BISHOP CLEARY.

WARMTH OF HIS RECEPTION.

ORIGIN OF DIOCESE OF KINGSTON

Cares and Responsibilities of Office.

A Personal Sketch.

Success in one place, indicative of success in another.

To the Catholics of this city and diocese this will be a memorable day, and it will also be such to him who has been long expected, whose arrival leads to a demonstration of rejoicing which is both touching and affecting. Though a stranger to the majority of those most ready and willing to pay him obedience such a fact will be unthought of in the enthusiasm which will mark the entree of his Lordship Bishop Cleary and his assumption of the dignified responsibilities imposed upon him by appointment of His Holiness the Pope. Since his selection as the successor of the lamented Dr. O'Brien, whose memory must long remain fresh and fragrant—great anxiety has been manifested in regard to his movements. His departure for Rome, his consecration in the presence of a brilliant gathering of dignitaries and of famous lay delegates, the honor paid him by his Eminence the Cardinal Prefect, his audiences with the Holy Father by invitation, his reception of the Apostolic Benediction, his return to Ireland and the accord to him of numerous tributes of respect and affection from those among whom he so long laboured as spiritual guide and counseller—all these circumstances have been interestingly contemplated by those over whom he has been placed as bishop. His passage across the ocean and his travels via New York and Toronto have been very pleasant, but his arrival here is the most solicitious event to his Lordship, and remained for his own people to exhibit their affection in such a manner as must prove particularly gratifying to the distinguished prelate. Judged by the cordiality of the greeting, expressed in words and actions, the bishop cannot for a moment doubt the loyalty and esteem of his flock.

SKETCH OF THE PAST.

At such a time it will not be inappropriate to give a brief sketch of the origin and development of the diocese. The first Catholic diocese in British North America was formed at Quebec, in 1774, when the Right Rev. Francis de Laval de Montmorency's title was transformed from the Bishop of Patrie in partibus to the See of Quebec. The diocese of Baltimore, erected in 1789, with Bishop Carrol, was the next oldest in America. In 1789 Bishop Hubert, of Quebec, wrote to Cardinel Antonelli, the then Prefect of the Propaganda, asking that the diocese be divided, and that Montreal be made a separate See, the Holy See being assured that there would be no difficulty on the part of the Government, as the Governor, Lord Dorchester, was without prejudice and rather kindly disposed towards the Canadians. The request was granted, but for some cause was not carried into execution. In 1819 Bishop Plessis wrote to Rome, asking that the diocese of Quebec be divided into four vicariate apostolics, recommending for appointment to these places: Rev. John James Lartigue, to the district of Montreal; Rev. Alexander McDonell, to the Province of Upper Canada; Rev. Ae. B. McEachern to that part contained in the Province of New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, Cape Breton and the Magdalen Islands; and Rev. Joseph N. Provencher to the district including Hudson's Bay, James' Bay, and all the northern portion of Canada. The reason given by Bishop Hubert for this proposed division was that the diocese over which he presided was too large, being bounded on the east by the Island of Newfoundland, on the south by the United States, on the west by the Pacific Ocean, on the north by no limit unless the Arctic circle. At that time the Catholic population of Canada was estimated at 500,000; now it is 2,063,516. Then the Catholic population of this Province (Upper Canada) was 15,000; now it is nearly 300,000. The first Bishop of Kingston, Right Rev. A. McDonell, was appointed by Pope Pius VII, and for several years resided in Glengary with the title of Bishop of Rhosina.

DIOCESE OF KINGSTON.

In 1826 the diocese of Kingston was erected, and this city was selected as the sight of the See, such a circumstance taking place by authority of Pope Leo XII., the document dating January 17th of that year by which the Provinde of Upper Canada was, with the concurrence of the Governor, separated from the Diocese of Quebec. It is related in the old chronicles that when Bishop McDonnel had given his allegiance to George IV. he made choice of the Church of St. Joseph as his cathedral—the building which still stands on the corner of Bagot and William Streets, the lower portion being now used as a separate school and the upper part as a place where the young ladies of the congregation assemble every Sunday before vespers, to recite prayers to the Sodality. The diocese, as now constituted, embraces the counties of Glengarry, Stormont, Dundas, Grenville, Lanark, Leeds, Frontenac, Addington, Lennox, Prince Edward, Hastings, Durham, Northumberland, Peterboro and Victoria, an extensive territory, the supervision of the church in which entails heavy responsibilities. Dr. Cleary is the sixth bishop, his predecessors being Right Rev. A. McDonnell, who died in 1840; Right. Rev. Dr. Remigeus Gaulin, died in Nov., 1857; Right Rev. P. Phelan, died June, 1857; Right Rev. Edward John Horan, died February, 1875; and Right Rev. John O'Brien; died August 1st, 1879. There are in the diocese the following

