Under our Ocean Deed.

Wanted, a flour mill. This is an advertisement for the city of Kingston. An undoubted want it is, too. Here there is every facility that a steam mill can need, and in addition a free field. The citizens would fairly encourage a project of this class, because it would bring farmers here in far greater numbers than at present. They would much sooner come to the city with their grist ing than go to a country mill, less able to serve them speedily and without the shopping facilities that city localities afford.

The recent N. Y. State charter elections showed wide ranges of choice. To vote a straight party ticket was an exception rather than a rule, and no two candidates fared as nearly alike as to give any appearance of machine voting. Where a party had put forward an improper man for a local office he fared badly, and good men every where ran ahead of their ticket. A pleasing and striking evidence of the decadence of politics in municipal elections was the election of Seth Low from among the great minority as Mayor of Brooklyn. The lesson may not, we hope, be confined to that city. Other places need it.

It is rarely that all sides in an electoral battle are pleased, but Oswego (N.Y.) District presents that happy phenomenon over the recent election of member of Assembly. There is a large republican majority in that riding, and usually the man of the party choice has a mere walk over. But often in such great strength there is danger, for the chief struggle takes place within the party over the nomination, not unfrequently splitting it up seriously. This was the case at Oswego and there were two Republican candidates, each faction being resolutely resolved that the opposing one should not win. Therefore, even after a view of the disaster worked upon the party, it is a cause of joy to the Stalwarts that Benson was not elected, and to the half breeds it is a matter of felicitation that Cullinan was defeated. The Democracy rejoice with both of the factions, and find their chief joy in the election of Poucher, and the unhappy breach laid so bare in the Republican ranks.

Several independence advocates among the Canadian journals are playing two curious strings. They do not want to see the Canadian youth educated in the Military College any longer, and they want Canadian independence just as soon as they can get it. The latter desire is not likely to be speedily met (though changing sentiment has brought it fifty years nearer than it seemed ten years ago) but if it were, where could trained officers be got to fill the places of the British officers now in Canada, or where would such a host of experienced men come from as would swarm over with British troops if Canada were assailed to-morrow? Obviously, they must arise from our own country, just as West Point graduates had to be relied on to lead the hosts in the American civil conflict. The United States has had no outside foe to fear, and yet for generations she has freely maintained her military academies, to be well repaid in the end for the expenditure. West Point cadets, Grant and Lee, went to the front in history. Canada's position needs still greater precautions than that exhibited by her powerful neighbor, especially while independence is whispered abroad—and the organs must see it.

THE FOREIGN CR).

The Ottawa Citizen repels the senseless attacks of the Toronto journalistic bullies upon the Military College professors, and points out that the English officers of the staff are here because their services were sought by the Government for the simple reason that there were not to be found in the country men qualified to fill the positions they hold. Connected with the Civil Professorships, such as Natural Philosophy, Civil Engineering, French, German and Drawing, Canadians were chosen. Our contemporary might have added that Canadian talent alone could never have founded the College. There are scientific branches which only picked men from schools like those of Woolwich and Sandhurst could possibly fill. How senseless it is, therefore, for Canadian writers to denounce the imported article in a wholesale manner until at least we can afford to do without it. We want the British officers' help for many years to come, but with more discretion surrounding it; the Canadian public cannot appreciate high points of honor. The revival of a know nothing cry is particularly absurd in the case, since in the general estimation it was a Canadian who has been placed in the most unenviable light by the disclosures, and that Canadian is not Major Ridout by any means.

GARFIELD MEMORIAL.

That subscriptions are coming in slowly and insignificantly for the Garfield Memorial Hospital at Washington is neither surprising nor regretable. It is a wonder to us how Mr. Blaine and General Sherman ever gave countenance to such an appeal, let alone taking a leading part in it. Apart from the dubious sense of marking the site of a wanton assassination, the scheme looks like a bid on the part of Washington city for a public institution at the expense of the world. Probably the Capital needs another hospital or the project would not take the shape it does. Washington, then, is quite as able as any other place to care for its sick. Appeals for help have been sent to England and long since reached Canadian societies already struggling with a seasonable burden of destitution. It would have been more fitting for Washington, a centre of wealth and public influence, to have exhausted its best endeavors at home to establish a local memorial before looking to benevolent societies abroad for a share of their dole. Poor Garfield's memory should be preserved in a more grateful way, by a national memorial to the Capitol itself, to which Great Britain and Canada would hasten to add substantial garlands. The nobleness, talent, and worth of the departed President deserve, too, to exalt a monument at the hands of any nation, but to mark the spot of a brutal murder is in very bad taste.

