Vegetable Balsamic

ELIXIR!

This valuable medicine is purely vegetable, the discovery of which was the result of many years close study, in order to discover the cause, the symptoms and the cure—viz.:

Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Asthma, Influenza, Pleurisy, Hoarseness, Spitting Blood, Bronchitis, and every species of oppression of the Chest and Lungs. In all cases where this Elixir has been duly administered its efficacy has been invariably manifested, convincing the most incredulous that is not incurable, if properly attended to. Consumption at its commencement, is but a slight irritation of the membranes which cover the air cells, throughout the lungs; the cough is more observable, but rather dry; then hoarseness and fever and the pulse more frequent, the sweats flushed and chills more common. The Elixir during the above complaints, operates so as to remove all morbid irritations and inflammation from the lungs to the surface, and finally expel them from the system. It facilitates expectoration,

CONSUMPTION

IT HEALS THE ULCERATED SURFACES

and relieves the cough and makes the breath long easy. It supports the strength and at the same time reduces the fever. It is free from strong opiate and astringent articles, which are often drying in nature as to be in great danger of destroying the patient; whereas this medicine never dries or stops the cough, but, by removing the cause, generally leaves the hectic before the cough is entirely gone. Consequently, when the cough is cured the patient is well. Send address for pamphlet giving full directions for cure of pulmonary diseases. Price 25cts. and $1 per bottle. Sold everywhere.

REMINDERS.

FRIDAY.

THE KENNEDY'S at the City Hall.

CITY AND VICINITY.

PROBS.—Lakes westerly, shifting to southerly winds, fresh to strong in force. Fair cold weather, probably a little milder to-morrow.

A VERY good quality of Scotch finger ing yarn at 5c. per skein or 80c. per lb. Also new twilled blankets, heavy jacketings, camel's hair cloth, and winter dress goods, received to-day at S. Burgess & Son.

EARLY APPOINTMENTS. — The Public School Board will appoint the teachers for 1882, before November 30th, instead of at the end of the year as has been the custom heretofore. The teachers had better note this fact and send in their applications at once.

PREPARING FOR ARBITRATION.—The city authorities are busily preparing for the arbitration between the county and city in re gaol and court house expenses. The police and gaol books have been carefully gone over and every tittle of evidence which they furnish noted.

DON'T LIKE IT HERE.—Fong Lei, the Chinese laundryman, don't think much of this city. He cannot make enough money as he has such heavy rent to pay. He hails from Canton and has been in Canada and the United States for five years. He hopes to return to his native country before long.

BURGLAR AT WORK.—Last night a thief attempted to effect an entrance into Capt. Booth's house, Colborne street, through a back window. He had it raised, but owing to the fierce demonstrations of a dog dare not crawl in. A savage dog is more to be feared by a burglar than an improved seven shooter.

IS THERE SMUGGLING GOING ON?—The Golden Lion Grocery will sell to-morrow New York loaf sugar at 10c. per lb., other sugars at equally low prices; fresh ground Java coffee full of strength and aroma, and everything else families require in groceries and provisions without going elsewhere. Why tarry by the way?

GRAND TRUNK RR.—There is some talk of dividing the Grand Trunk section which extends from Kingston to Stratford and appointing another superintendent. For a long time this section has been considered entirely too large for one staff of men to look after, and the change will be hailed with pleasure by hundreds of the Grand Trunk employees.

POLICE COURT.—Mary Cummings, "all in a tremble," solemnly promising not to again "tosh (taste) or handle intoxicating stuff a la Good Templars, and was allowed to retire. John Henderson, charged with drunkenness and disorderly conduct, was also dismissed. This was his first appearance before Mr. Duff. For some time Henderson has been very quiet. He will leave the city at once on a vessel.

CATCHING THE STREET CAR.—About 5 p.m. yesterday a policeman rounded into Clarence street at a furious pace, baton in hand. Pulling his cap over his brows he flew like lightning up the street. The excitement was intense. Was it a break gaol? or the escape of a notorious malefactor? No, he was running to overtake the street car.

