THE CHAMBER OVER THE GATE. BY HENRY W. LONGFELLOW.

Is it so far from thee Thou canst no longer see In the Chamber over the Gate That old man desolate. Weeping and wailing sor-For his son, who is no more. O Absalom, my son!

Is it so long ago That cry of human woe From the walled city come Calling on his dear name. That it has died away In the distance of to day

O Absalom, my son! There is no far nor near. There is neither there nor here. There is neither soon nor late, In that Chamber over the Cate . Nor any long ago

To that cry of human woe.

O Absalom, my soul

From the ages that are past The voice comes like a blast Over seas that wreck and drown, Over tumult of traffic and town; Comes the echoes back to me O Absalom, my son!

Somewhere at every hour The watchman on the tower Looks forth and sees the fleet Approach of the burrying feet Of messengers, that bear The tidings of despair.
O Absalow, my son!

He goes forth from the door, Who shall return no more. With him our joys departs The lights goes out in our hearts : In the Chamber over the Gate We sit disconsolate. O Absalom, my sou! That 't is a common grief Bringeth but slight relief:

Would God I had died for Thee. O Absalom, my son! ----

Of course no one can blame either the Governor-General or his officers for such conduct having been witnessed at their first State Ball, but it will be for them now to consider whether it would not be a judicious move to either limit the quantity on an occasion of that character or positively refuse to supply ti at all. His Excellency now has had two illustrations of the weakness of some portions of

at the State dinner and the State ballit there is a difficulty there that a man of his attainments should not be long in selving. To return to the ball, however. At midnight the Governor-General and Princess led the way to the supper room. Afterwards some again repaired to the ball-room, where the Governor-General's Foot Guards, string band were discoursing waltzes, polkas, quadrilles, lancers, and gallops alternately. As one o'clock struck a great many started for home. His Excellency and her Royal Highness kindly waited till nearly three o'clock, bidding these who were leaving farewell. He shook hands with most of the gentles men, but to the ladies simply bowing. Some of the male portion of the community, who had imbibed rather much of that which doth intoxicate, wandered up and down the corridors till all the vice-regal party had retired, and then they took the hist to go. ANOTHER BUNGLED CASE OF HANGING.

In Ohio, recently, a negro named George Washington, was hung for outraging a little girl. The scene at the gallows is thus described: Washington said, 'Where is Dr Wilson? want him to have my body.' Father Box saked, 'This is your wish, is it Georgel' To which he responded 'yes.' 'All right, then,' said the Father, and the ghastly work of adjusting the noose went on. Again he interrupted the officers by asking for Officer Hendricks. Finally the gentleman came on the scaffold, and Washington bade him good-by, and said, 'Tell the children good-by for me.' Ofticer Hendricks seemed much affected and said he had known Washington for a great while. The poor wretch then asked if his father and sister, Wesley and Ann Young, were in the crowd. They were loudly called for, but did not respond, whereupon he said; 'They ought to be here somewhere.' The priest said: 'Never mind them, George; think of your God. Courage now, brother.' At 11:45 Sheriff Hamilton asked if all was ready, and signated to his deputy in the box, when the rope was cut which held the drop and Washington's body shot down for four feet and with a vicious snap the slender cord broke and he lay prone upon his back in the mud beneath the scaffeld. An exclamation of horror broke from those on the scaffold, and the great crowd yelled. As quickly as possible he was brought up again in the arms Ottawa, Feb. 22. The event of the of the Sheriff's assistants and laid on the week just closed was the grand state ball platform, the Fathers rapidly repeating at the vice-regal residence. Bheriff Hamilton stated that he had the small cord tested with heavy weights, and it was represents ed as being strong enough to austain the weight of a man weighing 200 pounds. The fall of four feet, while almost certainly assuring the breaking of his neck, was too much for so small a rope, with even so slight a man as Washington. Mr. Hamilton was very much affected by the mishap, and said that not for $100,000 would be have had it happen.
