The railway land grab, containing would appear to be still spreading. An American syndicate proposes to build for British Columbia the Esquimalt-Nanaimo Railway, and to take as part payment practically all the "reserves" lands under the control of the Provincial Government.

Rumours are rife of the abandonment of Lord Rose's terms as Governor-General of Canada. The continued and almost unaccountable absence of the Princess Louise gives colour to the rumour. The effects of the Ottawa runaway accident are no longer urged as the reason for the non-return of Her Royal Highness, and the people of Canada are drifting to the conclusion that the Princess was either not favourably impressed with this country and its people or else that homesickness in her case is no longer an ailment that she cannot endure continued exile.

In St. John, N.B., Sir Samuel Tilley's own constituency by a doubtful majority of five, Hon. Edward Blake was greeted with a most enthusiastic welcome on Friday night. At a reception during the afternoon of the previous day the honorable gentleman was made acquainted with a large number of the prominent citizens of both political parties, and at the public meeting he was accorded an ovation which augurs well for the Liberal Party in the Maritime Provinces, and which foreshadows the sure and certain doom of the Finance Minister should he have the hardihood to present himself for re-election in the city of St. John. The present tour of the Hon. Mr. Blake, and the telling and eloquent addresses he will deliver, cannot fail to contribute very materially to the grand volume of Liberal success at the next general election.

It is quite consistent with true loyalty to royalty to approve of the refusal of the present British Ministry to listen to the appeals made on behalf of the Prince of Wales for an increase of income or else an assumption and extension of his personal debts. The revenue of the heir apparent is already an enormous one, of the Duchy of Cornwall, the parliamentary annuity and other sources going to make up a truly princely income. Although it may require a good deal of hard cash to keep up the style required of the future King of England, yet the vast amounts he receives should be more than adequate to the occasion, and it is surely high time Prince Albert Edward learnt to live within his ample means. Royalty is an expensive institution and the Prince of Wales will act wisely by not attempting to increase the burdens of the already overburdened British taxpayer for the support of it.

A Globe correspondent has been a temporary visitor to the Kingston Penitentiary and has nothing but words of praise for the entire management of the institution. The "mercy which seasons justice" in the treatment of the convicts, and the rewards and immunities which are bestowed for good conduct, are cordially approved of, but the opinion is expressed that the excellence of the prison diet might be a powerful incentive to crime. The correspondent avers that "pithiness would do credit to the table of the best hotel in Canada." This is a "large" statement, but one which many of those who have tasted and tasted the dish in question are prepared to corroborate. It is quite clear that the old idea about the messiness and unpalatableness of prison food is now quite obsolete, and that the fare of the convicts can in no sense be said to seem part of their punishment.

THE NEW SENATOR

Congressman Warner Miller, who has been elected U.S. Senator from New York State in place of Platt, represents the district opposite Kingston. He is below mediocrity, unfortunately, in talents and reputation as a politician and statesman. The dark horse on this occasion, who, as usual, has put in a choice field of able peers, is a slow intellectual trotter. The Cape Vincent Eagle says that he spoke on public issues last Fall in Cape Vincent, and that the Republicans remembered the address as being the poorest ever delivered there by a visiting politician. What a change from a member of eloquence like Deacon Conkling! Senator Miller is evidently a successful business man, but it is only within the past few years that he has had any legislative experience whatever, and that has not been entirely to his credit. He has been principally active as a member of Congress in hatching up his private monopoly in the manufacture of wood pulp, and the New York papers a year ago denounced him severely for his action. The Times then said that he had "placed himself in the lowest of all categories of public men, a reformer whose professions of virtue yielded to the first temptation." The Evening Post wrote his epitaph as follows: "Here lies one who did the same at Washington, and who was always faithful to his duty, this duty on pulp." Add to this the fact that he is scarcely known outside of his own district and his election becomes a genuine surprise.

The steamer "Long Branch" loaded with excursionists, yesterday collided with a canal boat in North River. A man and woman on the canal boat were injured. The steamer is somewhat damaged.