LATE BISHOP'S WORK.

Dr. O'Brien, during his episcopacy extending a little over four years, was exceedingly active and performed a service which was remarkably productive of good results. He visited the whole of his diocese, conducting missions lasting for several days in most of the parishes, doing the hard labor of preaching, hearing confession, etc., himself. He was also instrumental in reducing the debt on the cathedrel by several thousand dollars, and had it resceated and otherwise renewed and beautified. He ordained seven priests, opened five new churches, confirmed hundreds of persons, in short, was a model bishop in piety, in activity, and in good works.

DR. CLEARY'S CAREER.

We cannot improve upon the excellent biography of Dr. Cleary, prepared for and published in the Irish Canadian and so give it intact: James Vincent Cleary is sprung from a tribe which flourished originally in the county of Galway. A branch of the family occupied a territory in Donegal, their chiefs having been made historians to the O'Donel's of Triconnell. Another branch of the O'Clearys lived as a tribe in a district known now as the county of Caven; but the most distinguished of the hue are those of Tircounell, because of the imperishable memory which they have won in the history of Ireland by that precious production of the O'Clearys, the Annals of the Four Masters. James Vincent Cleary was devoted to the service of the sanctuary from his boyhood. When quite a youth he was sent as a student of divinity to Rome. Having distinguished himself there by his abilities and won the respect and confidence of his superiors for his graces of heart and soul, he was invited at the close of a few years' study in the Holy City to return to Ireland and through the influence of his patron, the Most Rev. Dr. Foran, was appointed to a vacancy in the classes at Maynooth. He carried off in the contests at that school the highest honours in philosophy, theology, and critical

STUDIES OF HOLY WRIT.

Elevated to the priesthood his thirst for learning led him soon after his ordination to enter on a still further and higher course of study at the famous school which has done so much in the contribution of lights to the Hierarchy of the Church in Spain, Mexico and South America—the College of Salamanca. Having obtained high honours in that institution the Rev. Father Cleary was invited by his Diocesan, the Bishop of Waterford, to return to Ireland as Professor of Dogmatical Theology and Biblical Exposition in that nursery of Catholic learning in the city of Waterford—St. John's College. A charter from Pope Pius IX. having been obtained by the Hierarchy of Ireland for the granting of degrees by the Catholic university, the very delicate and important duty of holding the first public examination for that purpose, under the too ready sneer of the learned of the Protestant university and of even the Queen's colleges, was assigned to the young but distinguished

PROFESSOR OF THEOLOGY

at St. John's, Rev. Father Cleary, the first who discharged that eminent service in Ireland since the time of Henry VIII. Such an acuteness of logic and such a breadth of learning were shewn by the reverend examiner that he received from the Senate of the university the merit degree of Doctor of Divinity, and the further tribute to his fine gifts and great acquirements of the appointment as permanent examiner of students of the theological classes of the university. Promoted subsequently to the Presidents of St. John's College, in the city of Waterford, he found an opportunity to add to his reputation for learning a high reputation as a disciplinarian and administrator. His noble service in that school is testified in fruitful work of religion throughout the world by the zeal and learning of many missionary priests. At the National Synod of the Catholic Church in Ireland, held in the College of Maynooth during 1875, the Most Rev. Dr. Power, the Bishop of Waterford, brought with him to that high Council, Father Cleary as his Lordship's theological adviser, with the result that the Synod appointed his reverence to the secretaryship of one of the most important committees then charged with duties de fide. After his

