They filled a sack with boots and calf leather, kid fronts and other goods and made off. Their presence in Odessa caused suspicion to be cast upon them and the telegram was sent for the force here to apprehend necessary and gave directions for the them. CHRISTMAS PLEASURE.

A Lively Christmas—Much Merry Mak ing in the City---Special Services in the Churches.

Christmas has come and gone, as lives but in memory. We have no re membrance of there having been greater preparation for any festive event, and the merchants report that they made sales during the week unprecedented the receipts being from 40 to 60 per cent greater than ever before experi enced. Princess Street on Saturday night was a study, having an appear ance of life even more remarkable than during the prevalence of the Provincia Fair. All the stores were filled, and some cases crowds had collected upon the sidewalks awaiting a chance for en trance. Money-spending and money hanging were the order of the day, and a large amount of what we call filthy lucre, though to get such is the ambition of most people, was put in circulation Sunday's services were, in most cases of an appropriate character, but there were reserved until yesterday some the features which make the advent no table. much the same as in previous years Three masses were celebrated in the Convent Chapel by Rev. T. Kelly. Bishop's Secretary and Chaplain to the Convent. As early as five o'clock devont people were gathered in the little chapel eager to adore their God and King. The decorations were such as to excite devotion in the minds of those who witnessed them. The altar was arrayed in gold and white, with mottoes reminding us of the birth of Him who was to redeem us. The crib was very pretty. The wards were bright and cheerful, being ornamented with cribs, evergreens and flowers. Dinner time being come the patients and orphans partook of turkey, goose, lamb, roast-B' Battery, tener. At the close of the day the Benediction of the most Haly Sacrament was given by Rev. Father Hartigan. All were again in the chapel to receive the blessings of Heaven, retiring to rest, blessing Ged, the Sisters and the good people of the city who se generausly provided their Christmas cheer. The patients in Rockwood Asylum were as usual supplied with plenty of Christmas cheer in the shape of eatables and amusements. The wards were filled with smiling faces, and those who were lucky enough to receive presents were as happy as children.