SATURDAY'S GLEANINGS.

Snow apples from Canada brought as high as from $4 to $4.00 per barrel in New York recently.

Lefroy, who murdered Mr. Gold on the Brighton RR. has been sentenced to be hanged on the 29th inst.

The total amount of contributions to date for the sufferers by the St. John's Ward, Quebec, fire, is $52,000.

A number of girls have been dismissed from a Toronto factory, because of approaching maternal duties.

The traffic on the Intercolonial Railway for the past year, exceeded that for previous year by $254,000.

The name of Mr. James Beaty, M.P. is again being agitated in connection with a portfolio in the Government.

Mr. W. T. Ross, Collector of Customs at Picton, re seized the schr. "Seabird" on Wednesday night at Deseronto and placed an officer in charge.

The New York Senate will probably stand seventeen Democrats to fifteen Republicans. Assembly—sixty six Democrats to sixty two Republicans.

The loss by bush fires in the Ottawa Valley this Summer is estimated at $5,000,000 and the total loss in the Province is estimated at from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000.

The female doctors who found it hard work to compete with masculine protasionals here, have a grand field in India. The high caste ladies there would rather die than be attended by a male practitioner. In Bangal Presidency alone there are between four and five millions of women of this class.

A young Toronto mantle maker, about to be married, has been pestered by the dishonorable attentions of a gallant. At last she arranged to meet him, and while he was smirking and smiling, she drew a walking stick from under her cloak and cut him twice rapidly over the face. He turned and ran, to escape the girl's brother.

The trouble between the faculty and students of Hobart College, in Geneva, N.Y., has been adjusted. The fine of two dollars, imposed upon every member of the three lower classes, has been remitted, and the penalty is ten demerit marks each. The Sophomores for hazing receive ten demerits extra.

Toronto News—If our people intend to seriously contest the yachting supremacy with our neighbours, a first class representative craft should be built by a combination of capitalists, and the best men engaged to work her, instead of everything being left practically to the enterprise of a single individual.

Timber to the value of ten million dollars was destroyed by fires raging in Ontario forests this year. It is proposed that the laws on the subject shall be more stringently enforced. This is necessary if we are to save from destruction the newly discovered pine forests north of Georgian Bay, as well as timber limits already opened up.

Those Infidel Books.

The book seizure continues to be the great topic of talk here. The general opinion is that the Government have got themselves into an uncomfortable fix through the officiousness of the Collector, and there is little doubt that Sir John Macdonald now wishes himself out of it. The voting force of those who call themselves "free-thinkers" is very heavy all over the country and they are very likely to make the seizure a political question. That they will do so in Toronto is certain, as they had Sir John Macdonald's pledge before the last election that he would not obstruct the importation of such works as those Mr. Patton has seized. The truth of the matter is that the real reason for the seizure was the infidel character of the books and not the alleged indecency or immorality, and that is the real reason why the Ministerial and Clerical Associations endorse the act. In the most respectable book stores in this city can be found works infinitely more immoral and indecent, which have all passed under the Collecter's nose, and which the clergy see everyday on the book shelves. No objection has ever yet been made to them, and if they are all to be interdicted hereafter our poor busy body of a Collector will have a time of it sampling the indecencies and immoralities. Fancy him poring over Robelais or Boccaccio, or over Ouida's filthy novels.—Toronto Letter.

Sleeping His Life Away.

Mr. Stephen Fox is an old gentleman, upwards of four score years, who resides in the township of Camden, at what is known as Overton Post Office, two miles South East of the village of Roblin. For the last two years he has been in very feeble health, which indicated that the general collapse of a very strong frame and vigorous constitution was not long to be averted. On Tuesday of last week he came to Napanee, and on his return home he appeared greatly fatigued. On Thursday following he became drowsy, and finally fell into a deep sleep, from which his family have found it impossible to rouse him for any length of time. For several days he slept quietly in his chair, but as he became weaker he was placed in bed, and to all appearances he is calmly and painlessly sleeping his life away. With great difficulty he can be roused sufficiently to recognize members of his family. On Tuesday of this week, his daughter, Mrs. James Harmer, who lives just south of the railway track at the Richmond crossing, paid him a visit, and when she was leaving he was roused, so that he recognized her and bade her "good bye." He has taken nourishment only once since he passed into his present somnolent state, and then took only a small quantity of milk. His friends anticipate his release by death at any moment.—Napanee Beaver.

