CITY AND VICINITY.

PEARS.—Fresh northerly to northeasterly winds, fine and cooler weather.

FAIR PROMISE.—The Mechanics Institute excursion promises to be well attended. It occurs on the day of the yacht race at Clayton.

THE MURDERER.—Photographs of Vankoughnet, the Buck Lake murderer, are for sale at Stacey & Walpole's book store, the only place in the city where they can be procured.

CITY CLOCK.—The bell in the tower of the City Buildings is receiving new supports, the old ones being very rotten. While the improvements are being made the clock will not strike.

CUTTING RATES.—The railway war is making travel cheap. Passengers are being carried from Chicago to Boston for $5; from Chicago to Buffalo for $2; from Chicago to New York for $7; and from Montreal to Boston for $3.

MANITOBA VISITS.—Dr. Grant has been induced to contribute to the Globe a series of letters descriptive of his travels in the North West, contrasted with his observations as recorded in "Ocean to Ocean," issued nine years ago.

RUNNERS AT LOGGERHEADS.—Richard M. Charlton, runner for the Richelieu Hotel, Montreal, had F. Babage, a Ottawa Hotel confrere, arrested and bound over to keep the peace. The accused, on the "Passport," threatened to horsewhip Charlton, and throw him overboard.

SUMMER RESORT.—Mr. W. H. Davy, of Coboconk, has leased the Island known as "Centre Brother," in the Bay of Quinte, for a term of years, and intends putting up a fine summer hotel next season. This island is a most delightful spot for tourists. It is situated midway between Bath and Kingston.

BAND EXCURSION.—About 2 o'clock the terrible screech of the steamer "Armstrong" announced the arrival of the Brockville excursionists. They came about 350 strong, and were received with open arms by the Kingstonians. The infantry band accompanied the party, and during the afternoon played stirring music. About 5 o'clock the boat was to leave on the return trip.

COAL OIL.—American coal oil is taking the place of Canadian oil so far in this city is concerned. Yesterday 68 barrels arrived for one merchant. The oil in Cleveland costs 8c. per gallon, and after the duty is paid upon it the value is increased to 18c. Canadian oil, wholesale, delivered here, costs 22c. A merchant is arranging for the sending of 200 barrels of American oil to the city at once.

CITY COUNCIL MEETING.—This evening the regular meeting of the City Council will be held in the City Hall. The chamber usually occupied requires repainting and renovating, and temporary removal is therefore necessary, while it is also desired to test the adaptability of one of the large halls for such purposes, their ventilation and airiness being advantages which the Aldermen are anxious to enjoy.

TORONTO & OTTAWA RAILWAY.—The survey party on the above line have resumed location. The line enters the village south of the Perth road, and at this point the Ontario & Quebec Railway have run their preliminary line side by side with the Toronto & Ottawa RR. The Ontario & Quebec men are camped on Perkins farm, four miles east of Maberly, and are working eastward. Mr. Bailey, Chief Engineer, Toronto & Ottawa RR., is now at Maberly.

STREET CAR COMPANY.—The old foundry adjoining McCrae's carriage factory has been purchased by the street car company. The stone building will be converted into stables and a new car shed, with a handsome front erected. A blacksmith shop and repair shop will be provided. The work will be begun at once and finished on Sept. 1st. Mr. McCrae, instead of opposing the improvement, is anxious for it, believing that the change will enhance the value of his property.

"THE COMING RACE.—Final arrangements have been made regarding the yacht race between the "Victorine," of Alexandria Bay, and the "Emma," of Kingston. The race will occur at Clayton on Friday next, at 11 a.m., the course to be the same as that sailed over on the Civic Holiday. De Claus, of Colborne, will be sailing master for the "Emma." The difference of time allowed between the two boats according to tonnage, will be about ½ of a minute in favor of the "Victorine."

BOATMEN'S DIFFICULTY.—This morning a difficulty between Lewis Francis and A. McCorkill was investigated at the Police Court. It appears that McCorkill disputes the right of Francis to tie his yacht in front of his property, preventing ingress and egress with his boats. Francis charges McCorkill with having cut his steam yacht adrift, and in consequence it ran on an old barge and was damaged. He seeks damages. The case was adjourned until Wednesday for further evidence.

RECEPTION OF ODDFELLOWS.—This afternoon a number of Oddfellows left on the "Maud" for Cape Vincent, there to receive Montezuma Encampment, I.O.O.F., of Watertown, the members of which will spend several days here. After the reception the company will be tendered a supper on the boat. On their arrival here they will be escorted to the Windsor Hotel, their stopping place. This evening the Kingston Encampment will hold a session, which will be attended by the Watertown Oddfellows. To-morrow the principal places in the city will be visited.