IN A FLOURISHING CONDITION.—"The city finances are in a flourishing condition" was the remark of the City Chamberlain when asked about them this afternoon. Already about $70,000 of this year's taxes have been paid, leaving a balance of only $14,000 still to be collected; $20,000 have been placed in the Federal Bank on interest. The collection of taxes in the Fall saves the city considerable. The saving on discounts this year will be about $650.

MINSTREL PERFORMANCE.—The Mail says of Hague's Minstrels that taking the performers individually or collectively they might certainly, as an English critic says, belong to a well trained ballad concert combination, washing their faces, of course, of the burnt cork, and cutting out the dance business given with several of the comic songs. The company, it should be mentioned, are from St. James' hall, Liverpool. In England they rank among the highest in their profession, and Mr. Hague is known as one of the best and most enterprising of managers. Haverly probably may carry off the palm for specialties but for a high order of singing Hague's minstrels are as superior to those of the great Chicago entrepreneur as an opera to a farce.

Royal Mail Line.

There is likely to be a change shortly, says the Montreal Star, "in the Richelieu & Ontario Navigation Company. Our representative learned in conversation with one of the Directors that, although they had still $20,000 to the good and owed nothing, the prospects of the Company are not as satisfactory as they might be. He said that the railways were cutting into them, on all sides, and that he did not view with great confidence the future of the Company."

THE KENNEDY FAMILY.

Their Visit to America—Talk With an Old Friend—A Brief Summary of Their Travels Abroad.

The Kennedy family reached here from the east this morning, and during the day received the visits of many old friends who did not wait to be called upon. During the morning we met Mr. Robert Kennedy, with whom Kingstonians are most acquainted by reason of his residence for many years in this city. He left here in 1872, and went direct to Australia; where he joined the family and with them remained for three years in that colony and New Zealand. Then, crossing the Pacific, America was reached via California, whence the party travelled eastward entering and singing through Canada during the winter of 1875-76. In the following June they sailed for "home," and for the next three years gave concerts in England, Ireland and Scotland, including two visits of a month each to London, and that they should fill such long engagements in a place where merit is so severely tried is significant indeed. Following this the family went to India and South Africa, their stay in which lasted for over two years; but Mr. R. Kennedy was not one of the company. When the others sailed from Scotland for those far distant southern climes he started for Milan, and under various great masters, notably Lamperti, studied music. He returned to Scotland last March, just after the unfortunate fire in an Opera House by which a sister and brother (who had joined him shortly before) lost their lives. The present and third tour of America was commenced at Montreal on the 1st of August. It is the purpose of the Kennedys to remain in Ontario until after Christmas, then to cross to New York State, Steinway Hall, in New York city, has been engaged, and a cordial welcome to the great metropolis is promised, not only by the Scottish people but by the Anglo Saxons generally. In May or June next the family will return to Scotland. Including Mr. Kennedy there are seven of them. The musicians are:

Mr. Kennedy; Miss Helen Kennedy, soprano; Miss Marjory Kennedy, soprano; Miss Maggie Kennedy, pianoforte; Mr. Robt. Kennedy, tenor; Master John Kennedy, violin.

The concert in the City Hall this evening will, no doubt, be a great success. The advance sale of seats has been unusually good. The Kennedys appear under the auspices of the St. Andrew's Society. Mr. R. Kennedy will remain in the city until Monday. The others will go westward, to-morrow.

Mr. D. Kennedy, jr., who wrote an entertaining book of the family's travels in Africa, is now editor and proprietor of the Natal Witness, and is having good success.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Rev. Dr. Wilson has gone west on a short leave of absence.

Recent Bank Changes.

Mr. Donald Fraser, who has been Manager of the Merchants' Bank since 1872, has been offered the position of Inspector. Mr. Fraser has certainly been careful in the direction of the bank's affairs while here, and has had such an experience and knowledge of the business as will qualify him for the position. His friends will congratulate him. Mr. Fraser's successor will be Mr. G. E. Hague, a son of the General Manager, who has been not only in the service of the Merchants' Bank but of the Bank of Toronto. He assumed his duties to-day, and promises to be very popular with the citizens.