Iron Ore.

Mr. James Munroe, who lives in the 6th Concession of Lansdowne, has left with us specimens of ore that he obtained a few miles from his place, not far from Charleston Lake. It is of the hematite variety, and Mr. Munroe states that he has ascertained the vein or bed, to be at least 40 feet wide, and of unknown depth.—Gananoque Reporter.

How to get Sick.

Expose yourself day and night, eat too much without exercise, work too hard without rest; doctor all the time, take all the vile nostrums advertised; and then you will want to know which is answered in three words — Take Hop Bitters!—Express.

Scotch Patterns.

I have just received 40 pieces of Canadian tweed, all wool, in Scotch patterns (heavy body) which I offer for $12 a suit, made to order good trimmings, and a first class fit guaranteed. When two suits are ordered at once, I will make them for $23. Come and look at them before leaving your orders elsewhere. Z. Prevost, New York Clothing Store, Brock St.

A TRAGEDY OF 1819.

A Canadian Governor-General who Died in his Barn. A Sad and Sudden Taking Off. Fatal Fox Bite.

A good deal is being said in the London papers just now on the subject of hydrophobia. Dealing with the question the Daily Telegraph recalls mournfully in the history of Canada the death by hydrophobia of the Duke of Richmond soon after His Lordship had commenced what promised to be a successful term of official life. The Telegraph adduces as an evidence that the bite of other animals is something as dangerous as that of a dog, the well known case of the grandfather of the present Duke of Richmond, who was Governor General of Canada in 1818, and died there in the August of 1819, from the effects of a fox's bite. We are informed by Lord William Lennox that his father had determined on a tour of inspection to the Upper Provinces of Canada, and after a farewell banquet to his civil and military subordinates, the Duke set off in the midsummer of 1819 from Quebec in a Government steamer, whose head was POINTED UP THE ST. LAWRENCE.

Lord William accompanied his father, on whose staff he was serving as military aide-de-camp, as far as Montreal, whence the Governor General made his way to Fort William Henry, lying on the south bank of the great Canadian stream. "Here," says Lord William, "occurred an incident of a most frightful nature, which totally changed the aspect of our hitherto happy residence in this distant colony. It appears that one of the English soldiers at Fort William Henry had a pet fox, and that an officer, named Capt. Fitz Roy, owned a bull terrier, between which and the fox there had been several fights. The fox was in a highly excited condition on the day when the Duke happened to take a fancy of him, and just before mounting his horse to inspect the garrison he rashly stooped down to

PAT THE FOX ON THE HEAD.

The animal instantly snapped at the Duke's hand, biting him slightly, upon which he took hold of the fox's ear, exclaiming, "You'll bite, will you, you rascal?" The brute at once seized him near the lower joint of the right thumb, making his teeth meet in the flesh. Little was thought of the incident, and when the Duke arrived at Kingston a fortnight later the wound had completely healed. He proceeded from Kingston to York, now called Toronto, and thence went to Niagara and on to Drummond's Island, upon Lake Huron, then the most distant of our military outposts in Canada. On his return he stayed some days at Kingston, and had himself entirely forgotten that he was ever bitten by the fox. The 70th Regiment was quartered at Kingston, and the Duke took part with the officers in all their amusements, playing at cricket and rackets, and riding out with them frequently. It had been arranged that on his way back to Montreal, a new settlement or township named Richmondville should be visited, and the land marked out under the Duke's supervision. For this purpose

THERE WAS NO CARRIAGE ROAD,

and only a portion of the distance—80 miles—could be accomplished on horseback it became necessary that the Vice regal party should proceed on foot. During the last two and a half months the present Governor General of Canada, has travelled a couple of thousand miles, travelling westward, with greater ease and far less discomfort than his predecessor endured when called upon sixty years ago to journey from Quebec to Lake Huron. On the occasion to which we are referring, a large and merry party set out from Kingston, and among them none was gayer or seemingly in better health than the Governor General himself. He walked nearly the whole way to Richmondville without fatigue; but one night, just as dinner had ended, he turned suddenly to Colonel Cockburn, who was seated by his side, and remarked, "I don't know how it is, but I can't relish anything to night as usual, and I feel that if I were a dog I should be shot for a mad one." The words were little regarded, but upon the following morning the Duke's

