WHAT'S THE NEWS? Latest Arrangement of Items at Local and General Interest—Gossip that is readable.

T. J. Herndon's new company play in Carthage next week.

The members of the Press Association spent to-day in St. Paul's, Minn.

The annual meeting of Roberts' Iron Co. is called for September 7th, at the British American Hotel.

The Mast took her full complement of excursionists down the river as far as Westminster Park this afternoon.

Mr. A. C. Plummer, of Winnipeg, who was here a few weeks ago, has sold a plot of land in Winnipeg for $700 per foot.

The barber on Princess street who wants a race can be accommodated immediately, "if not sooner," by Old Sport.

The new bridge over the Rideau Canal, on the line of the Canada Atlantic, was satisfactorily tested last evening.

The annual competition in shifting ordnance between "A" and "B" Batteries takes place at Quebec early in September.

According to the Eagle pickpockets infest the city of Kingston. Have Dr. Woods' pockets been gone through?

C. E. Emery, a millionaire of New York, will build an island residence on the St. Lawrence next season, at a cost of $500,000.

The Perreput had a fine moonlight excursion last evening. All on board enjoyed themselves. The band played exceedingly well.

Mr. George Fyval, Secretary of the Saskatchewan District Fur Co. (Colonization Company), was in Ottawa yesterday on business.

Our contemporary says that a certain yachting party did not want the "Mast" Presumably not, they left that work to the "Mast" man. He's been to Ottawa, you know.

When a man gives a dinner party a permit to trespass upon the ground is not by another it is only reasonable that he should accept a defence and call his names in doing so.

Martin Brennan, of Gananoque, rape, and Almon Hartwell, of Newboro, larceny, before Judge Macdonald, of Brockville, pleaded not guilty and elected to be tried by a jury on Sept. 19th.

In addition to the musicians engaged at Round Island House for the season, the Rothessy's musicians have been engaged for evenings until October 1st.

The catmen are complaining of the state in which the street railway is kept. Is the City Council going to act in the interest of the people? They have asked us. We cannot say. Mayor Gasquin ought to know.

Mr. Hatch, the bass player of the 14th Battalion band, had a long run to catch the excursion boat last evening, having run from the lower depot. The boat was moving out as he reached the wharf, leaving him behind.

A pleasant trip down the river, staple time to see Brockville, and a return by moonlight will be but a few of the attractions on Monday's Masonic excursion by the steamer Mast. Music on board. Tickets 50c, children 25c.

The Mast announces that the Garfield ran from Oswego to Kingston on Wednesday in five hours. This is clearly a mistake. She left Oswego about eight o'clock, and arrived here shortly after four o'clock. No yacht that ever visited Kingston can cross the lake in five hours.

The steamer John Thorn came in this forenoon from the Thousand Islands with a large party of Americans, and we heartily welcome all such to the city. The majority of the excursionists viewed the leading attractions of the place, including the penitentiary, in which 600 unshackled convicts walk about in a remarkably contented way.

AN ANNUAL PICNIC. The Grand Islanders at Channel Grove. The sports and the way they terminated.

The annual picnic of the Grand Islanders came off yesterday at Channel Grove. As customary, Messrs. Calvin & Son donated the use of a steamer, and it is needless to say that the picnic was very well attended. The dancing platform came in for a fair share of patronage, music being furnished by Prof. Maston's quadrille band.