KINGSTON COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

Musical and Literary Entertainment—Distribution of the Prizes Won at the Athletic Sports.

Last night the annual entertainment, given by the Athletic Association of the Collegiate Institute, was held in the St. Andrews' Hall. The occasion of holding the concert was the distribution of prizes gained at the athletic games held some two weeks ago in the city park.

The hall was well filled with a quiet and appreciative audience. Perfect order was maintained throughout the evening. Indeed in this respect the Collegiate Institute pupils are to be congratulated. Boys, from the exuberance of their animal spirits, are naturally inclined to be a little boisterous on occasions of this kind. Last night, however, they behaved with exemplary decorum.

LITERARY AND MUSICAL SELECTIONS.

The President of the Athletic Association, Mr. D. A. Givens, B.A., occupied the chair. The first piece on the programme, "Edinburgh after Flodden," a part reading given by Masters D. Nicholson, H. McCammon, D. Cunningham and R. Hooper, was very fairly rendered though a little more expression might have been put into some parts of it. Mr. Galloway then sang "The Dying Soldier" with much taste and with that feeling which he always throws into his selections. He responded to a deserved encore by giving "Cradle's Empty," in such a manner as to elicit the enthusiastic applause of the audience. Miss Monroe was his accompanist. The third piece, a dialogue between Masters B. Dupuis and R. Hooper, though the speakers might have thrown a little more energy and life into it, was on the whole highly entertaining. Miss M. Davis, in her reading "Rock of Ages Cleft for Me," received well merited applause. The piece itself is eminently pathetic, but Miss Davis fully brought out the pathos by the skilful modulation of her voice and by the deep feeling with which she read. We have seldom listened to a reading that pleased us more. This closed the first part of the entertainment.

ADDRESS TO THE PUPILS.

Prof. Williamson, L.L.D., then gave a short address in which he referred to the high stand taken by the pupils of the Institute at the recent matriculation examinations of Queen's College, when, though there were many competitors from the best schools in the province, they came out head and shoulders above them all, gaining no fewer than six scholarships out of nine. He called attention also to the high position taken by the girl matriculants from the school, one of whom, Miss Joey Hooper, stood at the head of the whole matriculating class, winning the Gunn scholarship worth $100; and another, Miss Maggie Spooner, gained the Mowat scholarship, worth $50. These, he though, were irrefutable proofs of the efficiency of the school.

DISTRIBUTION OF PRIZES.

Dr. McCammon then distributed the prizes to the successful competitors whose names have already been published, after which he, in his official capacity, as one of the trustees of the school expressed himself highly pleased with the general management of it, and with the success of the pupils at the recent examinations and at the Intermediate examinations held in the summer. The only way to judge of anything is by the results of the work done, and if we are to take that as a standard—and he believed it to be the right one—then we may well be proud of our Collegiate Institute, for never before had it taken a higher stand than this year. He hoped it would go on and prosper, and that it would receive the hearty support of all classes of our citizens.

PLEASING CLOSING FEATURES.

The second part of the programme was then proceeded with. Mr. D. A. Givens, B.A., in his reading, a selection from Mark Twain's last work "A Tramp Abroad," brought down the house. The fun was well brought out and the audience were kept in roars of laughter. The piano solo of Miss Snook was executed with much taste and finish. The piece, a difficult one, was well adapted to bring out the qualities of a good pianist, and Miss Snook, by her playing, showed herself well deserving of being called a very good performer. "How David Copperfield wooed and won Dora," was then read by Miss Helen Yates. The exquisite humour of Dickens is scarcely suited for public reading. An audience of young people particularly cannot enter into the delicate fun of his works. Miss Yates, however, succeeded in putting herself en rapport with her audience and in winning their deserved applause. The last piece on the programme was a very entertaining dialogue entitled "Fourth of July Oration," between D. Nicholson, S. Griffin, W. R. Givens, W. Skinner and J. Doulop. The boys seemed to enter heart and soul into the fun of the piece, and the audience fairly shrieked with laughter at this piece. All the boys took their parts well. The entertainment was probably the best that has been held in connection with the Institute.

Appointment for Monday.

