MORE ARTFUL DODGING.

Bir John Macdonald has at length had an opportunity given him to use his inventive faculties in showing why immigration from China should be less objectionable now than during the regime of Hon. A. Mackenzie. Mr. DeCosmos commented upon the measures that had been taken by the United States to prevent the influx of Chinese, and asked if the Government of Canada was prepared to adopt similar action. The Premier complained that he had not received sufficient notice o the question, said no complaints had reached him on the subject, and alleged that Chinese immigration had been en. couraged in order to provide labour for the Canada Pacific Railway. He did not think that there was much danger of an assimilation of the races, but would join in a movement designed to prevent the permanent settlement of the incomers. When? How? Upon these points Sir John omitted to impart any information, and with an evasive answer his colleague and political supporter was, of course, eatisfied. There is no doubt that upon some of the work for which Mr. A. Underdonk & Co. have contracted it would be difficult to employ any but Chinese, who can be obtained for less pay and driven more than Canadians, Americans or any others possessed of Anglo-Saxon blood in however small quantities. Nor is there any doubt of a scarcity of railway navvies in British Columbia, that the work is toilsome and unattractive. and perhaps could not, without the aid of foreigners, be completed within the specified time. But that is not the point at issue. Sir John, during a former election in this city, protested in the most approved fashion against the employment of the Chinese on even railway construction. Now to show what a demagogue he was then he argued that the services of the"heathen are really desir plays the game of expediency, and gives nounced Mr. Mackenzie for his failure to shut out the "alien race" he was bidding high for the workingmen's votes; be is at present in power, chief of the | mon has favourably commented upon. serrymandering brigade, and with a change of circumstances has come a change of sentiments.

APPAIRS IN IRELAND.

Duty of the Hour The Dean of Ontario, who is well read in Irish history and very watchful of passing events, preached a sermon in St. George's Cathedral of unusual interest. He first referred in touch. ing language to the feeling with which one adways regards the scenes his birth and boyhood, quoting the well known but expressive lines, "Lives there a man with soul so dead," etc. Then he proceeded to give the history of Ireland, the sketch displaying much research and great grasp of facts. He noted the many notable murders the last two having for him the most melancholy interest - the assassina tion of the representatives of the Government at Dublin, and his own relative, Mrs. Smythe, on her own estate. He noted that there had been during several and disturbance, and these would probubly continue, not until Home Rule was granted, but until the "gem of the sea" passed from under English control. This event he did not anticipate. He looked for no disunion of the British Empire. He mourned the necessity for repression and coercion, sad considerations in connection with Irish affairs.
