CITY AND VICINITY.

POLICE COURT.—George Baker, a very obstreperous inebriate, was asked to contribute $1 and costs to the city treasury.

LATE TRAINS.—The K. & P. RR. train, due last evening at 7 o'clock, did not arrive until 11 o'clock. The evening train, bound out, was cancelled.

PROBABILITIES.—Winds mostly from the west and north, cloudy, colder weather, with light snow in some localities to-day followed by fair weather to-morrow.

GRAND CONCERT.—A grand concert will be given in St. George's Hall, Kingston, on Wednesday, March 9th, in aid of St. Mark's Church, Barriefield. The best Kingston talent will assist on the occasion.

POLICE LIBRARY.—The police force acknowledge with thanks books from Messrs. Boyden, Simmonds and Kerr. The library shelves are capacious and will easily hold a book from each of our readers.

ARRESTED ON SUSPICION.—This afternoon Thomas Howard and John and William McLoughlin were arrested on suspicion of petty larceny. Their houses were searched and some infant's clothes and a buck saw found.

FREIGHT BARGE.—The str. "Kingsford," of Oswego, has been transformed into a freight barge. A short time ago her owner was offered and refused $10,000 for her. It is to be hoped that the vessel will be more lucky during the coming season.

CHEESE FACTORY.—At a meeting of patrons of the Walnut Hill creamery, Pittsburg, on Wednesday night last, it was decided that cheese would be manufactured there for the coming season, the factory to open for business on the first of May.

MR. P. KIEL, Fishery Inspector, returned from Ottawa to-day, which he visited officially. He was very courteously treated by Sir John Macdonald, Mr. G. A. Kirkpatrick, and others, and was tendered a seat on the floor of the House.

AN ORGAN DIFFICULTY.—A minister from the county of Stormont charges a business man of this city with misappropriation of funds. The money was to have been applied on a note for an organ purchased for a church. The case has been adjourned for a week, bail being accepted.

MARKETS.—The markets were very dull this morning. Butter was scarce, and ranged from 23c. to 25c. per lb.; eggs were also very scarce. There was a good supply of pork and beef; apples from 70c. to 75c. per bag and from $2.40 to $2.50 per bbl.; potatoes from 40c. to 50c. per bag.

48TH BATTALION.—A petition has been in circulation, and largely signed by the ratepayers of Lenox county, praying for the reorganization of the 48th Battalion. It is proposed to make J. W. Bell, ex Warden and Reeve of Camden, Colonel. The Beaver hopes the Government will see the justice of the prayer of the petition.

THE COUNTRY ROADS.—The storm of yesterday, though the quantity of snow which fell was less than in some preceding storms this winter, has blocked the country roads badly. On several of the main avenues to the city to-day the roads had to be abandoned for long sections, and paths cut through the fields.

THE HAY BOOM.—The price of hay is rapidly declining in New York, and the dealers in Northern New York have stopped buying. This is due in a great measure to the large quantities sent from Canada. During the last two months Canada has shipped into the United States in the proportion of eight car loads to one for the same period of last year.

THAT UNFORTUNATE REPORT.—"Go from home to learn news of yourself," says the proverb. There is an iron smelting works in Frontenac, says the Agricultural Commission Report. There are two thousand acres of orchards in Storrington, says the same authority. We congratulate Storrington on its Ribston Pippins and the Commissioners upon the accuracy of their information.

MASTODON MINSTRELS.—They appear in the Opera House on Wednesday evening and will surely lead to the concentration of a vast crowd. An exchange says the company is the best minstrel troupe ever put on the road by Mr. Haverly. The songs, dances, sketches, witticisms, instrumental music, in fact everything, are first class. The graceful evolutions of the well disciplined dancing squad, in glittering spangles, elicit the most enthusiastic applause.

Human Bones Resurrected.

Last week in Pittsburgh, nine miles from Kingston, on the bank of the St. Lawrence, a person in taking out sand for building purposes came upon several human bones. The history of the matter would have remained a mystery but for the story of a very old resident of the neighborhood, who states that many years ago a colored man named Burns, who lived on the main shore, was crossing to Howe Island in a canoe, that the bottom of the canoe being covered with ice the man slipped overboard and was drowned. His body was found afterwards and buried at the spot where the bones were recently unearthed.

