BAYO BITTING AN AFGHAN.

Standard. Feb. 13th, concerning the bayonet ting of Aighan prisoners and the looting and Globe. burning of Afghau villages : - "I shall never forget the appearance of the awart face of one of these wounded men. He was young. He was leaning back on a dead body. As I passed he turned his tace tall into the light of the moon; his jet hair had fallen from boneath his turban, and formed a weird frame around his leatures, which were haggard with agony In his own language he addressed me. tones were law and pitiful. He had been bayouetted through the chest, and I fear that th . wound was beyond all mortal help The night that set in upon this arduous day was one of wonderful beauty. The moon shone on a blue sky that was flecked with ripply snow clouds. On the broad plain around us villages were burning luridly. Alto gother the scene was one as suggestive of the corrors of war as remarkable for its beauty."
