Day's Extract of Malt.

THE following is a certificate in reference to the excellence of Day's Extract of Malt:
Kingston, March 2nd, 1881.
To R. W. Day, M.D., Kingston.
Dear Sir,—It affords me much satisfaction in further testifying to the curative properties of your Extract of Malt. Before using it, my wife was reduced to a shadow, but now I am happy to say, that she seems a new creation, having gained over ten pounds avoirdupois in the last month. I have, therefore, no hesitation in pronouncing your Extract a most excellent tonic and renovator of the system. I am confident that it only requires to be known to bring it into general use.—Yours truly,
HENRY CONLEY.

Hancock's Inspirator

IS THE MOST ECONOMICAL APPLIANCE KNOWN for feeding boilers or pumping purposes, on account of the great range of its duties, and the small expenditure of steam required for working it. It is intended to take the place of Pumps and Injectors and may be used in their stead to great advantage. It differs materially, both in its

Construction & Working Qualities

from the class of boiler feeders known as Injectors, inasmuch as it has one set of tubes for lifting and another set of tubes for forcing water—a combination entirely new, reliable and efficient. They are simple to operate, always ready for use and altogether a very reliable feed for boilers.

PAMPHLETS OF INSTRUCTION furnished on application, also testimonials if required. We guarantee every Inspirator according to recommendation or no charge.

Warner's Blood Purifier

THE season is at hand when most people require to take such medicine as will CLEANSE THE LIVER AND STOMACH of the impurities which are not generally discharged by nature alone, but which must be removed in order that those organs may perform their functions thoroughly. The most successful agents in such work are often the simplest, and in

Warner's Blood Purifier

are combined the three qualities of Simplicity, Safety and Success.

A course of this valuable medicine just at this time of the year, has the desirable and certain effect of gradually but thoroughly purging and afterwards regulating the stomach, liver and bowels, and of cleansing the blood, and in this lies THE GRAND SECRET OF THE ENJOYMENT OF HEALTH. Warner's Blood Purifier sold by all druggists. Price fifty cents a bottle.

Almost a Calamity!

On the Grand Trunk Railway the other day a traveller taken with spasms caused much alarm among his fellow passengers; he appeared to be dying. A commercial traveller present, by chance, had a bottle of Star Relief, a dose of which he gave to the sufferer, who rapidly recovered; without this opportune dose he would doubtless have expired. Travellers should always carry a bottle of this medicine, the action of which is instantaneous. Star Relief acts like magic in any case of Neuralgia, Toothache, Earache, Cramps, Diarrhœa, Cholera, or Nervousness. Price 25cts per bottle. THRENODY.

Oh, sweet are the scents and songs of spring,
And brave are the summer flowers,
And chill are the autumn winds that bring
The winter's lingering hours.
And the world goes round and round,
And the sun sinks into the sea,
And whether I'm on or under the ground,
The world cares little for me.

The hawk sails over the sunny hill,
The brook trails on in the sunny shade;
But the friends I have lost lie cold and still
Where their still forms were laid.
And the world goes round and round,
And the sun slides into the sea,
And whether I'm on or under the ground,
The world cares little for me.

Oh life, why art thou so bright and boon!
Oh breath, why art thou so sweet!
Oh friends, how can ye forget so soon
The loved ones who lie at your feet!
But the world goes round and round
And the sun drops into the sea,
And whether I'm on or under the ground,
The world cares little for me.

The ways of men are busy and bright,
The eye of woman is kind;
It is sweet for the eyes to behold the light,
But the dying and dead are blind.
And the world goes round and round,
And the sun falls into the sea,
And whether I'm on or under the ground,
The world cares little for me.

But if life's a wake, and will never cease
On the future's distant shore,
And the rose of love and the lily of peace
Shall bloom there for evermore,
Let the world go round and round,
And the sun sink into the sea!
For whether I'm on or under the ground,
Oh, what will it matter to me?

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

How the Tories Swallowed the Syndicate—Encouraging Liberal Prospects.

(Toronto Globe.)