VOLUNTEER FORCE.

The Kingston Corps the Most Satisfactory in the District.

The report submitted to Parliament by the Minister of Militia contains, of course, the annual statement of the matters under the supervision of Col. Straubenzie, who has been D.A.G. of No. 3 District, but whose place in the future, until at least another change is made, will be taken by Lt.-Col. Villiers. The D.A.G. speaks well of the appearance of the 4th Regiment of Cavalry at the time of his inspection, the men looking well, arms and accoutrements clean, on the whole well mounted and conduct very good. As for the 14th Battalion P. W. O. Rifles he says: "It affords me much pleasure to be able to state that no corps in my district has given me so much satisfaction as this Battalion. The equipment is in perfect order and the officers and men like soldiers on every occasion. The Major General commanding inspected the armories when in Kingston on his tour of inspection last month, and expressed satisfaction in seeing the equipment in such order. The drill shed, he says, wants some repairs to the foundation, but as it now belongs to the trustees of Queen's College it becomes a question whether the Militia Department should have to bear the cost of those repairs. The armoury keeper of the 14th Batt. must be gratified when the D.A.G. states that the Government would effect a saving if all the battalions were provided with armouries under paid caretakers, the latter adopting the same system for its preservation as that in vogue in the 14th Batt. He makes various suggestions as to target practice, drill, and equipment. Since the last report the force in the district had been reduced by the removal of the 48th Batt. from the active list, owing to a disagreement amongst the officers in regard to the disposition of regimental and other funds. The officers commanding the applied for and received permission to augment the strength of his battalion by three companies, and the Amherst Island, Odessa and Tamworth companies of the late 48th have been attached to it, increasing the strength of the corps to ten companies. Since his appointment in May, 1876, the D.A.G. says the period for annual training has been curtailed from 12 to 6 days, the formation of brigade corps has been discontinued and drill at company headquarters substituted, all these changes tending to impair the efficiency of the force. Notwithstanding all these the regiments in the district are in as good or better order than when he assumed command, not because of his own personal exertions but to the willing assistance and zeal of those under his command. He complimented Lieut.-Col. Worsley and Major King for their excellent service, and declares that he never, in his 27 years' service, found so faithful a non-commissioned officer as Sergt. O'Connor, his clerk and messenger.

TAKE PRIDE IN TURNING OUT

RECENT FIGHTING.

The True Inwardness of the Engagement Being Revealed.

A friend of the young man Wright called at the WHIG office to-day to correct some of the public reports anent the recent challenge fight. Wright claims that the fight may have been long premeditated on McConnell's part, but it was not so on his. Wright returned from the west about ten days ago, and McConnell has since, he alleges, sought to make a quarrel with him. On Thursday McConnell came up to Wright in the street and asked for the loan of a dollar, which was refused. Thereupon McConnell remarked that he could whip Wright, and the latter joined issue with him at once on that point, and a fight was arranged instanter. Within an hour a city butcher drove the men out to the commons west of the city. Wright is not twenty-one years of age, and his friends allege that in the fair stand off fight he held his own; that once he got McConnell down and could have punished him, but the umpire, the butcher referred to, called fair play; that McConnell as soon as he got up went at rough and tumble style, "bunting" and biting him, and finally chocked him until the crowd which had arrived interfered, and ended the fight. This is Wright's statement and probably in due time we will have McConnell's.

The police have thoroughly investigated the disgraceful matter and find that there was ample premeditation, as seconds were named, etc. A considerable number of persons were also informed of the match, and followed the principals to the commons west of Division Street. The fighters wished to escape the crowd and therefore changed base to the Forty Foot road, near the Crystal Police, driving there rapidly. They had got pretty well on in the fight before the followers came up. To them Wright complained of a want of fair play. As the breach of the peace occurred outside of the city limits the police have made no arrests.

Larceny from a Safe.

