Ayer's Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Nervousness, pain, sickness, care, disappointment and hereditary predispositions all mark the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by its tonic influence upon the roots of the hair, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately, restores the growth and always entirely restores its color, when faded or gray. It stimulates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brashy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; lost hair restored with lively expression; falling hair is checked and stabilished; thin hair thickened; and faded or gray hairs resume their original color. Its operation is sure and harmless. It cures dandruff, scurf, all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—under which conditions, diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume and valued for the soft lustre and richness it imparts.

OLD DREAMS.

Where are the footsteps I was wont to hear
O Spring, in notes of the blackbird's song
I now missed, the world has lost much of
With the instant soon is too long, too long!

The footfall and the sweeping robes of Spring,
How once I waited on as I lay in bed!
Now, I give moved, I hear the blackbird sing,
As blind men wake soon at the sunshine light.

Nay, now ungrateful, I say rather I should Remember those thrones, queen empresses in
The bench,
And for a moment Rich was that green wood,
Now bare and drooping, want for her deep for speech.

One moment, it was passion, the gusty breeze
Brought laughter, and rough voices from the Night, like a mist, clothed round the darkening trees,
And I was with the world that moves again.

No, not a kiss, yet so far it lies,
No angel guarded gate, nor far for sight.
We breathe, we touch it, yet our blinded eyes
Still seek it every way except the right.

Spectator.

SARATOGA BREEZES.

The Season Commenced—Influx of Visitors—Up the Hudson by Daylight—Exodus for the River

From our own Correspondent.

The present season at this famous fashionable resort is the most exciting we have ever had, and brilliant that has ever been known since it has been known as Saratoga. Greater preparations have been made by those who came here than ever before. Just fancy, for instance, here is a lady at one of the large hotels who boasts that she had three hundred elegant dresses made at Worth's, Paris, for the season of 1881 at Saratoga Springs, costing some $22,000. Her arrival at Saratoga was announced by twenty four large size Saratoga trunks. This lady is said to be the owner of some $250,000 or $300,000 worth of diamonds of rare beauty and, of course, she is the observed of all observers, especially among the ladies. She is an ordinary looking person in face and form, but, as the old saying is, "Fine feathers make fine birds." She is the wife of a Texas wool dealer, who prides herself on being one of the descendants of one of the generals who fought in the battle of the revolution of 1775.

The influx of visitors who came up the Hudson River by daylight during the past week has been immense. The scenery of the Hudson is the most magnificent in the world. Add to this the sail up and down the river with splendid cool breezes free from the heat, dust and smoke of a railway train, and you will at once understand why a great portion of all the summer travel to Saratoga, Lake George, the White and Green Mountains, the Canadas and the West, sail up and down this river by daylight. Commodore Alfred Vansantvoord & Co's line of magnificent floating palace steamers, the "Albany" and "Chauncey Vibbard," form the daily line between New York and Albany. They make sure connections at Albany and New York for all boats and trains to all points. These boats are among the largest, fastest and most splendid river steamboats in the world, whilst the trip out and down the Hudson by daylight has been very fashionable. The hotels in Saratoga are all good and are always well filled. The Adelphi is one of the finest hotels in the country, its charges is about $1 day less than the other first class hotels, and yet the accommodation at the Adelphi is fully equal to the best hotel here. The result is this hotel is always well filled when the others are a quarter full. It is one of the most favourite hotels here, as those will find who become its guests. They will experience comfort and economy.

Congress Park has been very much improved since last year. Electric lights have been added, which turns the darkest night into day. It is now one of the most lovely spots in the world. Too much praise cannot be awarded to Mr. A. C. Schuyler, the Superintendent of the Park, for his indefatigable efforts to cater for the public.

The exodus from Saratoga is immense for the River St. Lawrence, via Niagara Falls, Lake Ontario, Toronto, Kingston, the Thousand Islands, the rapids of the St. Lawrence, Montreal, Quebec and other points. The route down the St. Lawrence and through the Canadas is ever fashionable and very popular. No trip in the world is more lovely and exciting, as all can attest who have passed over it. The steamers of the Richelieu and Ontario Navigation Company, which forms the daily line between Niagara Falls and Quebec, are among the best and first in Canada. They were built expressly for this service and pass over the lake, river and rapids with speed, safety and comfort. The travel down the St. Lawrence by these boats will be immense this season. No one who has the time to spare should fail to take this trip upon them. They should stop over at Kingston, Canada, which is a delightful city. From here they can roam in and about the Thousand Islands by sail boat or steamer to their hearts' content, and then resume their journey down the St. Lawrence over the splendid rapids to Montreal and Quebec.

The elopement from here a few days ago of a wealthy married man, father of four children, with the chambermaid of one of the hotels, wants confirmation, of which I will give particulars in my next. Yours, &c., ARNO.

Saratoga Springs, N.Y., July 13, '81

Whooping Cough.

FRED P. GOTTER, formerly Proprietor of the Corner de St. Hyacinthe, Canada.

"Several months since my daughter, ten years of age, was taken with whooping cough in a very aggravated form, and nothing we could do for her seemed in any way to relieve her suffering. We at length decided to try a bottle of Dr. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY. In three hours after she commenced using it, she was greatly relieved, and in less than three days was entirely cured, and is now well. I have since recommended the BALSAM to many of my neighbors, who have used it, and in no case have I known it to fail of effecting a speedy cure. 50 cents and $1 a bottle. Sold by dealers generally.