A CAPSIZING ROMANCE.

A Young Lady's Mishap Inspires a Young Man's Love—The Probable Upshot of the Accident.

A romantic story comes from Clayton. Almost every day this summer a young woman, the daughter of a wealthy merchant of Ottawa, has been sailing along the American shore, trolling for large fish. One afternoon last week a young American named Rice was rowing in his paper shell near Governor Alvord's island, about half a mile from the shore. On looking around he saw the young Canadian woman struggling with her oars, and the trolling line attached to her arm drawn taut. She evidently had caught a large muskilonge or sturgeon, and was evidently endeavoring to pull around with her larboard oar so as to follow the fish gradually. In her excitement she leaned too far to the starboard side and tumbled into the water. Rice, with a few pulls of his sculls, quickly reached the unfortunate young woman and caught her by the arm. The combined weight of the two upset the shallow shell, and in a twinkling both were struggling in the water. The trolling line was still attacked to the young lady's arm, while she clung to her boat, and the fish seemed to be pulling Rice, his fair charge, and the boat down the stream rapidly. Rice, after considerable work, succeeded in getting into the fair Canadian's boat, and then pulled her in after him. She appeared but little frightened, and said she had a similar experience before, but on these occasions she had been obliged to rescue herself. During this explanation Rice noticed that the trolling line was still taut, and the young lady had not relinquished her hold of it. Convinced that something large was at the other end, he pulled it in as rapidly as possible, and was overjoyed at seeing a mammoth muskilonge rise to the surface. It was quickly secured, and the young Canadian, forgetting her wet clothes and mishap, seemed to be delighted. She insisted that her rescuer should take the muskilonge and he accepted it, with the understanding that he should hereafter accompany her in her fishing trips. The young woman is beautiful; the young man gallant. More anon.

Police Court.

Francis Mullen, for drunkenness, was discharged.

Charles Green and James A. Forest paid $1 and costs each for a similar offence.

John Purvis and Thomas Purvis were charged with stealing from the orchard of Major Douglass Jones, King street east. Summonses were issued requiring their attendance at Court and handed to the mother of the boys. They did not appear. Now they will be arrested.

William Anderson, a bibulistic offender, was discharged.

Alfred Jamieson, a small boy, was before the Court on the complaint of Jas. Gillespie, an English youth. In playfulness several boys were pulling off each other's hats. Young Jamieson got Gillespie's hat and ran a knife through the rim, making a lengthy opening. The prisoner was much affected in the dock. He claimed that his hat had been ruined by the cockney, and to prove it had an adjournment for a day. Gillespie said if he could prove the injury to the hat he would waive any claim against Jamieson for the damage to his.

A Clever Escape.

Lieut. L. B. Althos, of "A Battery, under arrest at the citadel as a deserter from the British navy, evaded his guards as follows: Althos' wife occupied the little house under the flagstaff of the citadel, and Friday he asked permission to be allowed, under an escort, to see his wife. The authorities consented. On entering the house the guard allowed him and his wife to be closeted in a small room with the window overlooking the river. It was in close proximity to the steps leading from the citadel to the Dufferin Terrace. Fully three quarters of an hour were allowed to Althos to converse with his wife, when the guard knocked at the door for their prisoner. When the wife opened it the guard said: "It's about time, Sergeant, to return," to which Mrs. Althos said: "Is it my husband you want?" "Certainly," said the guard. "Then," said the "he has gone out by the window!"

Result of the Combination.

One of the results, we understand, of the recent amalgamation for business purposes of the Montreal and Great North-Western Telegraph Companies will be the closing of one of the two offices here with which the commercial public now have dealings. This contingency has long been contemplated and understood. The Dominion and Montreal lines now being under the direction of the same governing body it is to be expected that if a saving of expense can be effected by having the business concentrated such will be done. Changes may not be made immediately, but they are expected to occur at an early date. Faithful efficient officers, however, will not suffer in consequence, provision being made for their employment in one place if not in another.

Feast of the Assumption.

In St. Mary's Cathedral yesterday the above feast was observed. High mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Frachon, of St. Basil's Church, Toronto, assisted by Rev. Fathers Hogan and Kelly. In the evening Grand Vespers were celebrated by Rev. Father Hogan, assisted by Rev. Fathers Kelly (Bishop's Secretary) and Kelly, Gananoque. The altars were beautifully decorated and illuminated. The music and singing were appropriate to the occasion.

Accidents in Storrington.

Mr. John Henderson, south of Inverary, whilst out picking berries a few days ago fell and broke his arm.

