

DAILY BRITISH WHIG

Published for the Proprietor by J. G. Macdonald, at the British Whig Office, No. 10, Wellington Street, Montreal, P. Q.

The Irish members of the House of Commons have been discussing the question of the drainage of the city of Montreal...

As might have been expected, the Public School Board has been loyal to its duty, and is prepared to inaugurate the new system...

As might have been expected, the Church of the Disciples to which P. A. G. Garfield belongs has been visited with a greatly increased interest...

One unfair feature of the murder of the Scott Act which has just been attempted in the Senate is the fact that the act as it stood has never yet been tried...

Under these circumstances there is a direct breach of faith with the people who voted upon the act as it was, and as it will be if it should be enacted...

Sir John Macdonald is a dangerous man to have in power; among other reasons because of his 'Irishness' in any negotiations which his Government may have to enter into...

The Lennox and Addington Council have appropriated the following sums for road improvements:

Mr. Charles Cloth, the Irish man, arrived this morning, and has had many callers. He will remain in the city until Monday evening...
