Gentlemen. - About twelve years ago, while travelling with Father Kemp's Old Folks Concert Troupe as a tenor singer. I took a severe cold and was laid up at Newark, N. J. This cold brought on a severe attack of Catarril, which I battled with every known remedy for four weeks without avail. and was finally obliged to give up a most desirable position and return home, unable to sing a note For three years afterwards I was unable to sing at all. The first attack of Catarrh had heft my nasal orgams and throat so sensitive that the slightest cold would bring on a fresh attack, leaving me prostrated. In this way I continued to suffer. The last attack, the severest I ever had, was terrible. I suffered the most excruciating pain in my head, was coughed incessantly. I thought I was going into quick consumption, and I firmly believe that had these symptoms continued without relief they would have rendered me an easy victim. LEGEND OF JACOB'S PILLOW.

Is the wealth of rabbinical lore Ms a mystical legend of yore. Of Jacob who wandered afar In anguish of spirit, sore pressed He lay on the desert to test,

That the tather of Israel's race Should seek in the gloom of the plain Surcease of his angaich and pain. 'I o lay bimselt down in that place." Then they c'ambred in an lible tones, In the mastical lan ange of stones. Each claiming pre coment right To be chosen as Ist ell a bed To pullow the wanderer's head

Latin population and markellous fame. As conficted they scattered his way But the pres need of carob was there, Like the sametimed incense of prayer! And to tapeurous silence they lay. But a maryellous destiny -true Lother gardeur of Inrael stew

As he lay in the desert that night.

Far hat to the other laid claim

Who invoked the religion of nom Rewarded the entalling stones, In harmony blending their tones Like the lines of a rambow's span. For they merged and mangled in one In the droop of the glowing sun, And from all, but a single stone Was moulded for Israel's bed,

As he lay with his God alone! And when morn shot her golden beams. As seraphic as Israel a dreams, The pillow of mystical story He knew in the depth of night Had invoked the angels of light. To compass the heavens in glory.

To pillow the wanderer's head

An altar to Heaven he raised. And the God of his fathers he praised As be set up the pillow of fame ; And the legend divinely has said. That thus was the corner stone laid Of the temple to large a name.