SYMPTOMS BECAME AGGRAVATED

He could not drink, and shrank from the sight of water. He was prevailed on to walk to the river side, in order to get into a canoe, and exclaiming, Charles Lennox was never afraid of anything," he stepped, not without considerable effort, into the boat. The sound of the splashing oars and the running stream, however, soon brought on an acute fit of pronounced rabies, and seizing one of the rowers frantically by the throat he demanded to be put on shore. No sooner had the boat touched the land than the Duke sprang out and ran at the top of his speed into the woods. Col. Cockburn, who was on horseback, ran after him, and assisted by one of the boatmen, managed to carry the sufferer to an adjoining farm, where he was laid on a sofa. Here the ripple of the water was distinctly audible, and he begged to be moved.

FARTHER AWAY FROM THE WATER.

He was taken to a barn a hundred yards distant, where he was placed on a bed of straw. He now grew more calm, called for writing materials, and wrote a letter to one of his daughters. He seemed perfectly resigned to the fate he knew was approaching, and recognized the faces of the friends who stood anxiously by his couch. Towards the close of the day he was seized with shivering fits, and his extremities became icy cold. He remained perfectly conscious, awaiting the end with tranquility although suffering unimaginable tortures, and about eight o'clock in the evening he breathed his last. Never did the death of a distinguished Englishman awaken more agitation or regret among his compatriots than that of the fourth duke at Richmond in 1819.

The Murray Canal.

The announcement of Sir Charles Tupper, that the Murray Canal is to be commenced forthwith is, it appears, to be received with some allowance after all, especially as it comes from the mouth of the "great stretcher." It now appears that it is to be placed under contract "as soon as plans and specifications can be got ready." We are not told how long they are likely to take in preparation. Further, the Mail says: "The sum of $25,000 was placed in the estimates for 1881-82 for the purpose of construction; and no doubt the work will proceed with due vigor of construction according as Parliament provides the money." Just so. "According as Parliament provides the money" is good. The Murray Canal will probably be a trump card at the next election.—Picton Times.

LATE IRISH AFFAIRS.

Probable Elections—Land Court Operations—Parnellism Still Active.

London, Nov. 11.—Sir Samuel Wilson, Conservative, purchaser of Lord Buckinsfield's house at Hughenden, has consented to enter the contest for member of Parliament for Londonderry in place of Right Hon. Hugh Law, appointed Lord Chancellor of Ireland.

At a meeting of the Parnellites at Londonderry to-day Dempsey, proprietor of the Ulster Examiner, and Northern Star, of Belfast, consented to co-itest the county in the coming parliamentary election.

Captain Kennedy, of the steamship Germanic, was to-day fined £10 for allowing three cases containing 9,000 loaded cartridges to be taken into Liverpool docks. When shipped from New York the bill of lading did not indicate their contents.

DILLON AND THE LIMERICK COUNCIL.

Limerick, Nov. 11.—Of forty of the Council only eighteen attended the meeting which conferred the freedom of the city on Dillon. No Conservatives were present.

RENTS AT DOWNPATRICK.

The Downpatrick Land Commission to-day announced decisions in sixteen cases on the Martin and Cornwall estates. Among the reductions are £10 on a rental of £21, £15 on £41, £4 on £19, £8 on £22, £4 on £17, £8 on £27. In one case the existing rent was confirmed.

THE LAND COURT STILL BUSY.

Reports from all parts of the county of Cork disclose a most extraordinary eagerness on the part of farmers to go before the Land Court. In some districts large sums are being subscribed towards the formation of a Mutual Protection Fund.

The applications to the Land Court exceed 25,000.

A PROTEST IN ANTICIPATION.

Lord Hartington publishes a statement pointing out that on old hereditary estates rents have not been raised for a number of years, and if the sub-Commissioners reduce these rents anything like 25 per cent. a cry of confiscation will be rightly raised, and Mr. Gladstone's relative compensation will come to the front with irresistible force.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Parnell has written to a member of the Wicklow hunt, enclosing a subscription and stating that he hopes hunting will not be stopped."

