HIS SOMBRE RIVALS

Author of "Barriers Burned Away"—"Opening a Chestnut Burr"—Etc., Etc.

"You appear frank, Mr. Graham, and you certainly have not studied philosophy in vain."

"Why should I not take a philosophical view of the affair? In my project, which I thought so safe and astute, I blundered. If from the first I had manifested the feeling—the young girl smiled slightly at the word—"which [illegible] were sent —, I might have taught me the wisdom of repressing its growth. Then you see that you have not the slightest reason for self-censure; and I can go on my way, at least a wiser man."

She bowed gracefully, as she said with a laugh, "I am now beginning to understand that Mr. Graham can scarcely regret anything which adds to his stores of wisdom, and certainly not so slight an 'affair' as a 'vacation episode.' Now that we have talked over this little misunderstanding so frankly and rationally, will you not join us at whist to-night?"

"Certainly. My aunt and I will come over as usual."

Her brow contracted in perplexity as she looked searchingly at him for a moment; but his face was simply calm, grave and kindly in its expression, and yet there was something about the tone which impressed her—something elusive, but felt by her woman's intuition. It must be admitted that it was felt but vaguely at the time; for Grace after all was a woman, and Graham's apparent philosophy was not altogether satisfactory. It had seemed to her as the interview progressed that she had been surprised into showing a distress and sympathy for which there was no occasion—that she had interpreted a cool, self-poised man by her own passionate heart and bountiful love. In brief, she feared she had been sentimental over an occasion which Graham, as he had suggested, was able to view philosophically. She had put a higher estimate on his disappointment than he, apparently; she had too much of her father's spirit, and too much womanly pride not to resent this, even though she was partially disarmed by this very disappointment, and still more so by his self-accusation and his tribute to Hilland. But that which impressed her most was something of which she saw no trace in the calm, self-controlled man before her. As a rule the soul's life is hidden; except as it chooses to reveal itself; but there are times when the excess of joy or suffering cannot wholly be concealed, even though every muscle is rigid and the face marble. Therefore, although there were no outward signals of distress, Graham's agony was not without its influence on the woman before him, and it led her to say, gently and hesitatingly, "but you promised to be my friend, Mr. Graham."

His iron will almost failed him, for he saw how far removed she was from those women who see and know nothing save that which strikes their senses. He had meant to pique her pride as far as he could without offence, even though he sank low in her estimation; but such was the delicacy of her perception that she half divined the trouble he unkindly strove to hide. He felt as if he could sit down and cry like a child over his immeasurable loss, and for a second feared he would give way. There was in his eye a flash of anger at his weakness, but it passed so quickly that she could scarcely note, much less interpret it.

Then he stepped forward in a friendly, hearty way, and took her hand, as he said, "Yes, Miss St. John, and I will keep my promise. If you knew my relation to Hilland you could not think otherwise. I shall tell him when we meet of my first and characteristic siege of a woman's heart, of the extreme and prudent caution with which I opened my distant parallels, and how, at last, when I came within telescopic sight of the prize, I found that he had already captured it. My course has been so perfectly absurd that I must laugh in spite of myself;" and he did laugh so naturally and genially that Grace was constrained to join him, although the trouble and perplexity did not wholly vanish from her eyes.

"And now," he concluded, "that I have experienced my first natural surprise, I will do more than sensibly accept the situation. I congratulate you upon it as no one else can. Had I a sister I would rather that she married Hilland than any other man in the world. We thus start on the right basis for friendship, and there need be no awkward restraint on either side. I must now pay my respects to my aunt, or I shall lose not only her good graces but my supper also;" and with a smiling bow he turned and walked rapidly up the path, and disappeared within Mrs. Mayburn's open door.

Grace looked after him, and the perplexed contraction of her brow deepened. She picked up Hilland's letter, and slowly and musingly folded it. Suddenly she pressed a fervent kiss upon it and murmured, "Thank God, the writer of this has blood in his veins; and yet—and yet—he looked at first as if he had received a mortal wound, and all the time I felt that he suffered. But very possibly I am credulous. Alfred, I solemnly need tell you that my disappointment in Hilland does not affect my heart on this thing."