Hon. Alex. Mackenzie at the Blake banquet responded for the House of Commons. He was received with loud cheers, the company rising to their feet and waving their napkins. He said he would rather reply to the toast after the month of September, 1883—(cheers and laughter)—and he was afraid that if he had to respond to the House of Commons now he would have very little to say in its favour. (Renewed laughter.) Reference had been made to the Senate and he was sure he owed it nothing; but he was bound to say this in its defence, that it was not much worse than the House of Commons. (Cheers and renewed laughter.) Both were badly in need of reform. During the last session he had not, as had been explained by Mr. Blake, been able to give much personal attention to the business of the House, but he regretted this the less on account of the fact that nothing could have been done more admirably than the management of the great railway debate by Mr. Blake. The leader of the Opposition had succeeded in

HEDGING IN THE MINISTERIALISTS

and had put the bars up on every side, and he (Mr. Mackenzie) defied them to break out. Within his experience of twenty years in Parliament, both in the old Province and in the Dominion, he had never known anything more deplorable than the subservient manner in which the Government supporters had followed their leaders. He believed there was not thirty members who did not disapprove of the greater portion of the Syndicate contract. One very prominent man of the Government side, meeting him in the lobby, said that he believed the men who would make such a bargain as that must be traitors, lunatics or drunkards. (Cheers.) He (Mr. Mackenzie) cordially acquiesced (laughter) and suggested that the member should make the same statement in the House, and indicate to which class the members of the Government belonged. (Renewed laughter.) He was sorry to say that that hon. gentleman made a speech in favour of the Syndicate and cast his vote with the Government. (Hisses.) Another member who in private spoke very strongly against the Syndicate

VOTED WITH THE GOVERNMENT, and when asked his reason, said, "Well, I would rather go out in 1883 than go out now." (Loud cheers.) At least a dozen members on the Ministerial side had spoken to him (Mr. Mackenzie) condemning the contract, and nothing had ever surprised him more than to see these same men standing up in their places, one after the other casting their votes for the confirmation of the bargain. Such was the House of Commons for whom he had to answer here. (Laughter and cheers.) Nothing should be more sacred to an administration than to uphold the doings of their predecessors in transactions involving the finances. But the present Government had already paid some sixty or seventy claims which had been adjudicated upon and payment refused by the late Government. He would take another opportunity before another audience before the end of the year to expose the folly of the Government's transactions in this respect. But one of these claims might be specially referred to. This was a claim on the Intercolonial which the late Government had refused to pay, and when the

CLAIMANTS EXPRESSED DISSATISFACTION,

had referred them to the Exchequer Court as the proper tribunal before which to bring their complaint. The case was still pending when this Government came into power. They took it out of the court, and referred it to a special commission of one man, and he, without calling for the evidence of any of the Government officials on whose recommendation payment had been refused, awarded the full amount of over a hundred thousand dollars. (Cheers.) Such was a specimen of the extraordinary transactions which had taken place during this Parliament. No worse cases were ever brought to light in this country, and he was sure that an exposure of them would have such an effect on the public mind as would, beyond the shadow of a doubt, result in their defeat. (Cheers.) They did not in any portion of their policy now represent the opinion of the country. With regard to protection he took the ground generally that whatever suits the great mass of the people must be CARRIED OUT IN LEGISLATION.

With regard to the prospects of the party he had within the last few weeks taken occasion to learn the views and feelings of leading men with whom he met. The result was that he found the Conservatives apologetic and willing to reason the matter (laughter), while the Liberals were hopeful. From the Maritime Provinces the most cheering assurances had come that the victory in Carleton was indicative of the feeling which prevails throughout the whole of the three Provinces. If any member of the Liberal Administration could be charged with practices such as could be proved against members of the present Government, in regard to money matters, he should be surprised. He was glad of the opportunity of addressing so [illegible] as he saw before him, and he trusted the demonstration would have a beneficial effect not only upon young men all over Ontario, and result in the gaining of any bye-elections that might take place, but would also eventuate in a great triumph for the great Liberal party in 1883.

AMBER SUGAR CANE.

The Experiment of One Farmer—A Success—His Recommendations.

To the Editor of the British Whig.

SIR,—For the information of the farmers in general, from whom I have received several letters of enquiry as to the possibility and profit of growing amber sugar cane in this part of the country, I may say that I planted 43 square rods of cane seed on 25th of May, 1880. The soil was a light sandy loam, in rather poor condition. I planted in hills about 3 feet apart, seven to eight seeds in a hill, and when the stocks were about six inches high I put a handful of ashes upon each hill, after the first hoeing. The cane grew very slow at first, but after it got fairly started its progress was very fast. Some of it reached a height of from 10 to 12 feet. The amount of seed required for an acre is about three to four lbs. I also sowed some in drills for feeding to milch cows. There is not as much bulk to the acre as of western corn, but the cane produces a larger flow of rich milk, and is better for fattening. It does not require so rich a soil or as much hoeing as Indian corn. It grows so fast that it is easy to keep free of weeds. It will stand more frost and more drought than corn. The seed ripened well and came to maturity about the first of October.