There were five entries in the rowing "skiff" race. One of the contestants created some amusement by falling backward several times while endeavoring to use the sculls. He never handled a pair before. The race was won by John W. Fred Hogeny took second money. The gentleman who was so unfortunate with the sculls was not satisfied, and challenged the skiffs again, staking $5 on the result, he being allowed to use the ordinary row pan. He lost. This second race was won by Joseph Sovay. The sailing skiff race was not very exciting as the wind was light. There were five entries. Capt. J. F. Allen took first money, D. Bole second, John Dix coming in close behind him. Next in order came the tubrace. There were five entries. The race was a close one indeed. Tom Rodrigue winning it by a few inches. Samuel Kennedy came in second. Walking the greasy pole was next in order and it created no little amusement. It hung over the water, and more than a hundred trials were made before any succeeded in reaching the flag. Tom Rodrigue succeeded in knocking down the flag but did not retain it. The judges thought he ought to get at least part of the prize and a new prize was then offered, which was won after a long contest by Willie Simons. There were six entries for the three-legged race. It was run over so many times that the whole six won it by turns. Two gentlemen contributed prizes to each and every contest. The judges could not decide who was the best lady dancer, and some crusty old bachelor, bald headed, will have to be imported to act as judge in this matter at next year's picnic. In the evening the party went on the steamer and cruised around in the moonlight, returning to the island about 9 o'clock. Taken altogether the picnic was a very enjoyable affair.

FINN AS BRAIN FOOD. Should illegal fishing be encouraged by the Press?—Why does the Press so persistently encourage it?

At regular intervals our contemporary seeks a tilt with the Wato, and as true Irishmen we have no objection to crack a head when such becomes necessary. It is represented.

(1) That we want the American fishermen excluded from Canadian waters.

(2) That we exhibit a churlish inhospitality.

(3) That an intimation that our cousins are not wanted is in direct opposition to public opinion.

(4) That the catch of a certain party is not wanted, but given to the poor of the city.

(5) That we make, in our criticisms on this matter, a lamentable display of our ignorance.

We confess that we are not so feminine in our feelings as the staff of the News, and we may not appear to think so much of our aesthetic cousins as those who consume their fish and pens, but we like them all the same.

Wherein did we offend? An enquiry would have prevented a lamentable display of ignorance by the News. The Inspector of Fisheries informed us recently that the fishing grounds in this vicinity were being invaded by steam yachts and their towed small boats, that the occupants of these were not content to use hook and line, but that one company sought to outdo another in their catches, and by nets and other illegal devices scooped up hundreds of the finny tribe.

A year ago he had a serious difficulty in preventing violations of the law down the river, and lately, near his own residence, Wolfe Island, there were those who doubted his authority, who seemed unwilling to cease their operations until he threatened to fine them and seize their boats. He assured us that he disliked to act with "churlishness in hospitality," but in the interests of our own people, and to prevent the removal of fish quicker than they multiplied, he had been induced to stop the visitors' practices.

We approved of this action, and in doing so represented his opinion. Our contemporary says the fish taken by the Americans are not wanted, but brought to Kingston and given to the poor. The catch of the party with a permit may go to the building up of brain in the News office, but of course no one or two men, no matter how great their capacity, can, without distress, consume the barrels of the fish which have been taken by others and which, therefore, go down the river, or when counted back into their natural element in a dead or injured condition. It is unfortunate that in this fish business we are placed at so great a disadvantage, that our brains are left without recruiting power, and yet we have sufficient strength to defend ourselves against the attacks of an organ whose influence in the community is as limited as its circulation.

THE OSWEGO REGATTA. Another Witness to That Fact—The Gen Garfield (Yacht) Beated Out of Her Winning at the Race.

The yacht race at Oswego and the manner in which the Gen. Garfield was out of her prize, is still the topic of conversation amongst the many yachtsmen of this city. The more the matter is discussed the more palpable become the tactics adopted to cheat the Kingston yacht out of her rights. It is another instance of how reckless Oswego yachtsmen can be in order to keep the prize money at home. The owner of the Enma was cheated out of first money last year, notwithstanding that the highest yachting authorities in the United States sustained his action. The collision between the Grace and Gen. Garfield was clearly caused by the first named boat. Both were steering a straight course, the Garfield being in the rear. Catching a beautiful breeze the latter went along like a race horse, and the Grace, fearing that her wind would be taken, luffed up and came right in front of the Garfield. The thing occurred in a moment. The Garfield was too close to avoid a collision, and her bowsprit went into the Grace's main sail, tearing it badly. The judges were not one hundred feet from where the collision occurred, and were cognizant of the facts, yet they allowed the Club to take evidence while they themselves did not give any. As soon as the Grace got out of the way she scudded off, and was not delayed two minutes, although Mr. Roy says he was knocked out of time some fifteen minutes. The Garfield was thrown out of her course and was put back a considerable time. When a protest was talked of a Kingston gentleman conversed with one of the judges, who said it could not be entertained. How did this conscientious gentleman change his opinion so quickly? We feel sure that had the matter been left to the judges the Garfield would have been awarded second money, which she rightfully won. On two occasions, the Kingston yachtsmen have failed to get justice in Oswego regattas and will ignore them in future.

