Mr. Robinson was patriotic to the interests of Kingston, but not more so than he (Mr. M.) would be if elected. He defended himself on the dog by-law, and concluded by asking the electors to vote for whoever they considered the best man.

A REJOINDER.

Mr. Robinson said that Mr. Metcalfe had alleged that since Mr. Mowat came into power there had been nearly $2,000, 000 of a deficit. He denied this. if he thought that was right? A THIN APOLOGY. Mr. Metcalfe said he believed in having the C.P.R.R. built by giving the 100,000,000 acres; and he believed that the North West should be populated. Sir John's policy would not build up a landed aristocracy, but a great future was before Canada.

Mr. Robinson-Do you believe in Sir ohn spending that $1,000,000 himself? Mr. Metcalfe (warmly)-The Goverment has the confidence of the electors (no, no,) it has a majority in Parliament and it has a right to make such an ap-

(Applause.) Comparing the two Premiers, he said that there was more honesty in Mr. Mowat's little finger than in Sir John's whole body. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. Metcalfe-I will not quarrel with you on that point. Mr. Robinson gave his experience of the National Policy, declaring that it was a policy to rob the workingman. MAYOR GILDERSLEEVE'S ADDRESS.

After a few remarks about the manner in which Mr. Metcalfe had addressed certain electors of Rideau Ward, Mayor Gildersleeve took the platform and commented upon the tribute which Mr. Metcalfe paid to Mr. Robinson, the former stating that the latter had put forth his personal exertions in the interests of the Mr. Metcalfe—I say so still.

The Mayor said that were he the representative of the constituency he would consider that admission a source of pride.
