A SALT WELL.

In Boring for Fresh Water As Au asymptof the Arucae.

Mr. Joseph Franklin, flour merchant, has mude a discovery which has deeply interested a large number of citizens. He sometime since purchased the brick residence for many years occupied by Mr. Hugh Fraser, on Centro street, and this week had men engage t in bering for fresh water to the east of an old well upon the premises. There was no blasting, but the successive layers of stone were drilled by machinery effectively operated by a horse power. The process usually followed in prospecting for wa Morray's. See their quited comforters | ter is well known. When the article is struck a peculiar instrument is inserted in the orifice, a long tin cylinder, in the bottom of which is a valve which, remains open while the drum is filling and prices. and of Mr. Franklin subsequently, the product of the well was salty, very much so. Of course it was decided to proceed no further with operations, inasmuch as the object at which Mr. Franklin aimed had now been debated. The discovery of salt, however, was a matter of some DROP IN WOOD .- Purchasers of wood | considerable importance, and Mr. Frank will be pleased to learn that the price | lin boiled a quart of it and realized between two and three ounces of salt of very good quality. It was remarkably white, too, yesterday, but to day had a discoloured appearance, the change having been made by climatic influences. A quantity of the water was also taken to Dr. Dupuis, who made an analysis of it and testified to the fact that it was strongly tructured with salt. The samples of sait and water at the store of Mr. Franklin have been examined by a great many people.

> AN IMPORTANT QUESTION One prominent gentleman, on leng interviewed, said he did not think sall in paying quantities could be produced. "Bear in mind," said he, "we can purchase Canadian salt for $1 per bag, and Liver. pool salt, such as the dairymen use, for $1.40 per bag. The well may be very productive, but it would need to be such, and some very expensive machinery would be necessary in order to expedi tionsly extract the salt from the water and enable the producer to successfully compete with those now having goods in the market.

ANOTHER OPINION ADVANUED. Another person, who knew the Fraklin premises well and examined the well and its water, said away with the idea that the discovery is of little moment. It may be a bonanza, sir. Suppose three or four holes were drilled, and that there was a constant and good flow of water, and suppose this turned out well, of which there is every reasonable probability, there would be an inducement to incur could be rapidly produced. It is possible, of course, that the well may be of no greater value than those which the late James Morton sunk upon his dis tillery property, but from which some very valuable mineral water was ob-
