

Forwarders are discouraged over the poor prospects of the grain trade for the season, and will find additional discouragement in the announcement that forty three elevators along the Northern Pacific Railway have passed into the control of the Minnespolis Miller's Association. The wheat handled by these elevators has heretofore gone east, via Buluth and the lakes. The intention is to divert most of it to Minneapolis mills, to be made into flour.

The Hamilton Spectator invites Mr. Blake to run for one of the Hamilton constituencies. Our bumptious confrere may perhaps be able to explain the particular significance to be attached to such a contest, but at first blush we do not see it. Hamilton has never been distinguished as a political battle ground, and then again Mr. Blake has a constituency. But if the Spectator desires a right royal contest it should urge Sir John Macdonald, who has no Ontario seat, to run against Mr. Blake in West Durham. There would be some political spirit about that engagement.

There probably never was a session when so much opposition was evoked within a government party as has followed its doings in the Dominion and Local Parliaments of this year. There is no lack of evidence of a revolt in Ontario. The latest demonstration has been made by Mr. David Marshall, of Port Hope, a leading Grangeman and Consurvative, who announces, in a public card, that if no Reform nominee opposes the present Conservative member be will do so himself. He also openly declares that he is prepared to fight for the boundary of Ontario as fixed by the arbitrators.

Mr. Wm. Kingsford, C.E., has pub lished in pamphlet form facts and correspondence to prove that Sir Hector Langevin has done him a great injustice in removing him from duty in the Public Works Department after he had performed efficient service for many years. The publication may be a solace to the injured gentleman, but it will not disturb Sir Hector. The Government that has outraged both precedent and decency with persistency, in its removals and preferments, can stand a pamphlet shot with stolid equanimity is doubtful if a barrelfull hurled di rectly at each particular Minister would make him wink

The City Council was beside itself last night with petty squabbles and disorder. Surely there are less public places for men to work off their excitement than the representative chamber of the city. Why they should stir up the embers of personal discord in transacting the business of an inanimate corporation must also always remain a problem of human nature. We trust that since the freedom of debate has been carried so far there will be a reaction and comparative quiet for the rest of the year Aldermen should remember that they represent the city and not their own personality alone. Therefore, while they may be careless of their own reputations they should be occasionally mindful of that of the city. ____

The Royal Literary and Scientific Society of Canada, of which Principal Grant, Mr. Evan McColl and Professor Watson have become members of council at the request of its leading patron, His Excellency the Governor General, is destined to make a name for itself not only in Canada but beyond it. Its mis sion is the cultivation of literary pursuits and recreations, and its forthcoming meeting at Ottawa will be devoted to laying the foundation of future study and investigation. Canadian literature and science are yet in their infantile stages, and the new organization can be most useful in nurturing them into healthfulness. Kingston has no need to be ashamed of its representatives and then there are many others here whom we should like to see attached to the membership.

PROGRESS OF THE BILL

It is just possible that the scheme hatched with so much care by the Tory leaders to extinguish the Grits may be everdone and hence bause a feeling of revulsion to set in against them in this Province. Sir John and his partners in conspiracy may cut and carve the constituencies as they like, but they cannot buy or sell the electors, or bid for the votes without a consideration for the wishes of these who cast them. The whole thing has been an outrage, an injustice and a wrong, and honest men are not likely to approve of it.

One thing is quite evident-an immediate election is calculated upon, otherwise the bill would be without legal effact. Practically, several members of Perliament now find themselves nonresidents of the counties they were elected to represent, for although the measure has not yet become law there can be no doubt of the willingness of the "brute majority" to assist the designer of it to carry his purpose into effect. The Opposition will move amendments and seek to give it a thorough discussion, but already is is understood that arrangements are being made to push the bill through all its stages at one aitting, even should the session continue for three days.

The Senate could prevent the conanumation of this latest piece of political villainy, but the Senste has been known as a servile institution, and little hope is entertained that it will presume to check the designs of the greatest trickster in Canada. Unfortunately for the country, most of the Senators are of Sir John's appointing, they owe their political existence to him, and they would as soon think of committing surcide as of opposing him.

The roads in Prince Edward Island are still snowbound.

THE REDISTRIBUTION BILL:

"The bill for the re-distribution eats covers a great deal more ground than it was commonly supposed itwould. It should be called an Act for the Abolition of the Opposition in the Dominion Commons. Sir John and his phalaux would probably feel lonesome if there were no Opposition at Ottawa.
but no doubt they would soon become reconciled to it. They seem to think that they have a divine right to rule the country and that the Reformers are usurpers. It is doubtful if the Re-distribution Bill will do them as much good as they imagine. It will certainly give rise to the suspicion that they are afraid to meet their opponents on the old battle ground.

The above, from the Toronto Telegram. probably speaks the independent mind of the country, and places the arbitrary and cowardly exercise of power in its true light. The people of Canada, and of Outario especially are paying dearly for the overwhelming power the gave to the Conservative party in 1878. When Government is so strong as to be in position to carry what it pleases it has been the rule to look out for squalls, and this session there has been no disappointment in the line of breezy demonstration. Those Reformers who gave their votes to Sir John's following through the illusory bait of the N.P. must feel especially delighted with the share they have taken in the wreck of manly politics and public fair play. The Opposition is not to be legislated out of existence by any means. It was Sir John Macdonald's sacrifice and disregard of provincial interests and feel ings which brought the Liberals to the the Court. front in Ontario in the years preceding and closely following Confederation The same spirit af independence and resentment has been excited in 1882 and this last outrage but adds fuel to the fire of indignation. The Reformer who will now be caught napping will be an extraordinary specimen, while many men of mild Conservative antecedents will be found entering a silent ballot protest against the outrageous proceedugs of a reckless majority.

