Leading Attraction - Unfortunate

Yesterday there was great activity at the Crystal Palace. All Saturday night, Sunday night and Monday the streets running to the Fair ground, were lined with teams conveying huge oxes to the Exhibition. Horses, cattle, sheep, pigs, poultry, &c., were brought i droves and for a time every thing was 11 choas, but the painstaking Superin tendents soon brought order out of it and the exhibitors were then allotted their space. Boxes and bales filled up the interior of the palace and many per ous were busily engaged in setting their entries in the best possible posiion. Each section was fitted up as the best taste of the exhibitor suggested Before night fall many of the displays v re completed and the owners of them very happy. In every other building similar work was done and out of the confusion came harmony and neatness The buildings, when all arranged for public inspection, will no doubt be very attractive. The Superintendent's and Secretary's offices were both besieged with people who desired this, that and the other thing done for their accommodation. The staff were pushed to their utmost limit. Directors and members of Council were found everywhere making things run as smoothly as possible. Resturaunt and amusement booths were erected. Mr. John Metcalfe has the entire control of the refreshments and he has re-let them to several parties who will do their best to meet the wants of the visitors. The gates were closed all day, so that few except those on business gained admission. To day, everything it is hopedwill be in good shape and the crowds o visitors can then have a good idea of

The first is made of Canadian walnut, trimmed with a French production; one of the parlonr sets is covered with locketelle, trimmed with crimson plush bands. The other set is now of the most popular state; no two pieces are of the same pattern. The articles are highly carved, covered with stamped silk, crimson plush, trimmed with satin puffing.