We have repeatedly reported larcenies from the jewellery establishment of Mr. J. Johnson, Wellington street. His son John has usually been the offender. Finally, one year ago, he was found guilty, but sentence was suspended by the judge. The lad is only fifteen years of age, but is thoroughly skilled in juvenile depredations. Last night he entered the shop with an improvised key, made by himself, and succeeded in getting into the safe, from which he stole between $75 and $100. He was accompanied by two lads, one named John Brown and another whose name we have not learned. The trio made for the Grand Trunk station and succeeded in getting away. A telegram was sent in advance of them and at Belleville they were captured and held awaiting the arrival of Mr. Johnson. The boys were returned to the city this afternoon. Justice should not be thwarted on this occasion, but such a sentence given as will correct the evil propensities of the delinquents.

MILITARY COLLEGE.

A Condensation of the Report of the Commandant, Lt.-Col. Hewitt, R.E.

A few days ago we reprinted from the Mail a few of the observations made by Major General Luard and Lieut. Col. Hewitt, in reference to the Military College. We are now able to supplement the statement, having before us the report of the Minister of Militia embracing the fullest information which it is possible to give about an institution in which our citizens, for obvious reasons, are much interested.

INTRODUCTORY REMARKS.

Having stated the number of cadets (72) attending the college, the manner of recruits, the casualties, the change of organization, the performance of duty by cadet non-commissioned officers and programme of instruction he speaks of the sanitary condition of the building. There had been a good deal of sickness during the early part of the year, at times rising to a high percentage, and much of this has been attributed to deficient ventilation, an improvement of which has been recommended by Major General Luard. It is suggested that the means of lighting be changed from coal oil to gas, the former being dangerous, (there having been several narrow escapes from fire consequent on lamp explosions) while the heat of burning oil is not sufficient heat for experiments in physics and chemistry.

DEFICIENCIES AND REQUIREMENTS.

Several class and professors' rooms are occupied as dormitories, and many of the cadets' sleeping rooms, originally constructed for only one cadet, are now occupied by two, thus giving to each cadet a fewer number of feet of air and space than is allowed for troops of Her Majesty's service. The only room in which cadets can, as originally intended, be assembled in a body for a lecture, or other purposes, is now appropriated as a double class room, and next term may have to be used as a bed room. The porches of the north building are utilized as model rooms and work rooms. Cadets have at times to draw plans in the corridors, and no proper rooms exist for either laboratory, library or museum. Valuable scientific instruments and apperatus have to be kept in the corridors. The construction of an additional block for cadet dormitories, including, under the same roof, quarters for two members of the staff most required to reside within the college, would provide much that is required, and would free the north building from occupation for purposes not contemplated, allow it to revert to the purposes for which it was designed; it would at the same time effect an economy in annual expenditure. The Commandent says he cannot too strongly urge that these defects and deficiencies may be remedied, that the direct and indirect evils and difficulties arising from insufficient accommodation cannot be exaggerated and naturally increases every term.

RESULTS OF EXAMINATIONS, ETC.

The general results of the examination, and of the work done during the past year have been satisfactory, that of the junior classes more especially so. Some of the cadets have, however, not only sacrificed their present position but imperilled their future prospects by neglecting to apply themselves with earnestness to subjects or portions of subjects which it is essential for the objects of the college that they should acquire proficiency in and hence they have failed to do full credit to themselves. He states that the tour of instruction of ten of the most efficient graduates last year realized the intention and objects desired to be fulfilled in every respect. A detailed description of this tour is given in an addendum to the report. The presentation of three medals by the Governor General and Princess Louise last year, and their intention to present three more in 1881, are noted, also the character of the certificates of graduation which render personation or forgery impossible, and the names of those winning such with their distinctions during their college career.

ARMY AND MILITIA COMMISSIONS.

Col. Hewitt comments favourably upon the advantage of obtaining commissions in the regular army, and expresses the opinion that those who are fortunate to be thus employed will most certainly return to Canada should any emergency require their services in this country. In accordance with a regulation published in the Gazette of the 7th Feb., 1880, the whole of the graduates of that year, excepting the four joining the regular army, have been gazetted to commissions in the militia from 17th July, 1880. Every employment offered to graduates, it is remarked, increases the competition for admission to the college and among the cadets themselves and, therefore, raises the general intellectual standard of the graduates. The commissions in the regular forces, and the promise of employment in the permanent militia organization of the Dominion, are valuable to this end, but other occupations should also be opened for those who cannot obtain or do not desire continuous military employment. The cadets have gained their entrance to the college by open competition, without favouritism, personal or political, they have improved, maintained or lost their original position by four years' keen competition among themselves, and the Col., therefore, trusts that as it is not possible for Canada to afford permanent military employment to all the graduates of the college she will employ those (at least the best of them) who do not obtain it, in such other capacities as their college records denote their being most fitted for. It is here suggested that a few of the graduates could be employed in completing unfinished maps of the frontier, and in acting as assistant instructors at the college.

