A REMARKABLE EPISODE.

Selling Down to Single Life and Returning Married.

The news has just been received here of the marriage of George Avery in one of the far western States. The history of this young man—at one time the most notorious character in this section—has been quite as romantic as that of Rogues hero—Jean Valjean. In 1870 Avery, then about 21 years of age, was charged with the murder of John Hayes, of Rowlands, Pike county, Pa. He was arrested and an officer detailed to bring him to Milford. Evidence of the murder was reported to be so conclusive that he could not possibly escape hanging. On their way to Milford the officer imbibed freely of liquor, and then got "blind drunk." Avery secured the keys which unlocked the handcuffs and shackles, and took them off, putting them in the bottom of the waggon. He took the reins from the stupidly drunken officer's hands and drove to the nearest hotel, where he arrived with the officer in charge at a late hour. He put the drunken man in bed, roused him the next morning, put him into the waggon, drove to Milford, the county seat of Pike county, when, after he had PUT HIS OFFICER IN BED at a hotel, he went to the gaol and delivered himself up to the keeper. He was confined there until September, 1870, when he was tried for murder, and, to the great surprise of everyone acquitted. Immediately after he was discharged by the court he was arrested, charged with burglary, convicted and sent to the State prison for a year and a half. He served his term reading law during his confinement. When he left the Eastern Penitentiary he returned home, opened a law office, arrested several citizens who had testified against him when he was on trial for burglary, charging them with perjury; and failing to make out his case was sentenced to pay the costs. He had no money, so he went to prison again, where he remained until his friends could scrape up enough money to get him out. When finally he became a free man he returned to his old home in Rowlands. From that time burglaries were numerous in that section, but never could evidence sufficient to convict Avery be obtained. After a while the young man went to Oil City, Pa., and hung out his shingle for a lawyer. Clients were plenty and fees large. Avery was when he was convicted of forgery and sent to the Western Penitentiary at Alleghany City for four years and eleven months. While there he fell in love with the keeper's daughter, and she proposed to assist him to escape, but he refused to leave prison before his time was out. At the end of the term he returned to Lackawaxen, soon after professed religion, swindled a neighbor out of $100, and was induced by the neighbor, who enforced his arguments with a shotgun, to refund the money. He then went to Luzerne county, got into a difficulty and went to the Eastern Penitentiary again for a short term. Upon being released the last time he went to the mining regions of the West, where he opened a law office and speculated in stocks. A few weeks ago he struck it rich and cleared over $1,000,000, gave up his stock speculation forever, sent for his fiancee, the prison keeper's fair daughter, who went West, and they have just been married. Avery is only about thirty-two years of age, and writes to friends here that he is an honest, upright man, and that the next time he comes East he will be a United States Senator from one of the Western States.

Loss of Appetite in Children.

FROM CHARLES H. COLEMAN, Manufacturer of Flavoring Extracts, 21 Blackstone street, Boston.

"Last spring my little daughter, aged five, became very much emaciated with loss of appetite, and great prostration of strength, so much so that we were obliged to take her out of school. This continued through the Summer and caused us much anxiety. After trying various remedies without deriving any benefit, our family physician recommended the use of PERUVIAN SYRUP. After using it one week we saw a marked improvement in the child's condition, and in a month she was rapidly gaining in health and strength, her appetite being excellent. At this date she is perfectly well, with round, plump cheek, and healthy color, and is again attending school regularly. I consider her restoration to health entirely due to the PERUVIAN SYRUP, and feel that I cannot too highly recommend it as a tonic." Druggists sell PERUVIAN SYRUP.
