naturally. Her delivery, however, is very distinct and her recitation good.

She has been the companion of Capt. Hughes for two years.

Capt. Linton is a capable young woman, about 20 years of age, tall and well built. She presided last evening with a song which she sweetly rendered. Her singing will undoubtedly be the attraction and make up for the loss of Arrie's vivaciousness.

She speaks clearly and lucidly, and her language is full of grace.

First impressions are not always correct, so that further criticism of the ladies is withheld until their manner and methods are better known.

The Captain said she was glad to be in Kingston and expressed her thanks for the hearty welcome that had been given to her and her associates.

Her desire while here is to win souls. Her plea is evidenced by the fact that she has been twice in prison for singing and preaching upon the streets.

During the evening there were frequent references to Arrie and several volleys were fired when her name was mentioned. The people cannot rid themselves of her memory.

Mr. Byles said he had received a telegram from her, announcing her safe arrival at her destination, and expressing a hope that the Army would hold firmly together.

FIRE AT THE CAPE. A Number of Persons Burned Out—A Big Loss to Several Families.

Yesterday at noon the St. Lawrence Hotel in Cape Vincent caught fire and the entire block was destroyed.

A very high wind prevailed at the time the fire broke out, and it was impossible to stay the progress of the flames.

Many of the goods in the burning stores were saved, and the hotel furniture was rescued by being taken out of the premises.

The total loss estimated at $75,000. Following are the names: MacAlister, proprietor of the hotel; L. O. Woodruff, druggist; J. Burdette, jeweler; Gibson Kelley, grocer; S. Block, dry goods; J. B. Grapotte, grocer; H. Corneil, grocer; C. H. Morrison, meat market; Campbell & Farrell, dry goods.

Most of the losses had an insurance on their goods. The Watertown fire brigade was asked to assist in staying the fire element.

A special train was placed at the Department's disposal and a steamer was run to the Cape in 10 minutes. The fire was put out by the company arrived. The steamer was not unloaded.

DR. SULLIVAN'S LECTURE.

An Interesting Subject Discussed—An Exposition of the Latest Discoveries in Physiology and Hygiene—A Practical Exposition.

One of the best popular scientific lectures ever delivered in Kingston was that by Dr. Sullivan in the College Institute last evening.

The attendance at this public lecture is a notable instance of the interest in scientific matters which is being manifested in this city.

The subject of the lecture was the physiology of the liver and kidneys. He began by describing the structure and position of these organs in the abdominal cavity.

One of his chief functions, he said, was the secretion of bile; another function was the elaboration of glycogen, a substance that supplied sugar to the blood.

The liver weighs nearly four pounds, and is kept in position under the edge of the ribs and along the right side of the body by a coat of peritoneum.

The organ is supplied with both arterial and venous blood, and is made up of a mass of lobules, in the capillaries of which the two kinds of blood mix and secrete the bile in some way not yet fully understood.

Enlarged views of some very beautiful photographs in connection with the minute structure of the liver lobules with their interlobular and intralobular circulatory vessels, were thrown upon a screen by Mr. Kight.

These assisted in bringing out clearly the Doctor's explanation of the action of the organ.

The part of the lecture relating to the kidneys was even more interesting than that regarding the liver; and here again the lantern views were much admired by the audience.

As I greatly admired the lecturer in his vivid description of the organ, its location, structure, uses and disarrangement, no condensed report could do justice to the lecture.

Those who heard it were delighted; those who did not attend a great treat. In closing, he said he did not desire the hearty applause of the audience. The Doctor intimated that he would perhaps, on some future occasion, give another lecture on some other subject in physiology, as he felt it his duty, in common with his fellow physicians, to do all in his power to disseminate information as possible regarding such important public matters as the preservation of health.

LURID SKY AT NIGHT. The Evening Sky a Gloomy Sky in West After Storm—Thunder and Lightning.

On Saturday and Sunday evenings, and again on Tuesday and last night, there was seen after sunset the phenomenon of a remarkably red sky in the west.

The entire western and southwestern heavens were glowing with a brilliant crimson light as if a mighty conflagration were raging just beyond the field of vision, and the reflection of it was only visible.

Many people were wondering and admiring observers of the event. Among them was an old gentleman, meeting a newspaper man who stopped him and said, "You know everything; what's the cause of that red sky?"

We reminded that that was one of the only three things we did not know, but that for his sake we would make enquiries and inform not only him but the general public. Dr. Sullivan, of Rochester, N.Y., a noted man, writes the following explanation: "The red rays of the solar light have greater energy than the other rays, and when a beam of white light, which is composed of all the rays of the solar spectrum, encounters such an obstruction as smoke in the atmosphere, only the red rays pass under such conditions as to force its way through, while the other rays are sifted out. We thus are able to enjoy the rare spectacle of a crimson sky after sunset. Of course atmospheric reflection, and to some extent, refraction contribute to the general effect as well as to the duration of the same."

Such phenomena as that observed last night is almost invariably followed by severe atmospheric disturbances.

LIFE-SAVING REWARD. Mr. Tracy, of Wells Island, would reward $100 for information leading to the discovery of a lifeboat.

Mr. M. Tracy, of Wells Island, who has served many lives during the past few years, called upon us a day or so since to ask if it were true that the Marine Department, recognizing his services, was about to present him with a watch and chain. The information, we pointed out, came from Ottawa, and that his government would do so.

He was pleased at his prospective recognition by the Government, but said that he would have preferred all the gold of a supply and generally enjoyed his life.

He hopes that in any case he will be given a look-out for his own use and pleasure, but for the sake of the cool service which he says he can render with his watch and chain. He ought to get the best of willing to take charge of it without cost, so far as his labor is concerned, to the country.

ASTRONOMY DENIAL.

The Facts Regarding the Loss of the Crew of the S.S. Fitzgerald—Sensational Stories.

Shortly after the loss of Capt. Dan Langan and his crew on the S.S. Fitzgerald, which went ashore on Long Point, sensational statements were made from Port Huron, indicating that the vessel was wrecked because of the incapacity of the life-saving crew.

The statement is untrue. A gentleman of veracity writes as follows: "The unfortunate Fitzgerald crew ashore about five miles west of here (Port Huron) on, I think, Wednesday, the 14th inst., about 10:30 a.m. Almost as soon as the wreck of the vessel was seen, the crew of the life-saving crew, who were on the shore, started for the vessel. When about one-third of the distance from the man who had the steering or lost control of the boat, and the next man struck her on the forehead and upon the chest. The sea was very high, and the occupants of the boat were thrown so that not one of them, ever got a hold of the boat again. One man got hold of an oar and was nearly saved, but the under tow was so great that he was carried off his feet and went with the rest of them."

As soon as the vessel struck a messenger who went to notify the life-boat Captain, but before that messenger had reached more than half way here all that I have told about the loss of the unfortunate vessel had taken place. The men were all drowned before the Captain of the station boat there was a vessel in distress. When I state that, and it is a fact beyond dispute, the whole bottom drops out of the article. As to whether the Captain should have taken his boat and crew with him when he first started or not I have nothing to say. I have that for those in authority to decide. As it may be of service on some future occasion I think it should be decided, but in the case of the unfortunate crew of the Fitzgerald it makes no difference. The men lost their lives by taking chances in their own boat instead of waiting for those on shore to do something for them. When the vessel first struck she was from 200 to 300 yards from shore. What I have stated in this letter is correct, and the facts can be verified at any time. You, as well as the public, will see the authorities in changing the loss of the crew either to the Captain or even to the life-boat situation here."