"You know all, then?"

"Yes, I know she is engaged to your friend, Warren Hilland. She came over to this desk of hers evening, and sitting just where you are, told me all. I urged it. It was not for me to reveal your secret. I bid the unhappy girl talk on, kissed her, and wished her all the happiness she deserves. Grace is unlike other girls, or I should have known all about it long ago. I don't think she even told her father until she had written to him her full acknowledgment. Your friend, however, had guessed her father's consent to his affections long since. She told me this."

"Oh, my awful fiancée!" he groaned.

"Alfred," Mrs. Mayburn said, gently but firmly, thinking of her future, Grace is as good and kind that she would be very unhappy if she saw and heard you now. I hope you did not give way thus in her presence."

He sprang to his feet and paced the room, rapidly at first, then more and more slowly. Soon he turned up the light, and Mrs. Mayburn was surprised at the change in his appearance.

"You are a strong, sensible woman," he began.

"Well, I will admit the premise for the sake of hearing what is to follow."

"Miss St. John must never know of my sense of loss—my present despair," he said in low, rapid speech. "Some next in life may come back to me in time; but, be that as it may, I shall meet my trouble like a man. To make her suffer now—to cloud her well-merited happiness and that of my friend, would be to add a bitterness beyond that of death. Aunt, you first thought me cold and incapable of strong attachments. A few weeks since I could not have said your estimate was far astray, although I'm sure my friendship for Hilland was as strong as the love of most men. Until I met you and Grace it was the only evidence I possessed that I had a heart. Can you wonder? He was the first that ever showed me any real kindness. I was orphaned in bitter truth, and from childhood my nature was chilled and benumbed by neglect and isolation. Growth and change are not so much questions of time as of conditions. From the first moment that I saw Grace St. John she deeply interested me; and self-complacent, self-confident fool that I was, I thought I could deal with the supreme question of life as I had with those which half the world never think about at all. I remember your warning, aunt; and yet, as I said to myself at the time, there was more of incentive than warning in your words. How self-confidently I smiled over them. How perfectly sure I was that I could enjoy this rare girl's society as I would look at a painting or listen to a symphony. Almost before I was aware, I found a craving at my heart which I now know all the world cannot satisfy.

Wait a Minute

And read this. You may be troubled with corns, and if not at present they may take root in the near future. Therefore we want to tell you what to use in order to make a perfect cure, and especially what to avoid. Of course like the majority of people you will want to use the best that is to be had. That is Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor. Sure, safe, painless. Avoid, then, the article "just as good" or the something else "a good deal better." You will regret using anything else than Putnam's, for it don't hurt, and you can't tell what the others will do until you try. Don't live to be sorry when you can so easily prevent it. Poison & Co., props.

Stamina.

To increase the weight of the body, invigorate the system, revitalize the exhausted, and decrepid, is the true object of medical science. The digestive organs must be in a healthy condition if we wish to secure this desirable result, and no remedy yet discovered has proven so effectual in accomplishing this as Flax-Seed Emulsion Comp. Reestores the Phosphorous to build up the nervous system and all the fat producing properties of Flax-seed to enrich the blood and supply the animal economy with the elements for reconstruction. For sale at Wade's and the Pharmacy, W. J. Wilson.

Important.

The Excelsior Rupture Treatment was introduced to the American people several years ago by furnishing the remedy to those afflicted with Hernia in any of its forms and collecting no pay until permanent cure was effected. In this way the treatment gained a world wide reputation on its own merits, never failing to cure any reducible Hernia. The Company has placed the remedy on sale by all druggists in the United States, Canada and England, in this way bringing it within the reach of all classes at a trifling cost. Ask your druggist for a free book or send six cents for one to the Excelsior Rupture Cure Manufacturing Co., Ogdensburg, N.Y.