DEATHS.—The Globe, in referring to the fact that an appeal against the constitutionality of the Canada Temperance Act will now be made from the public meeting of the Supreme Court of Canada to the Privy Council in England, points out the importance of having the Act defended by some able counsel. The licensed liquor sellers, who are now trying to destroy the Act, and who are largely foreign, have thousands and thousands of dollars at stake on the issue, and will, no doubt, spare neither money nor legal skill of any kind to secure a favorable judgment for themselves, and legal counsel of the highest quality and ability may be taken of some more favorable case, under appeal in order to obtain a catch verdict. In the opinion of many persons I have met the Dominion Government should see to the defence of this measure. The Act is one of the most important that have ever passed out of the great public mind to have it properly decided, one for all, just what is the jurisdiction of the Parliament as regards a question of such magnitude to the country. What the Government intend to do in the matter is not known. It is hardly reasonable to expect that the defence of a public act, like this, in which no private interests are to be served, should be expected of the temperance people, as such, or of any other more private industry. I may as well remark that, so far as I can learn, in Lambton county the Government is not doing its duty to the people in regard to the Scott Act there. It will be remembered that there has been a judgment given against the validity of the Act in Lambton because the voting took place on the day of the nomination for the Provincial Legislature throughout the Province. The fixing of that particular day was the prerogative of the Dominion Government, and the control of the temperance people. It is said, in addition, that the Hon. Mr. Vidal, on behalf of the Temperance people, urged Sir John Macdonald to have another day fixed for the election, in view of the very difficulty, but it was not done. And yet, when a serious difficulty arises from this very act of the Government, it refuses to take any steps whatever to make good its own work! Surely injustice and unfairness cannot go much further than this!

To make the injustice all the more apparent it need only be stated that at the last session an amendment of the Act was introduced in the Senate by the Hon. Mr. Vidal, one provision of which was to meet the very difficulty in which Lambton county had been placed. That bill was so mutilated by the notorious Almon amendment as to have left the whole matter much worse than before, had it become law; and the present Minister of Justice, Sir Alexander Campbell, was one of the strongest supporters of the Almon amendment! If Lambton county is, therefore, to-day without the advantages of the Scott Act, after its adoption by a vote of the people, the blame clearly rests with the Dominion Government, as I understand the question. It is high time that the temperance people should understand the position in which they are placed.

The work of an Old Kingstonian—Hand Signed and Original Design.

There is an exhibition at Henderson's book store a photograph of the new music pavilion erected in Forest Park, St. Louis, Mo. The pavilion, the design and workmanship of Mr. James Stewart, architect, formerly of Kingston, is a beautiful structure, costing $48,800. It is constructed in the Oriental style of architecture, after the Sarcophagus or Ottoman order. It is 60 feet high to the top of the cupola, and 88 feet in diameter. It has four principal entrances, and each entrance is flanked by pedestals of Warrensburg stone, upon which it is intended that the Three Graces and the Muses will be placed. The base of the pavilion, from the foundation to the floor, is built of Warrensburg and Joliet stone. The sides, parapets and balustrades also of this material. The roof is supported by sixty-eight spiral iron columns arranged in groups of four, each column, however, having its own base and cap. The roof is galvanized iron, and ornamented with Gothic designs. In the centre of the pavilion there is arranged a circular opening in the ceiling, and just inside the dome, immediately over this opening there is a sounding board. As the sound enters the dome an ingenious contrivance for preventing the confusion of sounds has been designed by Mr. Stewart. This consists of a number of pipes similar to those in large organs, running from the eye of the dome to the base of the cupola, and the sounds escape to the outside, rendering the effect very pleasing and harmonious. The picture has been examined and admired by many.

CYCLONE'S COURSE

The Fearful Wreck it Wrought—A Small Town in Minnesota.

New Uin, Minn., July 17.—The cyclone which struck this place on Friday evening, July 16, was the most terrific disaster ever known in this section. Over 100 buildings were demolished and upwards of 80 persons were killed and wounded. The course of the cyclone could be distinctly discerned from the fact that a perfect line of fire balls, which it would have been almost as dark as midnight had it not been for the continual flashes of lightning. The wind blew a hurricane, while the rain descended in blinding sheets. There was a moment's lull, and then the cyclone struck a perfect circle, almost destroying it in a minute. At the end of the time it disappeared as suddenly as it came.