United Ireland denies that Sexton has become its editor, and states that he never had any connection with it. The editor has issued an address to the officers of the Land League branches, asking them to forward to him weekly accounts of events in their respective districts to keep their brethren in America informed in regard to the interests of the tenants.

WEST INDIA TRADE.

Chief Justice Armstrong on Canada's Opportunity—A Profitable Traffic.

Ottawa, Nov. 11.—Chief Justice Armstrong, of St. Lucia, Windward Islands, who has been in the city for several days, thinks that a profitable trade might be built up between Canada and the Islands by the establishment of a subsidized line of steamers. He is of opinion that the Brazilian line cannot engage in the Brazilian and West India trade at the same time, because when a steamer is to sail the five thousand and some odd hundred miles between Canada and Brazil it will not pay for her to deliver a portion of her cargo at a port only some 1,500 miles away. For instance, if you want to send some lumber to Chicago you would send a whole barge load; you wouldn't think of stopping to leave part of your cargo at Prescott. It is just the same with the Brazilian and West India trade. He adds: "You must have separate lines for each. If you had a good line of fast steamers running between Canada and the West Indies I have no doubt there would soon be a large and remunerative trade between the two places. I recently wrote a letter to the Montreal Gazette on this subject over my own signature. Had I contemplated saying anything on the subject when I left home I could have brought a number of documents and statistics with me that would have been of great value in the discussion of the question."

AMERICAN DESPATCHES.

Pleading For Guiteau—A Large Appropriation for Pensions—Increase of Statistics.

The Herald's Washington says Scoville has received a letter, signed by six prominent citizens of Rochester, N.Y., in which they express a hope that Guiteau may have a fair and impartial trial, and that for the credit of our institutions and the honor of America the character of the alleged insanity of the accused may be determined by a competent jury. Among the most interesting features of Guiteau's trial will be the methods of the Oneida Community.

The Times' Washington says the estimates for the next fiscal year will considerably exceed those of the present year. The Interior Department will ask for $100,000,000 for pensions, which is about one-third of the total revenue of the Government.

Washington, Nov. 12.—The annual report of the Chief of the Bureau of Statistics shows that the aggregate traffic on the New York Central, Erie, and Pennsylvania Railways was more than three times as great in 1880 as in 1868, and the average freight charges in 1880 sixty per cent. less than during 1880. The report favors the supervision of railways by expert public commissioners.

A Speculator's Defalcation.

Marseilles, Nov. 12.—The Tribunal of Commerce decided upon the bankruptcy of Mathieu Valley, Director of the Steam Navigation Company. A warrant for arrest has been issued against him for the commission of three million francs, ante dated bills, subscribed by him after being dismissed from the management of the company. Valley succeeded his father at 24 years of age with a salary of 150,000 francs. He spent nearly one million francs in eighteen months. He is now in America.

Creed to be Ignored.

Madrid, Nov. 12.—The Supreme Council of the penitentiary establishments have decided to allow the prisoners in future to ask the attendance of a minister of their own creed. Nobody belonging to other religions will be forced to attend Catholic worship. Hereafter officials in the prisons and penal settlements will be appointed without distinction to creed.

AN ILL-USED WIFE.

Alleged to Have Been Beaten to Death—The Husband Arrested.

St. John, N.B., Nov. 11.—The Spruce Lake House was kept by Tertuller Theal. He married a daughter of C. Lord, of Lancaster, and she led with him an unhappy life. The house he kept was frequented by bad characters, and was kept against her wishes. For some time he has been drinking hard and beating her continually. About three weeks ago he beat her so badly with a stone bottle that death resulted. Dr. White was called on to see the woman a few days ago, but Theal did not give him a kind reception. The neighbors did what they could for her, but practically since the woman was beaten she has not been able to move in her bed. Theal was arrested last night.

RHEUMATISM!

Ask for Mortimer's Great Rheumatic Cure and take no other.

Goodwood Ont. Sept. 20th, '81.

Dear Sir,—It is with heartfelt gratitude that I write to inform you of the speedy cure your great Rheumatic Medicine did in my case. I had to abandon my work altogether. After trying several physicians with no good result, I met a man who had been cured of Rheumatism by you, and knowing that he had an interest in the medicine, I procured a bottle, which cured me. I was not satisfied, but got two bottles more to make sure of being cured.

Yours faithfully,
SAMUEL B. TODD.
