NIHILISTIC PLOTTING.

Revelations Made by Hartmann, Now in New York. A Woman's Work.

[illegible] Committee, Hartmann authorized him to accept aid for the purpose of making known the Nihilist doctrines abroad, for charitable purposes in the interior of Russia, and for aiding Cypress [illegible] Hartmann published a statement of his connection with the Moscow railway explosion. He says he has been more than five years in soldier of fortune in Russia, half of which time was spent in prison, exiled on the high roads escorted by the gens d'armes. In November 1878, he escaped from prison in Ekaterinslav, in the Caucasus, where he was locked up for disturbing revolutionary pamphlets. He succeeded in escaping to St. Petersburg where he found many Nihilists. The attack of Vera Sassoulitch on the Chief of the Police of St. Petersburg and the assassination of several high officials of the Crown excited wide sympathy and secret support for the Nihilists and first suggested to them

THE ADVISABILITY OF RESORTING

As secret arrests and tortures of prisoners continued, many Nihilists were by driven to suicide or made lunatics. The conviction ripened that no improvement of public life was possible as long as the Czardom existed. The Terrorists in the Nihilist Congress argued in favour of using violence, but the majority decided against them. Soloveiff's unsuccessful attempt to kill the Czar caused the Nihilist leaders to disperse all over Russia. They mingled with the people everywhere, and heard no words of sympathy for the Czar. A new convention of Nihilists met, and the party split in two. One faction resolved to adopt terrorism immediately, the other preferred to continue as formerly, the policy of secret organization and propaganda. The St. Petersburg delegates resolved to call on the revolutionists to enter on open warfare against the Government. Soon after the congress Hartmann resolved himself to make the fourth

ATTEMPT AT KILLING THE CZAR,

and selected an underground mine as the most efficient mode. He went to St. Petersburg, where he found the terrorists had elected an executive committee, including Sophie Perovsky and Kvatkovsky (both now executed), and had formed an administrative council of the highest military authority in the party. Every enterprise decided upon was to be known but to the administrative council and to those of the executive committee instructed with its accomplishment. Every member of the committee who should consult his own interests before those of the party was to be executed by an agent of the administrative council. Hartmann became a member of the executive committee, pledging himself to obey unconditionally

ALL COMMANDS OF THE COUNCIL.

The Council approved of his plans, and agents were sent to different parts of Russia, on every railway on which the Czar might pass, to select a place for the mine. Hartmann was shown a large secret dynamite factory in St. Petersburg where every preparation had been made for exploding the mines. Finally a house near the railroad at Moscow was bought as a starting place for the mine, and Hartmann, Sophie Perovsky and Gickdenberg occupied it. Hartmann pretended to be a merchant and Sophie his wife. Hartmann gives an interesting account of the measures taken to prevent suspicion. Three other Nihilists came from St. Petersburg and

THE WORK OF EXCAVATION BEGAN.

A gallery 130 feet long, 36 inches broad and 40 inches high was dug to the railroad and lined with boards. The difficulties of the work were very great and the excavators suffered terribly. When all but twenty eight feet had been dug heavy rains filled the gallery with water and washed away the earth in the street overhead, exposing the boards. The escape from detection was very narrow. The Nihilists, however, filled the holes in the street at night and continued work. Once a watchman found his way into the cellar of the house and saw the excavation, but being himself a chief he thought Hartmann and his friends were making a receptacle for stolen goods, and arranged to bring his plunder there. Gickdenberg was sent for more dynamite, but was arrested the night before the Czar's train passed. The and everything prepared for the explosion. Next morning all the Nihilists left the house except Sophie and another whom Hartmann does not name. Sophie gave the signal for exploding the mine, and her companion set it off by electricity. Owing to the extraordinary precaution taken for the safety of the Czar the wrong train was blown up. During the confusion Sophie and her companion escaped. Hartmann says the Nihilists regret the necessity of using violence, and declares: "What we Nihilists want is liberty for our own people. As soon as our struggle shall have resulted in a republic, such as the United States, we shall be the first to welcome it. We shall be unspeakably happy to be, at least, able not to hate the chief of the state, our President."

CYLINDER WAS FILLED WITH DYNAMITE,

Restored to Health and Strength.

From Hon. W. H. Jones, of Vermont.

"I have been troubled from my boyhood with chronic or hereditary lung complaint. Some years since, early in the Winter, I took cold, which as usual settled into a severe cough, which continued to increase as the season advanced, although I made use of all the cough remedies I had knowledge of. My family physician also prescribed for me, but I experienced no relief. During all this time I was gradually running down, losing flesh and strength, until my friends as well as myself became very much alarmed, thinking I should waste away in consumption. While in Boston, during the spring following, I was induced to try WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY. After one day's trial I was sensible that it was relieving me; in ten days' time my cough had entirely ceased, and I was soon restored to health and strength. I have ever since kept the BALSAM in my house, and whenever any member of my family has a cough or cold, it is immediately resorted to. No family should be without it." 50 cents and $1 a bottle. Sold by all druggists.

Worthy of Praise.

As a rule we do not recommend Patent Medicines, but when we know of one that really is a public benefactor, and does positively cure, then we consider it our duty to impart that information to all. Electric Bitters are truly a most valuable medicine, and will surely cure Biliousness, Fever and Ague, Stomach, Liver and Kidney Complaints, even when all other remedies fail. We know whereof we speak, and can freely recommend them to all.—Ex.—Sold at fifty cents a bottle, by all druggists.