A little boy by the name of Simmons, of Kingston, out for the holidays at his uncle's, near Washburn, assisting to unharness the horses after the day's work, was kicked by one of the horses, breaking his arm in two places. Dr. Dafragh attended to both the sufferers.

A DESPONDENT PRISONER

VANKOUGHNET, THE MURDERER, DISTRESSED AND REPENTENT OF HIS HEINOUS OFFENCES.

Scarcely Hopes for Mercy—Anxious for Religious Advice and Consolation—Wordings Coming too True.

Vankoughnet has been making himself as content in gaol as men in his unenviable position possibly can. He is not happy, of course; on the contrary he is still down-cast and melancholy and very thoughtful. He does not apparently expect anything but capital punishment, and hence the freedom with which he discusses the murder case, going into the utmost details with out hesitation or reserve. He has had a bilious attack since his confinement; rather it is a continuation of that by which he was weakened before and after the murder.

PHOTOGRAPHS THE PRISONER.

On Saturday he was photographed. He was asked by a reporter if he would'nt like his picture to be taken as his friends would like it, particularly his wife. He hesitated at first, but finally consented, and Mr. J. W. Powell was engaged to do the work. He went to the gaol between 1 and 2 o'clock and pared for the photograph. Vankoughnet also prepared, combing his hair with great care, and "slickin" himself up in other respects. He seemed to be quite interested in the operations and posed for the artist with evident interest. Just when all was ready a cloud obscured the sun, and this caused some delay, but finally a good negative was secured. A copy of it, placed in the window of the WHIG, has been critically examined by a large number of citizens during the past two days.

NOT MRS. VANKOUGHNET AT ALL.

Chief Constable Acton on Saturday observed at Gananoque a woman and two children who answered the description of Vankoughnet's wife and family. The woman had a large neck, smoked an old pipe, and appeared to be very anxious to get across the river. After watching her for several hours the constable saw her speaking to a woman whom he knew, and on enquiry found that the one he was watching was a Mrs. Hall, from near Charleston Lake, and not at all concerned in Vankoughnet. So he dropped the case.

RETURNED TO THE CITY.

Constable Floody returned yesterday from the rear of the country, where he was engaged for nearly a week in connection with the murder case. He and Asselstine were the first to make a search for Vankoughnet in the vicinity of Buck Lake, but at a time when the latter was on route to or at Sydenham. On Friday Floody went to Elgin, where he enquired into the disposition that had been made of Richardson's horse. He found that after Vankoughnet had abandoned it, Brown, to whom the murderer made overtures for a sale, took possession of it and traded it off to a Mr. De Long for a yearling colt and $10. Of course Floody took possession of the stolen animal, and started for Buck Lake. At Chaffey's Locks he got information that Vankoughnet was in California, a settlement some eighteen miles distant, and leaving the horse with the dock-master (subject to his order), went in pursuit. Floody and Kerr were industrious in their movements but were misled by the telegrams. They went to John Poole's mills, thence to Deer Bone Bay, thence across to Vankoughnet's, where they lay in ambush for some time before being apprised of the fact that the man for whom they searched had been arrested. This information they obtained from one of Vankoughnet's children. Floody says he saw the family on Saturday night. The children did not seem to fully comprehend the situation, but the mother was in

A FRETFUL, DEJECTED MOOD.

She said she would come to the city next Friday and have an interview with her husband in the gaol.

On Saturday morning Mrs. Vankough net said she had been told by the prisoner that the double barreled gun, a quilt and a two quart tin pail were on Little Birch Island. He and the woman made a diligent search for them but could not find them. Vankoughnet told us that the gun was hid in the hay stack near his (V's) house, and Downey, his captor, has gone back to seek it.

The statement of Downey, as to the attitude of the prisoner prior to being taken into custody, is questioned. Floody says he has reliable information to the effect that Vankoughnet wanted to give himself up and was indeed anxious to be relieved of the wearying hunt to which he had been submitted. It is said that the unfortunate man did not take out his knife and threaten to cut his throat, but that he delivered it and his stick to Downey in his own house. The knife is now at the police station, and so much rusted as to appear not to have been opened for some time. It is probable that the rust was caused by the wetting the steel received when Vankoughnet jumped into the water.

TWO MINISTERS' VISITS.

Yesterday Rev. F. W. Kirkpatrick visited Vankoughnet and talked to him in a most encouraging way. This morning Rev. Mr. Jolliffe called upon him and found him in a distressed condition. He was asked a few things about his case and answered readily and without any seeming desire to conceal anything. Then the conversation turned upon spiritual things. Vankoughnet said he feared his crime was too great to expect the pardon and mercy of God. Mr. Jolliffe asked him,

"Are you really and sincerely repentant?"