Honest and True.

This is eminently the case with Polson's Nervilline, the "great pain cure." It is an honest remedy, for it contains the most powerful, the purest, and most certain pain subduing remedies known to medical science. It is honest, for it does all it claims to do. It is honest, because it is the best in the world. It only costs 10 or 25 cents to try it, and you can buy a bottle at Polson's and King's drug stores. Nervilline cures toothache, neuralgia, pain in the back and side. All pains are promptly relieved by Polson's Nervilline.

Everybody Say! Do!

Read this carefully. If you or any friend are suffering from any kind of pain, internal, local or external, try Polson's Nervilline, the sure pain-pany cure. Nervilline is one of the most elegant combinations ever offered to the public for the relief of pain. Pleasant to take, powerful in effect, sure in results, and cheap because the strongest, purest, and most certain pain remedy in the world. You can test this great remedy by going to Polson's and King's drug stores and buying a 10 cent sample bottle. Try it at once.

Carpet Free.

Any reader troubled with dyspepsia, costiveness, headache, liver complaint, etc., should call at Clowes's Drug Store, and secure a free trial bottle of McGregor's Speedy Cure at once, which will convince you of the merits of the medicine. It cures permanently where all other medicines have failed. As a blood purifier it has no equal. Remember it costs nothing to try it. Regular size, 50 cents and $1.

A Failure in Crops.

A species of worm is eating all the leaves from the chestnut and hickory nut trees in many sections, and the crop will be a failure. Worms that afflict children or adults will prove a failure if Dr. Low's Pleasant Worm Syrup is used. It is a safe and sure cure for all worms that lurk in the human system, tape worm included.

Be Aroused in time, and do not allow what may appear to you as a simple back ache now, to run into a disease of the kidneys, which invariably proves fatal in the end. Dr. Van Buren's Kidney Cure will at once ease your pain and positively prove those unfortunate results. Take it at once. Any druggist will have it.

A Little Behind Hand.

Some people are always a little behind hand in all undertakings; delays are dangerous, and none more so than in neglecting what seems a trifling cold. Prudent people break up the ill effects by timely use of Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam, thus preventing serious lung troubles.

PICTORIA! Pectoria! Pectoria! the great remedy for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Sore Throat, Influenza, Hoarseness, and all affections of the Lungs and Throat or chest. "Pectoria" loosens the phlegm and breaks up the Cough. 25 cents per bottle. Don't give up until you have tried "Pectoria," all Druggists and General Store-keepers sell it.

☞ Mr. R. A. Harrison, Druggist of Dunnville Ont., writes: "The Triangle Dyes have an immense sale here and give the best satisfaction of any dyes ever sold in this section." Remember the genuine are enclosed in 3 cornered envelopes. Take no other. 10 cents.

The Most frightful scourge of humanity is Bright's Disease of the Kidneys. Commencing with a little pain in the back, it harries the sufferer to a premature grave. Dr. Van Buren's Kidney Cure is the only known remedy that prevents the fatal result. Take it in time.

Complexion.—A name well known in connection with the Hair Renewer, which restores gray hair to its natural color by a few weeks use. Sold at 25 cents a bottle by all druggists.

CELEBRATED COOK'S FRIEND BAKING POWDER

It is a Pure, Full Acid Powder

It contains neither alum, lime, nor ammonia, and may be used by the most delicate system with perfect safety. Its great success has induced many imitations, and we caution consumers against buying any of the various Yeast Powders, Phosphate Powders, &c., that are offered, as they are not pure. The Medical Faculty says: "The use of alum in Yeast Powders produces Dyspepsia, Heart Disease, &c." A circular explaining the ill effects of alum, issued by the Health Officer of Toronto, will be sent to any address. Ask your grocer for COOK'S FRIEND, and see that you get it, as it is claimed by the venders of the inferior powders that they have the same as the Cook's Friend. Beware of such.

No additions or variation from the simple name:

COOK'S FRIEND,

IS GENUINE.