RETURN FROM THE SYNOD

of 1875, the Rev. James Vincent Cleary was appointed Vicar of the Diocese of Waterford, and assigned of the offices of the altar as parish priest of Dungarvan. Resigning his Presidency of St. John's College, to the great regret of the Professors and students, he entered on his new functions with a zeal and ability which have shown the variety of his powers in the accomplishment of many good works in a few years. His grace of manners, his varied acquirements and his distinguished but unpretending piety drew the Catholics of the town of Dungarvan around him as children around a beloved father, and soon gave him such an influence over them as bore fruits in fine results. In the ancient spirit of the church Father Cleary is a lover of the arts; and having determined to commemorate his pastorate of Dungarvan, while doing at the same time a noble work of his Master, he appealed to the congregation to sustain him in replacing the fourteen windows of their church by fourteen others of beautiful design in stained glass. Each of these works of art cost $250; and was paid for by each of fourteen families of the congregation who were charmed into that pious liberality by the pursuasive

ZEAL OF THEIR PASTOR.

The windows thus provided for his reverence undertook, in the next place, to enrich the interior of his church with eleven stations of the Cross, at a cost of $1,750. Appealing once again to the generosity of his flock he was once again perfectly successful; for distributing the burden, as in the case of the stained windows, he found eleven able and willing to unite in paying towards the cost of the eleven Stations a contribution of $125 each! In four years of his charge of the Parish of Dungarvan he has given proof of his artistic taste and religious zeal in the addition to the church of works of art at an aggregate cost of over $5,200. When the hand of God sent famine on the land of his labour, Father Cleary's heart went out in loving sorrow to the poor. On the more prosperous of his own flock he laboured in the pulpit and in private, giving out, as was said by Grattan of Kirwan, from the lamp of life to feed

THE LAMP OF CHARITY.

Appalled with the horrors staring his people in the face he cried eloquently for help to his countrymen at large and to the citizens of Canada and the United States. The response was so timely and so generous, especially from Canada, that it made Dr. Cleary the chief instrument of a noble benevolence in which the relief committee of Dungarvan, men, women and children, to the number of fourteen hundred. About to retire from the field of such distinguished service, his reverence is parted with by a regret on the part of his present parishioners which may be understood in the following references of the Waterford Citizen to his connection with that city several years ago:

During more than twenty years of his priestly ministry he laboured in our midst, and during all those years he was universally held in high esteem as a cultured gentleman, a polished scholar, a learned divine, and a zealous priest.

THE RIGHT OF SUCCESSION.

The death of the lamented Dr. O'Brien left a vacancy in the Bishopric of Kingston. For some reason, of which we are not informed, the selection of a successor to that dignity had been deferred, until it was made recently by an original act of the Holy Father. The Rev. Dr. Cleary having been assigned thus to the chief pastorate of the Diocese of Kingston his Lordship received consecration on the Feast of the Presentation of the Blessed Virgin. The ceremony took place in Rome, with great pomp, in the Church of the Propaganda. As an expression of consideration for the Catholics of Canada and of the special personal esteem in which Monsignor Cleary is held by his Holiness and by Cardinal Simeoni, the Cardinal was chosen to represent his Holiness at the service of consecration. And Irishmen who follow with affection the footsteps of that patriot Hierarch, will be well pleased to learn that his Eminence the Cardinal Prefect Simeoni was assisted in that solemn ceremony over Dr. Cleary by the well-beloved Archbishop of Cashel, Dr. Croke. The zeal, the piety, and the executive ability of the Most Rev. Dr. Cleary give

PROMISE OF VALUABLE RESULTS

for the cause of religion in the Diocese of Kingston. In a jurisdiction of which much is still in the bush, the energies of the church are absorbed largely in the demand for buildings and spiritual service in the outlying districts. But

To R. W. DAY, M.D., Kingston:

Dear Sir—It affords me much satisfaction in further testifying to the curative properties of your Extract of Malt. Before using it, my wife was reduced to a shadow, but now I am happy to say, that she possess a new creation, having gained over ten pounds avoirdupois in the last month. I have, therefore, no hesitation in pronouncing your Extract a most excellent tonic and restorative of the system. I am confident that it only requires to be known to bring it into general use.—Yours truly,