In these times of quack medicine advertisements everywhere, it is truly gratifying to find one remedy that is worthy of praise, and which really does as recommended. Curious Passages in the Life of Mis Wilberforce. A Story not Unlamiliar to the Stage.

Miss Mabel Wilberforce, the plaintiff in the Queen's Bench libel suit, is a daughter of an American army officer, formerly a resident of San Francisco and Indianapolis, but who is now deceased, and by trustee of whose property, named Perry Morton, she claims to be still a resident of Indianapolis and not Capt. Philp, for slander and libel on account of steps he had taken to detach his father from her. Rix father, an old man nearly eighty years of age, had lost his own daughters and intended to adopt Miss Wilberforce, and leave her part of his property. The defence, as outlined in Chas. Russell's speech and indicated in the cross examination of the plaintiff was that the plaintiff is an impostor and adventuress, that her whole

[illegible] and history is a fabrication, that she had formerly been a domestic servant; that Captain Philp's communications are true and justified by the plaintiff's deception of his father. The plaintiff was broken down under the cross examination, and the withdrawal of her counsel is not surprising in view of the revelations in Mr. Russell's speech. The points of the case were explained in a motion made in the Queen's Bench before Lord Coleridge, by Mr. Charles Russell, Q.C., to allow the defendant to amend his statement by pleading justification. They are reported by the London Standard. The plaintiff, who stated that she was a spinster, and described herself as Miss Mabel Wilberforce, made who was eighty years of age, at some watering place abroad. He was much attracted by her personal appearance and graceful manners. She returned to England with the old gentleman and took up her residence with him at Kensington for a considerable time. The arrangements between the parties and the friends and relatives of Dr. Philp were perfectly friendly. After some time certain matters came to the knowledge of Dr. Philp's family which caused them to look at matters in a different light to what they had done, and a polite intimation was given to the lady that her presence was not altogether desirable at Kensington. She, however, refused to leave, and entrenched herself in her bedroom. Mr. Murphy, Q.C., for the plaintiff, said that he must object to the learned counsel going into the details of the case. Mr. Russell rejoined that the charge made against the lady was that she had attempted to poison Dr. Philp, who had died since.

THE ACTION WAS CONDEMNED.

Finally the lady was unlodged from the position she had taken up after having held out for a fortnight, the provisions having been hoisted up in buckets (Laughter.) The defendant only asked to justify what had come to his knowledge lately. The defendant alleged that the other words were not uttered. The first complaint attributed to the defendant was that he said that he was her (plaintiff) give him something to bed, meaning thereby that she had poisoned the old gentleman. He did not seek to justify that and some other matters, but he desired to show from inquiries made of the Charity Organization Society that he was justified in calling her (plaintiff) a swindler. Why should the defendant not be allowed to do that, and also to show that so far from her being a spinster he wished to prove that she had lived with a man in Manchester and had two children by him. If the action was truly brought to vindicate the lady's character why did she not object to the motion? Mr. Murphy said that the motion was only used for delay, and in the hope that it might get into the papers and create a false impression in the minds of those who read it. Lord Coleridge, under these circumstances, ordered the case to proceed, and it was tried from day to day with the aforementioned result.

MARQUIS OF LORNE.

The Brooklyn Eagle prints an interview with Sir Francis Hincks, from which we extract the following:

"Is it true that the Marquis of Lorne intends to resign?

"I have not heard authoritatively that he has any intention of doing so. There are many idle rumors about the Princess Louise not coming back. But I believe she will return to Canada this fall. So far as I can judge I think that as the Governor-General has gone on his tour to the North-West her stay in England is exceedingly judicious. Her accident was most severe, and her physicians were quite right in advising her to stay at home.

"Is Lord Lorne popular?

"I have every reason for answering affirmatively, and I must say that he has always manifested not only an intelligent but an active interest in his office."

"Might I inquire your opinion of the outrage upon the President?

"It was a dastardly act. But I also think that it was purely an individual act. The tone and temper of the American people, under the circumstances, has been calm, dignified and unanimous."

Sir Francis Hincks has returned to Montreal. He was born in 1807, but wears his age well. His hair is snow white and he stoops considerably, although above the medium height. His accent is slightly Hibernian. In conversation he is vigorous and direct, and when animated he speaks rapidly but distinctly. He possesses a vast range of public experience and his memory of facts and figures is remarkable. He took an active part in Confederation, and is a fluent and frequent contributor to the leading political magazines of the day.

Orchard Insects.

The borer of the peach and apple tree should be looked to. There is no surface remedy after the borer has eaten its way into the tree. The only effectual means of reaching the bore is with a knife and probe. Use the knife as little as possible, simply to open an entrance for the probe of wire or whalebone. If the young tent caterpillars are taken in hand at the right time, it is an easy matter to dispose of them. Just so soon as the nests or "tents" are large enough to be seen they should be removed and burned. If they are taken off in early morning they can be more easily found, covered with the glistening dew, and the inmates are at home during the early hours. Delay with this pest means trees stripped of their foliage and no fruit. The curculio is most active in depositing its eggs in the young plums while the flowers are falling and for a few days after. The time to catch them is early in the morning while they are sluggish; spread a large cloth under the tree and give the tree a few sharp jars, when the insects fall upon the sheet and can be swept from it into the fire.

After the battle of Bull Run the Dr. Bliss who now is attending the President telegraphed home concerning his brother Zeus and himself: "Thank God! me and Zeus are saved." It is to be hoped that he knows more about medicine than he does about grammar.
