A Great Revival.

About 40 miles from here, in the village of Milford, there has been a stirring revival for about the last two months under the supervision of Rev. Mr. Robeson, of Invernary. There have been already over 100 soundly converted.

A Burglar Sentenced.

John Kelly, of Toronto, entered the house of R. H. Smart, Brockville, and stole a large number of goods. He had sixty-two knives in his pockets when arrested. The fellow was taken before Judge Macdonald and sentenced to five years in the Penitentiary. He was put through his facings in thirteen hours.

Out in the Woods.

Mr. Peter McLaren, of Perth, was in the city to-day and said that operations had been begun in the woods. He says that the cut this year will be smaller than hitherto, as there is a depression in the lumber market and considerable of last year's cut is still on hand. Considerable square timber will be prepared for the English market.

A Novel Tea Meeting.

Rev. LeRoy Hooker was at Farmersville on Sunday. He preached the anniversary sermons. On Monday night he delivered an eloquent lecture on "Sir Henry Havelock." In connection with this lecture was a genuine New England dinner, of which the chief items were pork and beans, hash, doughnuts and pumpkin pie.

An Humble Apology.

William Hastings was tried on Amherst Island before R. Patterson, D. Preston and Thomas Polly, Justices of the Peace, for using threatening language was bound over to keep the peace, giving $200 personal security and finding two sureties of $100 each. At the same time he signed an apology as humble and abject as any one could desire.

The Ontario and Quebec Railway.

It is likely that the O. & Q. road will be ironed and bridged right through from Toronto to Perth before February 1st, and that on that date freight trains will be run over it to Ottawa, though it is not probable that passenger traffic can be accommodated before July 1st, by which time the ballasting ought to be completed.

Death in Winnipeg.

On Thursday Mr. John M. Macdonell, barrister, Winnipeg, brother of Mr. G. M. Macdonell, of this city, died suddenly of heart disease. His funeral in Winnipeg occurred on Friday evening and was largely attended by members of the bar, the Masonic fraternity, the Hospital Board, and many personal friends of the deceased. The remains were brought to Kingston and interred in Cataraqui on Monday afternoon. He was a resident of Winnipeg for ten years.

A Great Sufferer.

While at dinner on Saturday Mrs. Peck, wife of Rev. Mr. Peck of Harrowsmith, unfortunately allowed a small piece of bread to enter her windpipe. It worked down the passage and is now lodged in the lung. She suffers great pain. Although three doctors were summoned relief could not be given to her. Her condition is now reported to be quite low. Medical men are doubtful of her recovery, as the obstacle is lodged in a dangerous place and inflammation is very apt to ensue.

"Caring the Bumerang."

To-night Rohan's Combination will present Daly's latest success, "7-20-8," in the Opera House. The Ottawa Citizen says of it:—"It was put on the boards in capital style, and during the entire performance kept the house in roars of laughter. The caste was a capital one. Every performer seemed to enter heartily into his or her part. The setting of the scenery and stage was very good. Not too realistic, but perfectly natural, and tended in no small measure to enhance the histrionic efforts of the performers."

Concert in Hartington.

Last evening a concert and tea meeting occurred at Hartington in the Canada Methodist Church. There was a fair attendance, though the weather militated against it. The supper was excellent and very heartily enjoyed. The literary and musical part of the programme was very entertaining. The Blue Ribbon choir of Sydenham sang frequently. Solos and duets were also given by E. Cranksy and J. W. Sherlock; readings and recitations by Messrs. R. Mowat, E. Cranksy and Mr. Leonard; and admirable speeches by Rev. Messrs. Eldridge and Lidstone, of Sydenham. The receipts totalled $47.

Revival Service.

Last night's evangelistic meeting was held in the Primitive Methodist Church, the chief address being delivered by Rev. H. F. Bland. He spoke of the three dispensations—of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost—and remarked that many professing Christians only lived in the two former. He urged the people to get into the latter dispensation and to enjoy fully the assurance of fellowship with God. He alluded to the case of an infidel who had long been injurious to the most powerful arguments, but who was brought to Christ through the prayer of a good man. The pious prayer had long since passed to the skies, but the infidel still lived, and had been instrumental in saving many souls. In the fellowship meeting several testimonies were given. The prayers for the descent of the Holy Ghost elicited many responses.