Mr. Tim. Sullivan, one of the crew of the yacht 'Atalanta,' has telegraphed his brother that the race with the 'Gracie' will take place on Monday. All who went from Kingston and Belleville with the yacht are well and cheerful. Capt. Cuthbert is strongly supported by ex-Senator Malloon, of Oswego, who thinks that the 'Atalanta' is the best craft of her kind on fresh water, and that to beat her the New York yacht will have to do some fast sailing. Cuthbert and his friends have been to see the 'Gracie,' and admired her, but are mum as to what are the chances of success. In all probability quite a number will go from here to New York to witness the race. Capt. Nicholas Dand, sailing master of the schooner yacht "Wanderer," while owned by Mr. Jas. Stillman, of the New York Yacht Club, and more recently in charge of the steam yacht 'Lurline,' will act as pilot of the 'Atalanta' during the races.

CANADIAN POETRY.

POEMS OF THE HEART AND HOME BY MRS. J. C. YATES, (MISS YINING) OF BOWMANVILLE, ONTA. pp. 221.—Bengough Moore & Co., Publishers, 1881.

As far back as 1864 when Rev. E. H. Dewart published his creditable "Selections from Canadian Poets," Miss Yining had established for herself a place in the first rank amongst several ladies whose names appear in that volume as writers of Canadian verse. Several of her best pieces appeared in the compilation, and Mr. Dewart says in a foot note to her poem "Under the Snows," "It contains beautiful imagery, a sound and elevated philosophy of suffering, great depth and tenderness of feeling, and a rich exquisite rythmic music that lingers in the chambers of the brain like the memory of a speechless joy. Readers of delicate sensibility, whose bygone years are shaded by the memory of deep sorrow, will feel the influence of its uncommon beauty, tenderness and truth." These remarks apply in a more general way to the volume which Mrs. Yule has recently issued, and which contains all those poems of hers with which we are already familiar, besides a great many welcome additions which must become equally popular with the thinking classes of the Canadian public who have any faith in the virtue of the true ministry of song. It would be a difficult matter to give, in the contracted space allotted to notices in a daily newspaper, a fair idea of a work of this description, by such brief extracts as might be considered best worth quoting as samples of the author's style and capability of expression, but we may draw special attention to "The Caged Bird's Song," "My Brother James and I," "Our Nation's Birthday," "Our Field is the World," "Sault St. Marie," "Loved and Lost," and "The Dance of the Winds," as affording a tolerably fair variety of subjects all happily treated, and having the true ring, lyrical and otherwise, of the worthier metal. The latter is a poem commended to the notice of any future compiler of Canadian compositions, either for school uses or the worthy purpose of putting on record such samples of Canadian authorship as the critical intellect of the country might deem worthy of preservation. This, however, is only one of the large number which might be selected from these "Poems of the Heart and Home." There breathes through the volume a deep patriotic feeling; a high unswerving trust in Providence; a passion for the beautiful, and a love for the true, all going far to prove that the mind of the author is largely imbued with that great Christian sentiment which says "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God, and thy neighbor as thyself." The strictly religious poems form no inconsiderable portion of the volume, and are among the best it contains, while the woods and the waters, the birds and the flowers, the seasons, the national hopes and aspirations of our common country, come in for that due share of earnest and loving sympathy which is even uppermost in the mind and heart of the true thinker whose mission it is "to sing the loved songs of her own native land" in strains worthy of acceptance. Here is a lively stanza from "Sault St. Maria":

> If I were a fairy
> I'd dance with the foe.
> Daily and nightly,
> Unfalt'ring and true,
> In sunlight and starlight,
> In darkness and day,
> As free as the breezes,
> As glad in our play!
> We'd sing in the darkness,
> We'd laugh in the light,
> We'd whirl in the eddies
> At noonday and night.
> We'd toss up the waters
> In sunshine, to see
> How they'd fling us back diamonds
> And gold in their glee—
> Such amethysts, topazes,
> Rubies and pearls,
> As would strew o'er the tide
> In our innocent whirls.
> And never be lonely,
> Or weariness know—
> Ourselves, and us only—
> O light-hearted Sault!