SPECIAL INSTRUCTION.

In the annual report of 1879 it was pointed out that the college would shortly be in a position to afford instruction to officers of militia in special objects. It is hoped that before long several officers will avail themselves of this privilege, raising themselves to the highest rank in their regiments by a course of say six months. Circumstances have necessarily prevented the carrying out of this object up to the present time, but it may be expected to develop itself. Insufficiency of accommodation is the great hindrance to the college shewing its power in this as in other matters. The college should become the training school, the centre and head of the militia force, and it is difficult, the Commandant says, to conceive any person being indifferent to, much less jealous of, its work and success. Attention is again drawn to the great advantage, indeed almost necessity, to the college and militia generally, for an attachment of Engineers to be attached to it. The Commandant concludes his lengthy report by acknowledging the services of his staff, and commending the conduct of the graduates of 1880. In two special reports Col. Hewitt gives details of the graduates tour to the lower provinces last year and of the work performed by the Montreal and Toronto Engineers while attached to the College last summer.

MARKET FEES ACT.

Amended Beyond Identification and Finally Conditionally Withdrawn.

The bill as presented to the Special Committee of the House had been so amended by the Government as to be almost unrecognizable. Most of the amendments asked for by the representatives of the cities, recently met in convention, were granted. Provisions were added giving the municipalities power to regulate weighing and the stalls of butchers and hucksters on the market or throughout the city; restraining the operations of the act until existing leases had expired; retaining the power to prevent sales on the street or market in less quantities than a quarter; prohibiting the future imposition of tolls within ten miles of a market, where they did not then exist, etc. The Select Committee, on motion of Mr. Gibson, M.P.P., of Hamilton, added an amendment declaring that no municipality need abolish any of its market fees so long as tolls were collected on any road within ten miles of the said municipality. This was granting the most important thing the cities and towns asked for, and virtually killed the bill. Therefore when the House went into Committee of the Whole on the bill considerable discussion took place and Mr. Wood eventually adopted several verbal amendments suggested. Several of the members, however, objected to the bill passing, holding that it required more careful consideration.

Mr. Wood said that it was very evident that there was a diversity of views on the bill, and it was perhaps scarcely fair to ask the House to consider it at this late period of the session. He would, therefore, withdraw the bill, which could not in any case come into effect until next year, as in most cities the market fees had been leased for a year. An order could be passed forbidding the leasing of market fees for a longer period next year than three months, so that when next session the Government introduces a well-considered measure, it can go into effect at once.

Presentation to Mr. Hay.

Yesterday Mr. Andrew Hay severed his happy connection with his Academy for boys. At the close of the day's exercises his pupils presented him with a valuable fruit basket of solid silver, in order to show their appreciation of his successful labors in their behalf. The gift bore this appropriate inscription: "Presented to Mr. A. Hay by the pupils of his Academy, 1881." The presentation was accompanied by the following address:

DEAR TEACHER:—We, the pupils of the Kingston Academy, are very sorry to hear that you are about to leave us to go to another school. Our parents all say that they are well satisfied with your work. You may be sure we are grateful for all the trouble you took to make us feel happy in and out of class. Every one of us has always been glad to go to school, and would not stay at home unless we were sick. We feel that we can never have a kinder or better teacher.

We hope you will come to Kingston often, and as long as we are here you will have warm friends. We offer you this small gift with our love and affection, to remind you of your youthful friends in Kingston. Tell Mrs. Hay that we are thankful for all her feasts, and that we hope she and you may live a long and happy life.

Mr. Hay feelingly replied that he thanked them for the very valuable gift they had presented to him, and that he would always look on it as a momento of his happy connection with the school. He had never had more industrious, more studious or kinder pupils. He would always watch their career with kindly interest, and wished them a happy and successful journey through life.