Palmer (Last Friday). Emma Seguin, French, was picked up on the street yesterday very drunk. She was fashionably dressed in a partial mourning travelling suit. She said she was en route to Montreal, and the Magistrate gave her permission to complete her journey. She left at once.

Robert Southwick, an hostler, for drunkenness, was reprimanded and allowed to return to his place at one of the hotels.

An eight year old lad named Keegan was before the Court, accused of the theft of tobacco from the premises of Mr. Southwick. The boy's parent pleaded "not guilty." The witnesses not appearing the case was adjourned until to-morrow. The boy was meanwhile left in the custody of his mother.

Henry Nimmo, a member of "B" Battery, was charged with concealing information relative to his attestation papers. In answer to the question, "Have you served in any other corps?" Nimmo answered, "Yes. I was on of the Red River expedition." This was true, but he forgot to intimate that he had previously been connected with "A" and "B" Batteries. From the former he was discharged with a bad character, having been sentenced on October 1st, 1880, to 90 days imprisonment. The Magistrate, after hearing the evidence, decided not to convict the young man, although he had shown a disposition to conceal important facts, but warned him to be more careful in stating the whole truth in future.

Death of a Sailor. On Wednesday the schooner Mary Battle arrived here from Toledo, having on board a sailor named Joseph Ham, who was suffering from an attack of inflammation of the bowels. He was conveyed to the General Hospital. In the evening he felt improved, but took a relapse and died yesterday morning. The Sailors' Union took charge of his remains, placed them in a handsome casket, and forwarded them to his widowed mother in Port Hope. Ham had been a sailor for five or six years. He was aged 25 years.

MARINE NEWS. Capt. Anderson Not Decapitated—The Florida's Crew Picked Up Yesterday—Vessel Sprung a Leak.

The schr. G. B. Sloan arrived here yesterday with 21,315 bush. of wheat from Chicago.

The schr. Pilot is loading ties for Oswego. A large quantity of timber from Onipicou has been delivered.

The steamer Mast missed her usual morning trip to Cape Vincent in order that her boiler might be cleaned.

The steam barge Norman is now on the Marise Railway at Deseronto, undergoing some repairs, and the schr. Blanche is also in port for the same purpose.

The steamer Algerian went west last evening. The Captain, "the royal boat," as described by a lady passenger, went west this morning.

The prop. Ocean reached here this morning from Chicago and Cleveland. She lightened 6,000 bushels of wheat and 100 barrels of coal oil for A. Gunn & Co., and then proceeded to Montreal.

Captain John Donnelly, the noted wrecker, has left for Nicolet River, where he superintends the raising of a sunken dredge. The Captain's services, when a difficult operation is on hand, are always appreciated.

A brother explains that Capt. Anderson, of the barge Russell, loading timber at Bing Inlet, was not decapitated by the hoisting accident. The gripe did slip, and struck him, crushing in the front part of his head, but he did not die until three hours afterwards.

Rochester people are very indignant at the withdrawal of the steamer Magnet from the south shore. Persons from that place hold return tickets for the Magnet from the islands, and fruit shippers are in bad shape. It is probable, says an American exchange, that an American company will be formed at Rochester and a steamer built or chartered.