The leaves were stripped off by using a wooden sword, about two feet long, striking down through the hill. The leaves or seeds left on will give the syrup a bitter taste. After the leaves are taken off the cane is cut and put in bundles of convenient size for handling, the tops being put together so as to be conveniently cut off with a hay knife or an axe. I had about six bbls. of seed, which I think is better than oats or corn for feeding horses or cattle. Now for the result or attempt to manufacture the syrup. I procured the service of a gentleman, who was well acquainted with the business, to make a wooden mill. His charge was $6.75. I attached a horse to it and it worked well. Any handy man can make a mill in two days; the only great expense is $2 for turning the rollers. I think wooden rollers are best for a person's own use. They do not extract as much juice but the syrup is of a better colour and the cattle will eat the cane and have the benefit of what remains. One galvanized iron pan did duty for an evaporator. I could boil 100 gallons of syrup per day. Having strained the juice through a two ply of flannel and then filtered through clean rye straw, and boiled, the result was a nice light brown syrup nearly equal to that of the maple.

Part of it was sold for $1 per gallon; 75c. per gal., wholesale, was offered for it all.

The profit from the 43 square rods would be as follows:

40 gals syrup at 75c per gal	$30 00
Sold seed	28 20
First prize on seed at Central Fair	2 00
Extra prize on syrup	75
Extra prize on cane	75
Stocks for the cattle	4 00
	$65 70
Ploughing, harrowing, planting and hoeing	$ 6 00
Stripping off the leaves and cutting, extracting the juice and boiling	7 00
	$13 00
	$52 70

From the experience of the past season I think the growing of this variety of sugar cane a perfect success. If the farmers in the rear of this county, where the soil is light and well adapted for growing cane, would turn their attention to it they would make more money. They can get the seed from any of the seed stores in Kingston. I think the time is not far distant when we will produce all the syrup and sugar we require in this country.

Testimonial to Evan McColl.

To the Editor of the Montreal Gazette.

SIR,—Copies of your interesting paper occasionally reach me here in the capital of the Highlands. I see in your issue of 5th March a reference to the proposed testimonial to Mr. McColl. I am glad to see most of the Canadian papers taking the matter up, and trust that some of your leading Highlanders in the Dominion will take the practical steps of forming a committee to secure subscriptions. This is all that is required. The money will flow in freely if only some one is appointed to receive it. It ought to be done on your side of the Atlantic and not here. I proposed that in my sketch of the bard, which appeared in the Celtic Magazine for December and January last, copies of which I send you herewith, and I think you might do worse, in the circumstances, than reproduce at least some of the sketch, if not the whole, in the Gazette, especially pages 101-102 of the January number. The Rev. Wm. Howie Wylie, of Helensburg, a gentleman of great ability and literary culture, perused these articles, and referred to them in his speech at the Hamilton Burns Club. (See enclosed extract from the Greenock Telegraph.)

Let me again express a hope that some of your leading men will act the Samaritan and set the ball in motion by appointing a committee in Montreal or Toronto. McColl is a credit to you and to us, a poet who will live in the affection of his countrymen so long as the Gaelic language is spoken and genuine poetry appreciated. I have received a severe pen and ink castigation from him for bringing himself and his position so prominently before the public. That is, however, altogether due to his natural modesty and unwillingness that the world should know his requirements. We have here a duty to perform, and by performing it we shall do honor to ourselves more than to him.

I am, sir,
Yours faithfully,
A. MACKENZIE.

Zopesa and Brazil.

As a result of the new commercial enterprise just assuming importance with Brazil, is the introduction of Zopesa so justly celebrated where it is known for the cure of all forms of Indigestion. The company have opened a laboratory in Toronto. Zopesa comes to us highly endorsed and recommended, its certainty to relief and cure Dyspepsia and Constipation, makes this remarkable compound a necessity in Canada. The company make sample bottles at the trifling cost of 10 cents, to be had of Heath & Gunn and Henry Wade.

Reminders.

Bellmen were appointed in London in 1556, to "ring the bells at night and cry, 'Take care of your fire and candle, be charitable to the poor, and pray for the dead.'" We are constantly reminded by circumstances to take care of our health and preserve in a proper way our bodies. This, alas! is too often neglected. The dyspeptic and bilious are induced to make trial of some drug or patent medicine, which often aggravates the malady. Be sure and provide yourself with Baxter's Mandrake Bitters; they are highly prized by all who have used them, as the most effectual cure for all disorders of the stomach.