HE WAS SUFFOCATED.

The Cause of Hugh Simpson's Death—A Coroner's Inquest Removes all Previous Doubt.

Last night a large company of men assembled in John Dougherty's house, off Chatham Street, to make enquiries touching the death of Hugh Simpson, whose remains were found yesterday morning in a suspicious condition in the hovel he called home. Dr. Saunders arrived somewhat late and swore in the following jurymen: James McNamara (foreman); A. G. Talbot, G. Graves, N. White, James McNamee, Joseph Legge, Joseph Manyon, J. Coarson, Wm. Christian, M. Staley, T. Woollard, James Rutherford, R. Guernsey, N. Lafaniere, R. Crozier, R. Newlands, T. Kirkpatrick.

These were led over to Simpson's quarters, where the remains were inspected. They returned to Dougherty's, filled with disgust at the scene they had witnessed, and proceeded to hear the evidence Policeman Snodden had to present.

"FRESH AS A DAISY."

John Dougherty, owner of the house in which Simpson died, testified that the deceased was addicted to drink, and very feeble when intoxicated. He never had proper victuals when indulging in his cups. On Hallowe'en he entered witness's house, armed with a bottle of liquor. He drank and his wife sang, and when they arose to leave Simpson fell upon the stove and would have been badly burned had he not been lifted off. Next morning "he was as fresh as a daisy." Witness reported his death to the police.

"GOT THE BABY TO BED."

Elizabeth Dougherty, wife of the last witness, with a tongue the envy of the whole neighborhood, got to work as soon as she had sonorously kissed the bible. She said that on Monday night Simpson was quite sober, at least he spoke to her in a "coherent condition." He gave her a pipe and she enjoyed a few puffs, and then marched off with her two pails of water. Yesterday morning Mrs. Simpson told them her husband was dead. "I can tell you my heart hopped right out of its place and I said, oh, you're joking; it's some of your folly." But Mrs. Simpson said no. Witness couldn't eat any then and had not done so since. Mrs. Simpson said that when she awoke she saw Hugh on the bed. He said the night before that he would not sleep on the edge of the bed any more, and Mrs. Simpson gave him the back part of it, but he wouldn't lie down. She found him dead on the floor. Witness said that both Simpson and his wife were "fond of a drop." She had heard no quarrel between them. "Hugh liked the drop, but it got the drop on him."

THE WIFE'S STORY.

Emily Simpson, wife of deceased, a small, full-faced woman, displayed a bandanna as she told her story. Simpson came home slightly drunk on Monday night. He had no feet to stand on when tight and usually "fell all over." At 9 o'clock she left him sitting at the side of the table and went to bed. She did not awake until next morning, and then she found Hugh under the table with his neck across the bar of it. He lay face forward. She felt him. His hands and face were cold, but he was warm across the stomach. She saw that he was dead and raised the alarm. She had seen him in a worse state with liquor than he was on Monday. He has been a hard drinker, "in fact he had been raised with it." She heard no noise during the night, as she slept soundly. She had previously suffered from neuralgia in the head and a sore arm, and was kept awake for a few nights. He was very quarrelsome while intoxicated. She used to go away and leave him. They had no words on Monday night. Deceased was 44 years of age and had been in fair health. He brought no liquor home with him on Monday night, he ate nothing but sang quite cheerfully. She concluded: "I was sober yesterday. If I did drink out of his bottle I generally got blowed up for it afterwards."

CAUSE OF SUFFOCATION.

Dr. K. N. Fenwick testified that there were no marks of violence on the body; no bones were broken. The eyes were suffused and congested and the pupils dilated. There was considerable extravasation about the neck and right side of the face. The respiratory passages were filled with a fluid. There were two cups on the table, one had traces of liquor, and in a cupboard was a black bottle in which was whiskey. Death, in the doctor's opinion, was caused by suffocation and intoxication. Falling in the position described while intoxicated probably prevented him from rising and death ensued from suffocation.

THE VERDICT RECORDED.

The jury, without hesitation, decided that death occurred in the manner described by Dr. Fenwick, that deceased, falling across the bar of a table, had been suffocated.

The table in question is a very small one. The board is supported by cross pieces in the form of an X. Between these cross pieces a bar extends, and it was over this deceased fell. Dr. Saunders says the man was strangled as successfully as if he had been hanged.

