Interest centres in the Mayoralty election in connection with which three neminations have been made. The contest, however, really lies between two. Dr. McCammon and Mr. C. Livingston, ar., both of whom have many supporters. The issue depends very much upon the popularity of the respective candidates. Both stepped into the field at the solicitation of friends, they appealed to the citizens upon their merits as citizens and experienced manicipal legislators. and it is not their desire, we presume that the remainder of the campaign should be influenced by political considerations. We have endorsed Mr. Livingston's candidature because we believe he is as well fisted for the Presidency of the Conneil as his opponent, because he has more time to devote to the city's service. because he has a splendid record and a good knowledge of the duty which will be insumbent upon him in the event of his return. In any case there will be no barking at the heels of the retiring Mayor. In this respect Mayor Gaskin will never have an imitator

A MERRY, MERRY CHRISTMAN

A twelve-month has vanished sine we bade our readers "the compliments of the season." We have reached the eve of the best of all anniversaries, the spoch when Christendom is moved by an impulse as mighty as it is common The little one prattles about it : the aged one is rejuvenated by it and wonli have "time turn back in its flight an make him a skild again just for night." Christmas dawns most glorions ly upon all mankind. There is some thing about the occasion which make the whole world akin. lustinctively one's thoughts rise from temporal spiritual things, and there is a fittin recognition of the advent of Hua who has become a Saviour for all As we write there is a joyous anti-

BEAUTY DISCOUNTED.

Mrs. Langtry came to this country un ler a cloud, and there is a likelihoo. that when she leaves it the social horizon will still be overcast. Her beauty brought her into prominence, by a dash ing use of her charms she won her way to the heart of English society, her triumph was complete when royalty made much of her. Simultaneously with her ascent was her husband's des cent, his means were frittered away by his wife in her gilded butterfly life, and with the end came an estrangement Mrs. Langtry took to the stage for money making purposes; she relied upon her personal appearance and reputation for agecess, and her early calculations have not been disappointing. Her indiscretions, however, premise to do her great financial injury. She has develeped an unwise and inordinate fonduess for Mr. Gebhardt, indeed she has fallen an easier victim to his seductive flattery than was to be expected of one who is accustomed to that sort of thing, and her walks and talks and rides and pri vate breakfasts with him are continued. despite the scandal they have created. Gebhardt is in a decidedly me bing moed; he tags about after the woman constantly. When debarred from her company he amuses himself in purchasing bouquete and jewellery for her, and in these articles he is credited with having proving satisfactory the plaintiff was already expended several thousand dol- erdered to ferward the ten. This was George Grass, of Kingston, are doing nestly trust that all members of the dars. At Boston the young noodle got notoriety by being bounced out of Mrs. Langury's private box at the theatre at Philadelphia he caused a sensation by registering at the same hotel with the actress, and parading about the city pursued by a hundred men and women.

A street acventure is thus recorded : Mrs. Langtry and Mr. Gebbardt took a long promonade on Chestaut street in th : pouring rain. A ride had been consemplated, but a bovy of reporters were | Judge in term.

watching the stable and the pair slipped out of the side entrance of the hotel. Freddie Gebhardt had a large umbrella over the Lily, which obscured her features, hence few recognized her. At Eighth and Chestuat streets a very wet man with a very wet little poodle dogin his arms pushed Gebhardt's protecting umbrella saide, and, lifting the dog almost to Mrs. Langury's face, besought her to buy it. Mr. Gebhardt's stubby mustache seemed suddenly to grow more stubby, and each separate stub suddenly became independent of the other. Raising his ambrella threaten ingly he ordered the fellow out of the There was something in the man's eyes, however, that made him wice, and besides the soothing voice of Mrs. Langtry gently remarked. "Let him be, Fred; I want to see the dog." The dog was a funny little creatail, and Gebhardt, as soon as he saw this, seemed to take a sudden aversion to him, and consequently the wet man delivered the animal. After the purchase the two went quietly back to the hotel, slipped inside the door, and in half an hour Mrs. Langtry was again receiving callers. Can we wonder that Mrs. Labouchere huffed and boited? Can we assume that there has not been domestic infelicity when all this is suffered without a pretest from Mr. Langtry.

PORRSMOUTH SABBATH SCHOOL.

The annual meeting of Portsmouth Sabbath School was held last evening: the attendance was large. Mr. R. Thompson, Superintendent, occupied the chair. After singing a hymn the Secretary, Mr. Patterson, read the annual report, which showed the number of scholars on the rell to be 92; the average attendance for the year 74 number of teachers 11. This school is n a flourishing condition and is con stautly increasing in numbers. The lessons are taken from the Internations Scheme. The singing is under the di rection of Mr. James Craig. and the organist is Miss Adams. Rev. T. G Smith delivered an excellent address and enlogized Mr. Craig and Mr. Thomp son. In speaking of the latter he men tioned circumstances in connection with the Sabbath School at Melborne. conclusion he wished the school success and presented Mr. Thompson with hindsome water pitcher on behalf of the Sabbath School) and said it was given as a token of the respect in which is was held. After singing another hymn the scholars were all presented with books. Miss Marshall contributed a sing, which elicited an encore. and Mr. Thempson presented a Bible t Miss Rebinson, a memorial from the tamily of Mr. Adams, Miss Robinson being teacher of the late Sarah Adams Mr. Thompson speke of deceased in a feeling manner. An address was then islivered by one of the students, who preach to the congregation during the winter, and Mr. Craig presented Miss Adams with a book, given by a friend in the interest of the Sabbath School, after which the meeting separated.