"Yes," said he; "if I was out of this I would be a reformed man."

"Remember," said Mr. Jolliffe, "there are two kinds of sorrow—sorrow for being here, and sorrow for what you have done, and a desire for repentance. Would you still be sorry were you at liberty?"

"Ah, sir, I would," he moaned, while the big tears trickled down his cheeks and dropped upon the floor.

"And drink has tended largely to your fall and present position?"

"Drink's done it. I have often been cautioned that it would come to this, and now I see that what they said was right. If I was a free man I'd drink no more and steal no more."

Vankoughnet cannot read at all, and so passes his time alone in meditation. His thoughts must be torturing. When leaving Mr. Jolliffe remarked:

"Well, now, I don't wish to intrude upon you if you don't want me. Will I come again?"

"Yes, yes. Come again; come often."

Mr. Jolliffe says the man in religious matters must be talked to and taught as if a child.

Vankoughnet on Saturday told the Globe reporter that he was four rods off when he shot Richardson, that he saw his victim fall in a heap on the rock; that he felt a chill and dropped his gun; that he told his wife on Monday morning about the murder and both cried; that when he jumped out of the sail boat he intended to drown himself, but after swimming under water twenty feet he thought he might escape; that he did try to cut his throat and was prevented by Downey.

He will be allowed to walk about the gaol yard in a few days.

He has four sisters married to four brothers named Green.

The assizes open on Sept. 26th.

WHAT'S THE NEWS?

Laconic Arrangement of Items of Local and General Interest.

The end of the world has again been fixed: 10th of November.

Little Round Island, near Clayton, is also to have a big hotel next year.

Two indigent boys have been forwarded from Napanee to the Kingston Hospital.

Grove street is becoming more popular. Ald. Allen is making a good job of it.

Several trains have already passed over the new switch at the market esplanade.

Another advance of 5c per bushel has been made on barley. The rate now is 65c.

Watertown men are early risers. They never miss the six o'clock boat by any accident.

New frames are being put into the knitting mill. About 50 workmen are now employed.

To-morrow the Oddfellows of Napanee will pass down the river for the Thousand Island Park.

The Rockport grangers were in the city to-day. Several were under the weather. Come again!

The Kingston Rifle Association's matches occur on the 1st inst. on Barriefield common. Good prizes are offered.

The Globe does the Midland Fair an injustice. It will be held for four days not two, as announced in their list of fairs and exhibitions.

Grip promises to compete with the best comic papers of the day. Its present appearance is most creditable and worthy of compliment.

The fire at Tierney's, some days old, had to be damped by the firemen again on Saturday, the hay having been smouldering all that time.

Mr. Brown, legal reporter for the Mail, was in the city on Saturday. He was returning to Toronto from the east, having been upon a holiday tour.

The drought has reached a most dangerous length. The bush fires are not only becoming numerous but destructive as well. Even the sod is smouldering away.

This week will be prolific of excursions. The St. Lawrence Steamboat Company have an engagement for every day. Other steamboat lines will also be fully occupied.

The Grand Trunk will issue cheap excursion tickets on the 30th instant, from Kingston and intermediate stations to Detroit, Chicago and points in Michigan, Illinois and Indiana.

Yesterday would have been a good day to offer public prayers for those who were smitten with illness, and those who had gone fishing, and also those too lazy to dress for church.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Inspector Kidd is able to leave his sick room.

The Rev. Father Frachon left by the steamer "Passport" last evening for Toronto.

Rev. C. McIntyre preached yesterday morning in the Sydenham Street Church.

Rev. W. H. N. Shannon, of Brooklyn, N.Y., preached in the P. M. Church last evening.

Major Ridout is about to remove to the city, and Major Fairtlough from Barriefield to the Military College buildings.

Sir Richard Cartwright, who was seriously injured at the iron mines by being thrown from his buggy, is feeling but few of the effects.

I. H. Radford will lose nothing by the late fire at Bowmanville. The press was insured and the hay sold, but a small balance remained unpaid on it.

Mr. McMurray, the agent for the Ontario Temperance Alliance, occupied the pulpit of the Queen Street Church last evening. He lectures on temperance to-night.

Rev. Mr. Spencer officiated in Barriefield yesterday morning and St. Paul's Church in the evening. Rev. Mr. Garratt conducted service in St. George's Cathedral last evening.

Mr. T. H. McGuire is said to have sailed for home, it being his intention to leave on the 18th by the SS. "Dominion." On his arrival here, about the 1st Sept., he will be tendered a reception by the local branch of the Land League. He will be requested afterwards to deliver a lecture.