Mrs. Simpson is so poor that the city has been asked to defray the burial expenses.

Very Unruly Youths.

The youth of Kingston are becoming more unruly every day, and the police should give them more attention. Their names have been forwarded to the police, and [illegible]

STATE AID TO COLLEGES.

Dr. Grant's Summing Up of the Case—Only Propositions Really Open to Argument.

Yesterday we gave the first part of Principal Grant's last admirable address on State aid. To-day we produce the remainder. "There are then," said he, "in Ontario more than twice as many students in Arts as University College can accommodate and the number is sure to increase. This shows the absurdity of calling University College the capstone of our educational system. The capstone does not consist of any one building. Just as the second story is, in the main, Upper Canada College and 106 High Schools and Collegiate Institutes, so the third story or capstone consists of the Colleges that receive matriculants from these. The men who are studying for the degree of B.A. and their Professors are the capstone of our system. Does not the very constitution of Toronto University imply that there are to be a number of Colleges in the Province? I need hardly say that by Colleges divinity halls are not meant, and it is surely implied also that if several Colleges are required, no undue leverage shall be given to one. When football clubs from the different Colleges compete, one would scorn to accept any favoritism that would give it an undue advantage over the other. Should it not be with mind as with muscle?

THREE SOLUTIONS PROPOSED.

I have stated what the problem is that a statesman has to face, if he touches it at all. Three solutions have been proposed:

1. Mr. Mulock says, let the Legislature give money to enable us to add three or four Professors to University College. Now, doubtless, each new Professor adds to the efficiency of a College. Apparently, too, no halt can be called in this path till University College has as many Professors as Berlin. And can we halt then? The University at Cairo has, I believe, three thousand Professors. And could Toronto allow itself to have fewer than a Mohammedan University? I do not wonder that the friends of University College applaud this scheme. If it was proposed to give Queen's three or four more Professors in arts or science, our friends would applaud. But may not a true man take higher ground than applaud a proposal to increase the efficiency of his own College? May he not say, "I desire to see all the Colleges that the country really needs made more efficient, and I desire to see them all parts of an organic whole." That would not mean uniformity. Unity is higher than uniformity.

2. The course usually taken in the United States is to give to the rich men of the country the privilege of extending, and even of establishing, colleges. And the rich are proving worthy of the trust. Harvard, Yale, Johns Hopkins, Columbia, Cornell, Princeton, Wesleyan, Brown, and others have received millions, and they are sure to receive tens of millions more before very long.

SYSTEM OF STATE CONTROL.

3. The system in England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales, India, the Cape and other colonies is to give grants in aid to chartered institutions, according to carefully prepared regulations. But, in our case, would not that mean grants to denominational Colleges? Here we must distinguish. Grants of public money to denominations are a violation of the modern principle of the separation of Church and State, though we submit to the violation in the establishment of separate schools, and in grants to Denominational Hospitals, Almshouses and Houses of Industry, where the state has not a shadow of control. But the modern principle is not violated when a well equipped College is aided to do strictly scientific work. When the state is satisfied that the work is required, that it is the complement of the public school system, that it is unsectarian, that it is in the public interest, that it can be inspected and tested, and that there is adequate control so far as the money is concerned, then the state acts wisely if it gets its work done economically, by utilizing and stimulating the voluntary liberality of the people. The state gives nothing to Theology in the Scottish Colleges. It finds no difficulty in giving to the Arts Faculties, and it does give with the hearty approval of all Dissenters. Well, in the same way, there is not a tinge of Presbyterianism about our Classics, Mathematics, English and other Modern Languages, our Physics, Astronomy, Chemistry, Oriental Languages, Natural History, Mental Philosophy and Political Economy. Our students are as representative of the [illegible] of University College. And, for all practical purposes, our Faculty of Arts is as distinct from the Faculty of Theology as University College is from Knox or Wycliffe.

ONLY POSITION ACCEPTABLE.