The Telegram may well call attention to the reluctance of the Government to meet a weak Opposition on the old bal lot ground. It is plainly given out that the boasts of the popularity of the trade policies have been a cultivated senti ment or mere election buncombe, if not hypocritical indulgences. The party of 150 who fear to face 56 before the country possesses neither the prowess of the proud politician nor the conscience of having done its duty to the people.

SUSPECTS IN PRISON.

Question of Extended Interest British Views Explained.

London, May 2.- The Times says will be formally decided to day whether the suspects be liberated. The correspondence between the Governments of Great Britain and the United States, relative to the suspects, will show that there has been no weak acknowledgment of the pretensions of inconsistent nternational law and common sense. Great Britain has firmly maintained the position that American Irishmen in Ireland must submit like other Irish men to the law deemed necessary by Parliament. It is in deference to the amity of nations not to admit any claim of the right that the prisoners of the American nationality were offered berty if they left the country. It some colishly and insolently refused to give such pledge they must take the chances of remaining in jail as long as the executive deems necessary. It is, however, no longer doubtful that the Cabinet considering whether the prisoners may not be liberated except those arrested on suspicion of being personally concerned in outrages.

Bank Certification.

Washington, May 2.-Senator Beck expresses the opinion that the evils of ver certification checks, by officers of the National Banks, are greater now than at any time back. On Friday there was a panic in New York. It is stated that on December 1st eleven prominent New York city banks, at which stockrokers do business, had an aggregate ine depositors, and $100,000,000 outstanding in certified checks. The amount of outstanding certified checks reported by the New York National anks have increased from $29,000,000 $140,000,000 in 1881. Comptroller Knox eports that the losses caused by overcertifying are very small, and the bank officials claim that the practice is justi fied by its immense convenience.

Isaac H. Radford gave his testimony first. He stated how he became ac quainted with Corregan, and what pro perty one had purchased from the other. Corregan said the Whitemouth land was high and dry, and that witness might write to persons and enquire about it he wished. Corregan said he purchased the land from the Hudson's Bay Company, that he had had it surveyed and the plan registered. In the adjacent country he said there were some 2,000 people who went to Whitemouth to trade. Services were held in three or four houses. The hotels he said, were fitted up well, considering the country. it helped him in securing the property. A CONSPIRACY SUSPECTED

Mr. Smythe here arose and objected to men interested in the other prosecution bolstering up the defence. It looked like a conspiracy and was eminently improper in the Court.

The Magistrate thoroughly agreed with Mr. Smythe's remarks. He was glad his attention had been called to the matter. He would stop it Radford continuing said he had bought up every lot he could. He was eager to capital of $18,200,000, with $60,000,000 buy and Corregan was not willing to sell. Corregan only got $20 out of him. The remainder of the land was secured by trading land in the vicinity, stock and Temperance Colonization land for it, n 1879 to $189,000,000 in 1880, and &c. Witness had disposed of a great many lots to other parties-$12,000 worth of them that he obtained from Corregan. He had property valued at $4,000 left. ADDRESSING THE MAGISTRATE. Mr. McIntyre then addressed the Magistrate in the Radford case. held that Radford had invested his money without any representations from Corregan at all. The considerations given by Radford were, he declared valueless as they were his own deeds He quoted law to prove this. He further declared that there was no proof of false representations been used. Going over the pretences seriatim he held that the prosecution had not proved that they were false. Radforl's own witnesses had substantiated what Corregan had said. He spoke of the differences in civilization between Kingston and Whitemouth. There were excellent hotels for the place-of course not like the sumptuous British American of this city. He held that a prima fucia has not been made ont. The informant would have humbugged the defendant could he have done it. He submitted that sufficient evidence had not been presented for a committal. Mr. McIntyre theu addressed the court on behalf of the prosecution in the Kearns case. He reviewed Mr. Whitehead's evidence and held that it was not sufficient to send the prisoner up for trial. It was well known that Mr. Whitehead did not want any persons up there, as they would interfere with his limits. On this ground he decried the place. The pretences, he declared, might be used in a Court of Chancery, in breaking a contract, but were not sufficient to convict a man. He showed that all the large advertisements were simply exaggerations to attract people to buy. The land advertisement was simply such a thing. It was for the people to judge of its genuineness. He referred to men, who, actuated by avarice, went into great land speculations and "squeeled" when they were disappointed. In Toronto and other large cities there was no talk of arresting Corregan. The purchasers there had faith in the scheme but did not anticipate getting wealthy at once. He said that this case might be the means of causing immigration to that land. Whence that hat?" my old friend and It looks se neat upon your head 'At Galloway's!' was the prompt reply You can one too, if you want to buy

GALLOWAY. I've looked the city o er and o er And did not see a hat before That looks as neat as that on you.

So now I'll go and get one too GALLOWAY.

Thus the boys keep coming round, As they learn where nobby hats are found, And Galloway is gaining in public fame.

And making for himself a popular name GALLOWAY.

The secret of this is, his goods are low, And all his customers will tell you so And if at his place you wish to call.

You'll find it next to the Orange Hall GALLOWAY.