WAITING FOR THE REPORT

Captain McElhinney, representing th Marine Department, has completed his investigations in regard to the reported robbery of the bodies of those floated ashore from the sobr. Menry Felger The evidence of a great many has been taken, but the nature of it remains a secret for the present. The report of the Captain is anticipated with much interest. The Pieton Gazette contemp plates the statements of Captain Deunis very soriously. It is due, it says, to the people of Prince Edward that their truth or falsity should be established. Large quantities of the coal composing the cargo of the wrecked vessel have been recovered and sold in Picton at $1 per

The body of Father Hogan arrived in Trov vesterday afternoon and was convoved to St. Mary's Church, where it remained during the night. The funeral service was held this morning at le o clock. The church was draped with emblems of mourning. Large crowds of people began to arrive at an early hour and when the mass began the edifice was well filled with these who had known and loved the priest in life. The solemn requium high mass was cele brated by the Rev. Father Havermans. assisted by the Rev. Eather Sheehan heacon Rev. Father Ressiter, sub dea con : Rev. Father J. J. Brennan, muster of ceremonies, and Rev. Father Connotly, leader of choir. The sermon was presched by the Rev. Father Lowery, of choes, who paid a fitting tribute to the memory of the dead priest and referred to the success of his great life work and to the and affliction that deprived him people. of life. Rev. Thomas Walsh, of Ogdens burgh, gave absolution. The remains of Father Hogan were enclosed in a beam tiful coffin, which rested on a catafalque at the head of the main aisle before the

AN ANNIVERSARY EVENT

The anniversary of the M. E. School was held last evening. The attendance was very large. After singing "Pull for the Shore Rev. Mr. Wilsen lead in prayer. A very carefully prepared programme was then introduced, consisting of recitations and music, in which many of the smaller children were engaged. The songs of Misses Young, Spence and Carrie Jones were well received. The recitations of Miss Maggie Hewton, who was vigorously encored, and of Mr. J. H. Bell, were finely rendered. The Christmas ship was quite a novelty and attractive. It was under full canvas, was beautifully decorated with flags and bunting, and carried the freight of a richly laden argosy. Presents for old and young clung to the sails, rigging and sides Mrs. Wilson was presented with a handsome piece of silver plete, among other gifts; Rev. Mr. Wilson, pastor of the Church, by his Bible class with silver clock, and Mr. M. B. Hicks with a very fine diamend ring. All the teachers and officers of the school were remembered, and every little child in attendance found a gift awaiting him. The school seems to be doing good work. St. Louis, Dec. 23.-In the Court resterday, Engelk, lawyer, and Livington, litigant, had an altercation and fought. The bystanders attempted to separate them and the Court ordered their arrest. But an ex-Judge of the Criminal Court and several lawyers interfered in the interest of a fair fight. The men relied over on the floor, banging one another in fine style. The Court besought them to stop, and the combat was adjourned to the office of the Clerk of the Court. The struggle there lasted five minutes. Finally Engelse throttled Livingston until his tongue protruded. A policeman here appeared and rescued Livingston, who was black in the face

His body was found hanging to a tree in the woods. It is supposed that he suicided. Spots of blood on the floor of the house are accounted for by the theory that Rosschel was follows clubbed by his wife or son. Mrs. Roeschel received the news of the finding of the body without emotion. She said her house was full of witches. When asked if the husband had killed himself she answered that he always had something on his heart that he couldn't die in bed. He was all the time praying with God that he might die. I'm so happy he believed in God and killed nimself. He danced and sung and tore his clothes off and kicked there about.

CARD OF THANKS.

The Editor, British Whot. DEAR SIR, Permit me to express, through your columns, the deep gratitude felt by Mrs. Spencer and myself, as well as by the other members of the bousehold, towards the soldiers and others who so nobly risked their lives to save our dear boy and his young companion from a watery grave. We have not learned the names of all to whom we are thus indebted; but we desire specially to thank Capt. Farley, Sergeant Stannard Drivers Robinson and Stokes. and Gunner Marrison for their heroic efforts to rescue the drowing boys at the imminent peril of their own lives, and for their noble perseverance in recover ing the bodies from the river; and Dr. Neison and the Mospital Sergeant for attempting our dear boy's resuscitation. To all others who did what they could then and afterwards to avert the blow, to bear our burden and alleviate our serrow, we desire to express, however, imperfectly, our deep wymn as sense of gratitude. Though comparatively strangers in the city we have not been allowed to feel that we were strangers, but have had practical experience of the profound truths wrapped up in the wholesome Christian doctrine of "The Communion of Saints. I am, Mr. Editor, very truly yours.