I have stated the three courses that have been suggested. We would submit to the first. It outrages our sense of justice. If carried it would be a fatal gift to University College, for no institution can benefit by injustice. It would only accentuate the present lack of harmony in our system of higher education and breed discords and complications little dreamed of now. The [illegible] of Great Britain. We are prepared for either, or for a full and frank consideration of the whole subject. The better organization and the full development of our Higher Education should be not a call to war, but a call to all the unselfish intellect of the country to devise what is best in the interests, not of this or that College, but of all our Colleges. We are reluctant to organize for war, for when war begins the voice of reason is apt to be hushed. I invoke the sense of moderation that characterizes the people of Ontario, and no matter what the attacks made on us, [illegible] I shall endeavor to continue to speak with moderation.

ENDORSING DR. GRANT'S VIEWS.

At the conclusion of the address it was moved by J. M. Machar, M.A., seconded by John McIntyre, M.A., Q.C., and carried with enthusiasm,

"That this meeting having heard Principal Grant's address, heartily approve of it and of the position taken by him on the University question, and requests the Principal to have it published and circulated."

Before the couple were made one a feast was spread. There were present about 100 soldiers of the cross. Among them was Capt. Abbie, of Canada. The Mayor and other city officers of Trenton were invited [illegible]

ST. PAUL'S BAZAAR.

A Brilliant Display of Fancy Work—A Good Supper and Entertaining Programme.

The Bazaar held in Victoria Music Hall last evening, under the able direction of the ladies of St. Paul's Church congregation, was undoubtedly one of the finest and most brilliant displays of the season. These means for raising funds for the different institutions of the city have become very popular, and deservedly so. They not only give all an opportunity of contributing their pittances towards the regenerating of man and propagation of the gospel in mission lands, but also furnish, to those who make and purchase the goods, a satisfaction and pleasure underived by any other means.

WELCOME GREETING.

As one entered the hall he was greeted by a host of smiling faces, and edging his way toward the eastern part of the hall was "seized upon" by some young lady with, "Now won't you vote for Mr. Harty?" "Wont you vote for Dr. Sullivan?" and one could almost feel the last sixpence struggling to get into the hands of the "charmers." Proceeding toward the end of the hall we noticed two long tables enclosed by a screen. Being inquisitive we were asked to step inside and were made acquainted with some of the "good things" provided by the industrious house wife.

A FINE DISPLAY.

After being satisfied as to the ability of the ladies of the congregation in the way of providing for the inner man, we proceeded to the table of fancy articles. The display here was really beautiful, and although the number of articles for sale were not as numerous as one would expect, they were of that superior quality and finish that put them above criticism. Here were arranged children's clothing, fancy articles in the way of brackets, tidies, artistic fans, cushions, table mats, wall pockets and various other fancy articles. These were disposed of to the various purchasers at good prices.

REFRESHMENTS PROVIDED.

On the opposite side of the hall was a refreshment table at which the young man had an opportunity of showing, in a practical way, his esteem for the young lady at his side. It was well patronized.

Throughout the evening a good programme was gone through by those who had come prepared to entertain the people. All the pieces were well executed and highly appreciated. The entertainment of the evening, however, consisted in the endeavors of the lady canvassers to return the candidate of their choice. The excitement at times ran high, and the votes were purchased in a surprising manner. The following is the result up till 8 p.m.: Sullivan, 184; Harty, 49.

THE MUSICAL FEATURE.

The attendance was so great, and the confusion at times so marked, that the music was not so well heard as it ought to be. There were songs by Miss Burton and Miss Elliott, (of Clayton,) Messrs Marchand, Herford and Driver; piano solos by Mr. Heath and Misses Gaskin and McAdam; a piano duet by Misses Livingston and Taylor; and a piano trio, a pretty thing, by Miss Sutherland and her nephew and neice, Robert and Ida Sutherland.

A HANDSOME CHAIR.

The chair upon which the voting has taken place is handsomely made, and will be an ornament to the household of whoever receives it.

CHARGE OF THE TABLES.

Work Table—Mrs. Scovell, Mrs. Allen, Mrs. Rowan, Mrs. Oliver, Mrs. Walsh and Mrs. Youlden.

Refreshment Table—Mrs. Metcalfe, Mrs. Stratton, Mrs. McCullough, Mrs. Campbell and Mrs. Wilmot.

Tea table and fine articles—Mrs. Smith, Misses Hening, Martin, Reed and McCullough.

The bazaar will be continued this evening. Tea will be served at 6 o'clock, and after an interesting programme, in which the band of "B" Battery will assist, all the unsold articles will be disposed of by auction.

