COMING HOME FROM EGYPT

See, here she comes, see, here she comes,
The big ship ploughing the foamy main,
With her flag at the breeze free,
And father a coming home again.

See the ship draw near to the harbor
And they see us waiting for them on shore,
Hark, hark! hark! how the people cheer,
And father's coming home once more.

So prattles the wife to her baby son,
As she strains her eyes from the dear old land,
While the ship draws near, with her husband dear,
Who comes from the plains of Egyptian sand.

They are coming home! Oh! how sweet
To us, who have waited so long for them,
To see the father and mother and wife,
And the soldier and wife meet to lip to lip.

For the friends they seek have yielded life,
As surely as over a life was given;
And a hero's return from the deadly strife,
To enter the golden gates of heaven.