A SKIRMISHING BRIGADE.

Mysterious History Attaching to a Torpedo Boat. A Queer Transaction. Hoax's Rubbish.

July 27th says: A little over two years ago a man called at the office of the Delamater Iron Works and inquired for one of the partners, C. H. Delamater and G. H. Robinson. The stranger had invented a sub-marine torpedo boat, and wished them to build it. He said it must be about thirty feet in length by six feet in diameter, and shaped like a cigar. The material must be riveted iron. He gave his name as John P. Holland, of 189 Colden street, Newark. He said that he had formerly been a teacher of a Roman Catholic school in Paterson. An agreement was drawn up, and, accompanied by a clever young engineer, whom nobody seemed to know, and whose name has not yet been ascertained, he superintended the work. She was finished in April, and in May Holland took her away. First she went to Hoboken. Speculation and curiosity were rife to see what he would do with her, but he artfully threw her past, and left her entirely alone till the curiosity had died away. Then he made an experiment. He got into her and went under water and stayed there for an hour, steamed about, and came back again. On the fourth of July he again went down in her, and has never been heard from since. Mr. Holland when interviewed first refused to give any particulars as to

THE BUILDING OF THE CRAFT,

but finally conceded that one of the parties ordering it was Dr. Wm. Carroll, a trustee of the Philadelphia Skirmishing Fund, and continued: "I admit that I said that it was for the Turks at one time and for the Russians at another, because I didn't care to tell who it was for. In fact it was for myself. When I was half through with the work I had to fight one of my tipplers, who gave it as his opinion that the thing was for the Fenians; but the funniest part of all was the way the British Consul hung around. He was very anxious, and exerted himself to the utmost, but he didn't find out a blessed thing. I led him on to all sorts of notions, but I don't think he got any satisfaction. When the boat was finished she could go under water." The torpedo boat was found on Wednesday last at Burgin's wharf, and to a reporter the man in charge said that the three Irishmen were interested in her. "O'Donovan Rossa, speaking of the

ALLEGED FENIAN TORPEDO BOAT

to night, said: "You see I am closely watched, and am very probably followed everywhere by spies. Do you suppose I would be foolish enough to go and see the boat, and thus give the British an opportunity to thwart our plans? I was not only not to go and see the boat, but not even to have anything to do with the inventor, or to see him. Everything was to be kept a secret until the boat had sailed, and the English were to have learned of her existence only when she began to destroy their property.

"What was the cost of building the boat?" Rossa was asked.

"Don't ask about the cost," ejaculated Rossa with a deep sigh. "It has cost me enough money, or rather it CUT DEEP INTO THE 'SKIRMISHING' FUND."

"Did you contribute toward the cost of building the boat out of the 'skirmishing' fund?"

"Did I, do you ask? I gave Breslin, Carroll & Co. $50,000 at one time, and afterward gave them other smaller sums amounting altogether to $90,000. This was out of the 'skirmishing' fund. They took the money, and now they refuse to account to me for it. Of course I cannot compel them to give me any account. I could not do it in any court, and they themselves will not account. Is the boat worth $90,000? Why, no, and today she would only fetch the price of old iron; and that would be about $5,000."

"It is said that you have

toward the 'skirmishing' fund, Rossa?"

"Yes; within the past two or three days I have received about $500, and this is to be added to the 'skirmishing' fund, to be used for destroying British property. I tell you there is an intense feeling among Irishmen in Ireland and elsewhere to attack England every where."

See to it!

ZOFESA (from Brazil) will cure the worst case of dyspepsia. A single dose will relieve in a degree that shows its wonderful curative powers and its peculiar action upon the stomach and digestive organs. It is a positive and absolute cure for costiveness and constipation, acting in a remark able way upon the system, carrying off impurities. As a liver-regulator its actions are most remarkable. It tones and stimulates the liver to action, corrects the acids and regulates the bowels. A few doses will surprise you. Sample bottles 10 cents, at Wade's, or Heath & Gunn's drug stores.

Tried and True.

How sad to contemplate the fact that for the sake of gain would be philanthropists have introduced patent medicines and drugs (vile compounds) which are advertised to cure all the ills that flesh is heir to. Verily they have their reward. Thousands are annually sent to the graves through the use of such compounds. Baxter's Mandrake Bitters have come before a discerning public, without any loud trumpeting. They have been tried and have not been found wanting. They are daily gaining in public favor, and for dyspepsia, jaundice, and biliousness have no equal.

See, Feel and Believe.

"Truth conquers," and PUTNAM'S PAINLESS CORN EXTRACTOR is the embodiment of truth. "Actions speak louder than words," and its action on corns of every description has been the means of extending its reputation far and wide. The explanation of its success is that it performs all that it claims to do, viz., to remove the worst corns in a few days without pain. Few are of imitations and substitutes.

A Losing Joke.

A prominent physician of Pittsburgh said jokingly to a lady patient who was complaining of her continued ill health, and of his inability to cure her, "try Hop Bitters!" The lady took it in earnest and used the Bitters, from which she obtained permanent health. She now laughs at the doctor for his joke, but he is not so well pleased with it, for it cost him a good patient.—Harrisburg Patriot.
