Bismarck's' Future.

London Spectator The 'logic of facts' -to use the phrase invented by the fallen enemy whom Prince Bismarck so much despised-is bringing Prince Bismarck very rapidly indeed on that downward course which can hardly terminate without a catastrophe. There is too much iron in Prince Bismarck's blood for the chief of a partition of the chief of a partition of the chief of a partition of the comes to supplement the victories of the army by legislation the iron in his blood between trays him. He can think of nothing but compression. He is a more hydraulic compression. press incarnated in political life. Prince TION will take place monthly on the second Bismarck is not disheartened and not Tuesday. It never scales or postpones. Look afraid. He has behind him the conaciousness of having restored the unity of Germany, and that consciousness appears to excuse him, in his own eyes, for now squeezing the life out of the Germany he has restored. He has launched his holt against the socialists, and, instead of harming the socialists, has aided them to gain converts while he was struck down all free discussion of the most important economical and political questions. And now he is preparing to carry his govern ment of combat, tirst into a war of tariffs, and next into a war against parliamentary freedom of speech. The last step is the worst of all. If it succeeds-as it is to be feared it will-it will abolish all hope of free parliamentary deliberation, and will make the Reichstag itself a place serious danger instead of the sanctuary of the national life. When Prince Biamarck has throttled free discussion in Parliament, as well as in the press, he will have shut off the last safety valve of popular discontent. If he goes on with the measure he is in the direct road