And here another poem from "Our Field is the World":

> "Our field is the world!"—whether sowing or reaping,
> Or gleaning the handfuls that others have passed,
> Or waiting the growth of the seed that, with weeping,
> On rocky and desolate plains we have cast,
> Yet each for his toiling and each for his mourning,
> Shall sometime rejoice when the harvest is done,
> And know, in the flush of Eternity's morning,
> That the toil, the reward, and the glory are one."

The "Love of Country" finds full and free expression in these pages, from the far away time, which has long since become historical, when

> "Up the mountain, and down the glen,
> And far away to the level West,
> Hosts of dauntless, unwearied men
> Onward ever with firm foot pressed
> The blue axe gleamed in the wintry light,
> And forests melted like mist away,
> Through virgin soils went the ploughshare bright,
> The harvests brightened the summer day"

to the riper and more recent day, July 1st, 1867, "Our Nation's Birthday," when, bound in a grand confederation, we were enabled to say:

> Ring out your glad peals of rejoicing!
> Wake Music's enlivening strain!
> Let the sound float abroad o'er your waters,
> And the echo through valley and plain;
> From the shores of the far-distant Fundy,
> To the lakes of the limitless West,
> Let the sound of a People's exulting
> Go forth in its joyous unrest!
> And in all hopefulness to ask
> Who shall not hope for that future,
> God's wide-open Book in her hand,
> With her sturdy and tenth loving yeomen,
> Her broad spreading acres of land?—
> And who does not welcome the rising
> Of a new star of promise this morn,
> Whose beams shall illumine the darkness
> Of millions that yet are unborn?"

The volume is very tastefully and carefully gotten up, and we can readily commend it to the notice of the public as full worthy of encouragement, in the hope that this latest literary venture will receive the reward it merits in more senses than one.

STOLEN KISSES.

A Dramatic Representation of Much Merit—Clever Performance and Satisfied Audience.

In our opinion "Stolen Kisses," produced in the Opera House last evening, was one of the most amusing and entertaining plays given here for some time. The comedy was refined and possessed considerable snap and spice, and its good points were well brought out by the company, each member of which gave evidence of that freeness and ease of motion which can only be acquired by experience and not then unless one has natural gifts which can be improved by cultivation. After seeing the comedy so excellently interpreted by so efficient a company we cannot wonder that it has had a popular run in England and the United States. It is made up of a succession of comical situations and a dialogue which is crisp and interesting, and generally provocative of loud laughter. We are introduced, in the opening scene, to Mr. Newsbury Becks and his good wife, the one described as "a man with a soul wrapped up in politics and the good of the nation;" the other, "the fondest of mothers with an only son." And that son, "Dolly Becks," (Mr. Warren) is at the bottom of many startling escapades, proving that he is "full of youthful innocence and and simplicity—up to a certain point," which point is not easily defined. He dotes on women, the pretty girls turn his head, and he is so indiscreet as to invite three of them into the house at a time when his tutor, "Placid Dawkins," (Mr. Lingard) and "Frank Wilde," (Mr. Westford) are studying philosophy, rehearsing some very wise saws, and—the latest airs of comic opera, for which the handsome tutor has such a love that he momentarily forgets himself, joins in the vocalism and indulges in a dance. There is such a mixing of ideas, so much misunderstanding and jealousy, that as the play proceeds both the family and friends become in mortal terror of having their scheming exposed; and every dodge one makes leads to the discomfort of himself or somebody else. The hiding of the incautious visiting females, and the strategy employed to get them out, was the best scene of all, crusty old father, fussy old mamma, the frolicsome tutor, the romantic "Capt. O'Mannus," (Mr. Powell,) the designing, "Betsy," (Miss Wade,) and the rest of them combining to create a sensation which convulsed the house with laughter. The performance was a great success. Mr. Lingard is a capital actor, of fine appearance, great facial power and remarkable versatility. He appears in a triple character—ex minister, diamond broker, and dear old gentleman of 80—and in all sunk his individuality so much as to be scarcely identified. He had splendid support. A return of the Company would be welcomed.