Properly Rubbing the Fur.

Rev. Salem Bland, son of Rev. H. F. Bland, of the Queen Street C. M. Church, has been on the Farmersville circuit for some time and won hosts of friends. On Monday night, during the delivery of a lecture, the speaker was somewhat interrupted by a gentleman who rose and wanted to address Rev. Mr. Bland. Surprise was on the young divine's face, for he knew of no offence he had committed. His fears were allayed, however, when the gentleman proceeded to tell him how the people appreciated his labours, and, as a mark of esteem, handed him a beautiful fur coat, which, it was hoped, would be of much service to him during his journeys through the country. The donors said it was "the warmest" way they could think of showing their respect for him.

County Court Cases.

After the Grand Jury had retired yesterday, the County Court proceeded to business.

McKelvey et al vs. Williams.—An action brought by McKelvey & Birch against Dr. Williams, of Picton, for the recovery of the balance of an account, $126. Dr. Williams claims that the Kingston firm agreed to do heating and plumbing for him for $575; the firm say that the contract was $575 for heating and that $156 was an amount agreed upon for plumbing. There was also some dispute as to the capabilities of the heating apparatus. The case occupied all yesterday afternoon and at noon to-day was not concluded.

A Deserving Person.

This morning the members of the Grand Jury visited the County Gaol, pursuant to instructions and in the performance of their duty. They found that one woman, a Mrs. Wayham, was very destitute of clothing, and they were moved by pity to subscribe some $12 or $15, which are to be applied to the purchase of some clothes for her about the time her sentence expires, on the 24th. She came from Tyreoa, was committed for fighting and appears to be in very reduced circumstances.

ARMY'S JUBILEE.

A Great Success Financially and Otherwise—The New Officers' Popularity.

The jubilee of the Salvation Army last evening was a decided success, financially and otherwise. The band's selections were all nicely rendered and encored by the audience. The opening chorus by bandsmen and Sergeants was the finest we have yet heard from them. It was encored till the singers came to the front again.

Bros. Bawden, Spring and Abernethy's readings were highly appreciated. The duet by Sisters Fowler and Crosby received an encore. "Dark Cavalry" was then played by the band (five in number.) The drum duet was the most popular feature of the evening. Three times the players were encored. The song and chorus by Bro. Patton and Hatch and Miss Patton was also a leading attraction. Bro. Jones played sweetly on the piano. Clarence plays on almost every instrument, and is always welcomed on the platform.

The duet by Capt. Hughes and Lieut. Hassen was greatly enjoyed. They had to respond and sang "Dark Cavalry" beautifully. Eighteen Sergeants then came to the front, headed by Fowler and Moore, and sang a chorus with great spirit and effect. It was duly appreciated and being encored the Sergeants "hurrahed" themselves to the front again. Taylor sang in his usual ly good style. The last musical contribution of the evening was that of the three H's—Hughes, Hassen, Hund. The officers are singing their way into the hearts of the people.

We are informed that the soldiers dearly love their new officers and that already things were going on harmoniously.

Privates Strong and Simons were made Sergeants on Monday night. Door keepers were also appointed.

The jubilee closed with a prayer meeting. Sergt. Pigeon acted as Chairman and creditably filled the position.

A Child's Opinion. A Fact.

STANLEY —— had recovered from a very serious illness, brought on by too close application to his books, in his earnest endeavors to outstrip his little schoolmates in the race after knowledge.

His little brother Percy, a youth of three summers, as was quite natural, held a very high opinion of the medicine (Robinson's Phosphorized Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Lacto-Phosphate of Lime) that had produced such gratifying results,—but, at the same time had a very warm affection for it on "his own private account." After having enjoyed sundry "refreshments" from the nearly empty bottle which by common consent had descended to him, he critically holds it up between his eye and the light, and with the air of a chief justice remarks,—"Mamma, I like oat better n lobster."

Little Percy's just appreciation is a very general one among the children who have once taken "Robinson's Emulsion."

A Failure in Crops.

A species of worm is eating all the leaves from the chestnut and hickory nut trees in many sections, and the crop will be a failure. Worms that affect children or adults will prove a failure if Dr. Low's Pleasant Worm Syrup is used. It is a safe and sure cure for all worms that [inf]est the human system, tape worm included.