Capt. Green, of the prop. B. W. Blanchard got a signal of distress from the schr. Florida before she sunk. He went to her aid, but before he reached her she went down in 18 fathoms of water. Those on board, comprising a crew of six and two ladies, took to the boats and were picked up by the Blanchard. They left the propeller at Port Colborne. The schooner had sprung a leak at 6 o'clock, and made water beyond the capacity of the pumps. Another despatch from Port Colborne says the schr. sprung a leak when off Long Point, and although the crew worked hard they were unable to keep the vessel afloat. The Florida was bound from Black River with 662 tons of coal for Toronto.

A FRIENDLY CRITICISM. Another Correspondent's Opinion of Mr. Veer's Secretary—Facilities Attended for the Enjoyment of Our Self.

A correspondent of the Boston Advertiser writes as follows in reference to the St. Lawrence River: We gladly exchanged the dusty railway for the steamboat at Clayton, where we entered upon the St. Lawrence River, which extends for a thousand miles between the two great nations, yet neglected by both, although it has been the main artery through which the quickening pulse of civilization has throbbled for centuries, in its heroic struggles to possess the inland regions. The part called "Lake of the Thousand Islands" extends twelve miles, in some places seven miles wide. Its surface is broken by 1,800 islands, some only rocky craters, others small and covered with foliage, while some contain thousands of acres. Many are owned by gentlemen who lavish money upon their adornment, with picturesque villas, fancy boat houses, and fine gardens. The Captain pointed out the one owned by Pullman, of palace car fame, who entertained him. Grant in 1872. He showed us Bonnie Castle, where J. G. Holland wrote his novel, "Bonnie Castle" while living there. From the piazza at Alexandria Bay the scene is enchanting. The islands are illuminated by night, and the gay little yachts with pennons and lights, are fitting about with ladies exchanging calls. Little imagination was needed to believe we were in the city of gondolas by the Adriatic. Boats, luxuriously fitted up, are always ready for the summer visitor, and boatmen are fond of telling bits of history and legend which give the charm of romance to every mile of the river. The Devil's Oven is a cubical block of granite worn smooth by the water and crested with shrubs. In one side is a circular opening like a baker's oven, into which our boat went for twenty feet. The boatman told us about a British soldier, who deserted, and then annoyed the garrison by his depredations. They offered large rewards for his capture, but, escaping within the Oven, he was never taken.

Need of Swimming Baths. A citizen calls our attention to the great need of public swimming baths, and urges us to advocate their establishment. It is undesirable that the youth should be allowed to swim around the wharves in the day time, in fact the law will not permit it, and thus "our boys" are deprived of the luxury of cleanliness and an accomplishment which cannot be too highly estimated. What is the suggestion? To imitate the movement which in this and the Lower Province has ended in success, namely, to canvass for public subscriptions towards the erection and equipment of baths, where young and old, male and female, can learn to float and swim, enjoying healthful exercise and qualifying themselves for a fight for life in the event of accidents which are not uncommon in our inland waters. We are assured that the initiative is only wanted in order to ensure the execution of a scheme in which so many are interested, that if the houses were erected overtimes might be made to Mr. John O'Shea to take charge of them, and anyone who is cognizant of his career will not question his qualifications for the position. We have set the ball a rolling. Let our citizens see that it is kept a rolling until our baths have been provided.

Excursion to Ogdensburg. The Knights of the Clovear may expect a most successful excursion to Brockville on the 6th September. They have engaged the Mast, the popularity of which is a great consideration, and they promise to make the management and attractions of the trip such as will satisfy everybody. The Knights are the jolliest of our citizens, and then it must be remembered that the Oswegatchie fair occurs between the 4th and 8th, and will look its best on the 6th, the date of the excursion of which we now write. The Mast will not be allowed to carry more than 475. The Knights if public talk means anything ought to have their eyes upon a second boat.

The trip of the str. Maxwell, announced for Monday, has been cancelled, but intimation is given of an excursion by her which ought to prove popular. The boat will run from Kingston to Ogdensburg on Sept. 27th, when the fair of the Oswegatchie district will be in full blast. The Maxwell is a large and safe boat and should be profitably patronized.