Mr. Caldwell, of Carleton Place, was in the city to-day. The mill at Carleton Place has been shut down and over 100 men thrown out of employment; besides the men on the river have been discharged. All this is owing to the impossibility of getting 50,000 logs down the Mississippi, passing the High Falls. The loss to the firm by the stoppage of operations will be very great, but they will endeavor to collect damages from Mr. McLaren.

MARINE NOTES.

New Dry Dock—River Excursions—New Steamers Upward Progress—A Timely Speech.

The schr. Eureka has cleared for Charlotte with 300 tons stone from the Penitentiary.

The schr. Pride of America brings 21,000 bush. wheat from Milwaukee to Kingston at 6c. and the Albacore 21,000 bush. at 6c.

The work on the new floating dry dock now building, is progressing very fast. The dock will be ready about the end of September.

The steamer Norseman is at Montreal with a number of families of Americans who are doing the Thousand Islands, Montreal, Quebec, and Saguenay.

The steamer Varuna called at Swift's wharf last Saturday at 5 p.m. on her way to the Thousand Island Park. She had 145 excursionists on board. She called on her return this morning. This is becoming a most popular trip with the people of the bay ports.

The iron vessel, Company, is on her way up the canal. She has been cut in two, and there is no trouble expected in towing the sections up the St. Lawrence Canals. It is probable that the vessel will be put on the Marine Railway at Ogdensburg and put together; she will then proceed, when her outfit is thoroughly made, by the Welland Canal to her destination on the Collingwood and Lake Superior route.

Barge Capacity.

The remarks of Mr. A. Gunn, M.P. at the Mayor's exception, on Friday last, were well timed. He said a few words in explanation of the delay which sometimes occurs in the forwarding at this port. He showed that there was amply barge accommodation, but that the Montrealers stored the grain rather than put it into elevators. Shippers from the west do not want the grain placed in elevators here, as it cancels the insurance and the cost of reinsuring would be considerable. What is wanted and must be done before the forwarding business by way of Montreal can be a success is the erection of large elevators at the latter place. Even if the great elevator be put up at Prescott the Chicago men will prefer to ship via Kingston and transport thence by barges. When grain is consigned from one place to another it is desirable to have it shoved through as quickly as possible. The barge capacity is sufficient for all purposes. Business men will not put capital in stationary elevators at this port.

THE LATE JAMES MACNEE.

"One of Nature's Noblemen"—A Man Whom to Know was to Respect.

On Saturday afternoon the last sad tokens of respect were paid to the remains of one of Kingston's most respected, benevolent and enterprising citizens, Mr. James Macnee. The loss of such a man to a community cannot soon or easily be replaced. To know our departed friend was to revere him. Occupying as he did the important position of head of a large and increasing business he was brought into contact with all classes of the community, and, from personal knowledge, the writer believes he can, without fear of contradiction, assert what our deceased and lamented friend has not left behind him a human being who did not wish him well. He was kind and courteous to all with whom he had dealings, in business transactions the soul of honor and integrity, one of whom it could truly be said, "he was nature's nobleman." Being naturally of a retiring and unassuming disposition he took no active part in politics, but he supported the Reform party. In charitable institutions he took a lively interest and was a liberal supporter of such, especially the General Hospital, of which he was one of the governors up to the time of his death. His ear was ever open to appeals for assistance, and from him the poor never went empty away. The writer of this imperfect tribute to his memory, has, in common with a wide circle of the friends of the deceased, experienced and highly valued the privilege of an intimate intercourse with him which makes it hard to realize the sad event of his demise, and to fill a void which will long intensify the deep regret caused by his departure. Truly we can say with the poet,

"His life was gentle, and the elements
So mixed in him, that nature might stand up
And say to all the world, 'This was a man.'"

Parker's Vermont Record.

Parker, the guide charged with outrage, arrested here and afterwards shot at the hands of a St. Lawrence (N.Y.) constable, turns out to be one Frank Cook, a native of Sheldon, Vermont. Eight years ago he was arrested for adultery with a woman in Highgate, and while in gaol at St. Alban's awaiting trial knocked Sheriff Place down, locked him into the dungeon and escaped, but was recaptured within a few months and sentenced to a year in the state prison. He served out his term, went back to Highgate and was one of the toughest characters in town. In May, 1878, he was sent to gaol for intoxication, but was pardoned out by the Governor and left for parts unknown. At times since then he has been heard from as stealing horses and doing other criminal acts. His boy, a lad of sixteen years, is serving a term in the reform school at Vergennes for stealing.
