Them-A Short Sketch. Ever since Kingston has been a town t has had a fire brigade and one of the earliest Chief Engineers, of whom trace can be had, was the late Sir Henry Smith. Then an engine was stationed in the site of St. George's Hall. In 1849 the engine known as the "Vic-Here, too, the "Deluge" was placed. on its arrival in Kingston a general holiday was proclaimed. The "Phoenix" It was a crank engine, commonly called the "Coffee Mill," which was replaced by the engine now doing service in Wil-

After the big fire comes increased desire to work, and in 1876 the "Chatham" was added to the Departmental facilities for fighting cases encouragement is needed and flames. Both cost about $9,000. Then but, besides, the city paid for all rereshments and occasionally for the service of men who worked on the engine cured these perquisites were all done away with. The Chief Engineers, as niff, R. McCormack. J. B. Rogers. Hector Macdonald, W. Watson, P. Devlin, and E. H. Horsey. There were innum. erable Captains and Lieutenants. Among the old firemen now resident in Kingston are: Edwin Chown, Arthur Chown, Clark Wright, John Sangster. Henry Dumble, Samuel S. Phippen, Thomas Moore, Dr. McCammon, John McKelvey, Chas. There were also tory. numerous torchlight processions and demonstrations. Fires were extremely frequent and great destruction ensued. Since 1846 it can be said that Princess Street has been entirely changed. The buildings have nearly all been renewed since that date. At present the staff on the Fire Brigade consists of 22 men. The appliances are two steamers, one hook and ladder truck and fittings, one horse hose cart, one hand engine, two hand hose carts, (used up), two Baboock extinguishers, and some 1,200 feet of good serviceable useless. The whole appliances are not many discomforts, and protect us against worth more than $10,000. "Is this sufficient protection? and is the brigade | ExTRACTOR is safe, prompt and effectual, tion?" are questions that we hope to discuss in another article.

The usual embroidery for the shoulder straps is still wanting for the reason that it has not arrived from England. The officers, too, have received new uniforms, so that the corps, on the occasion of the review, will make a very presentible appearance. The bands, brass and bugle, again headed the battalion and played effectively. Under the direction of Mr. W. Carey, the former is becoming remarkably proficient. It will reflect credit upon the battalion on the 24th, and would have become a decided attraction had there been a longer time in which to perfect the organization and practice new music. The corps mustered at 10 o'clock in the drill shed and marched thence to St. Andrew's Church, where the usual

A GIST OF THE SERMON.

Dr. Smith preached from the words "With both hands earnestly." (Micah vii. 8.) The first part of the sermon was devoted to a description of the times in which the prophet lived. These were times of degeneracy, and good men were not to be found. Corruption prevailed in high places, and princes, magistrates, and other great men thwarted justice and revelled in that which was evil. It was pointed out that earnestness is not always on the side of truth and righteousness, that bad men can find followers as well as good men, that a bad cause is as often advocated with earnestness as a good one, and therefore when right is desired there should be the more zeal displayed. is strange that men can be enthusiastic In the 80 ties a small hand engine was over a horse, a dog, a political contest, secured and used, but not until 1846 was I or a deal in stock and yet be indifferent anything like efficient apparatus secured. | about that which concerns his own soul and its salvation. This indifference does not arise from a want of conception of house on the corner of Clarence and the importance of the subject, because tion, Disordered Stomach and Liver, when this Wellington streets, where the Federal various excuses are made in mitigation offer is made to you in your own home in all Bank now stands; another was placed of it. Nay, heaven should be made known as much as any other favoured place; the way to the was kept at the head of Princess street. | Christians home should be as well advertised as that to the most beautiful fields and fairest lands in the world. There is an important duty depending upon each one. To every one the appealiamsville. Each fire company in these comes with special applications, "will days consisted of from 50 to 75 men, | von net come to the help of the Lerd against the mighty?" Some halt and imagine that to become Christians it is necessary to occupy high positions, or In 1846 the first Hose Company was that some peculiar opportunity should His sake and in His interest. Dr. Smith compared the Christian with the artisan. The tradesman makes an awkward be ginning and appears to disadvantage. The hand engines continued in use The Christian's experience is not diswith increased desire for work comes increased capacity for work. In both

Every follower and Hose Company received $200, and of him who became Israel's king had each Hook and Ladder Company, $120, hands for work, not one but two. Such are the men whom Christ wants to do battle for Him. He wants good soldiers, workers, and they can never be ashamed of Him who is able to give the vicbrakes. When the steamers were se- tory. Finally the preacher again dwelt upon the necessity of earnestness in the Christian service, a service which is not ing manner, but with that warmth which is characteristic of the spiris within. Men should be earnest because the country demands it. This is a young nation; it is growing and expand. ing; into it are pouring thousands from all nations of the world; the population increasing and must increase im. mensely in the years to come. national char cter is to be formed, and what it shall be depends very much upon our lives and the course we now choose to pursue. As true soldiers we should carefully lay the foundation of the nation, and with it the foundation of a new life. In being earnest we have to do more. We have to express our gratitude for Christ's work, to endure for His sake, to raise both hands and say, "Lord, what wilt great celebrations. One in particular Thou have me to do." The battle is
